Dr. McLane, the state veterinary surgeon from Portland, has returned home after a flying trip to Weston. He was called by County Stock Inspector H. J. Bean to pass judgment on a horse at Weston, the property of Iven O'Hara. The horse was supposed to have the glanders, and the state officer was called to settle the matter. After examination he was unable to tell, and took with him some of the discharge from the throat of the animal, which he will have examined at the experiment station.

For Sale. A good span of horses, harness and buggy. Enquire at Pass office.

GERKING FLAT "FLATS."

Interesting News Items Concerning a Well Known Neighborhood.

Mrs. J. J. Gross paid the Flat a business visit one day last week.

Mr. Still was on the Flat lately looking out for harvesting to do with his big outfit.

The Rigby-Clove combine proved to be a failure for this season. At any rate that was the case with the one the Gerking boys tried. It is thought however, that with a few slight changes, another year it will work all right. It is to be hoped that it may, as it is just the machine the farmer wants when once it is perfected.

The Jones outfit from Pendleton passed up the Flat Saturday. One of the men who was driving header wagon with trail evidently got too much booze on the way, as he seemed to be trying to drive in a circle. He succeeded in running the team in a fence corner and was unable to get any farther, when the cookhouse driver took pity on the poor fellow and stowed him away in the cookhouse and got another man to drive the team.

Mr. Shick was out to his farm Thursday where his grain is being threshed.

J. J. Gross finished up this season's run Thursday.

Messrs. Will Rigby, Arthur Rigby and Mr. Buizadore were business visitors on the Flat Friday.

Mr. T. M. Barger and family returned Saturday from a several days' outing in the mountains where they had been rustling huckleberries.

The Walter combine finished work on W. H. H. Scott's spring wheat Monday. The variety Sonora yielded about 15 bushels.

Stone & Potts finished the season's run and laid up their outfit Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Keen went to the mountains huckleberrying Monday.

Took Her Daughter With Her.

The Leader reports that Mrs. Nancy Case, who left her husband and family at Weston some months ago and went to Spokane, came back last week and returned to that city Monday morning, accompanied by one of her daughters, a girl of thirteen.

"O! hear, Misher McNutt, that Col. Wood has bin givin a hunch."

"Yis, he has. An' to be shure 'twas Rockyfella 'an Jim Hill as give 'im th' hunch—kind-r-red spirits, do ye mind. Whin th' Colonel found that his la-n-nd wouldn't hold up fence posts widout first manurin' th' so-i-ll, John an' Jim takes 'im to wan side 'an giv' 'im th' hunch to let go. Aft'er payin' out $222 an' twenty-five cents for provisions an' improvements, this fella that was to display his farm's talents to th' wa-r-r-ull pays th' commutashun price to th' government, do ye mind, simply for th' privilege of ownin' a pace of rale estate an' this s'ite his net for a sucker. A tunderfoot comes along an' offer-rs Wood 100 an' tin dollars for th' shootin' match. Th' Colonel feels th' hunch he has comin, an' takes th' offer-r. Th' moon wid th' soft feet commits suicide, an' now th' Colonel has began habbers corporous proceedin's formin' th' heirs for possesshun ave th' fence posts. It's no wander th' poor ave th' country be oppressed, Misher Flynn!"
