

SHUT THEM OUT

LA GRANDE WON SUNDAY'S GAME EIGHT TO FIVE

"Jop" Osborn the Iron Man, Pitched Fifteen Innings Without Allowing a Score.

With the iron man, "Jop" Osborn, on the slab, the Yellow Kids threw a bucket of white dope over the La Grande "Beat Pullers" in Morrison town Saturday and acquired two juicy scores during the matinee. Osborn was simply invincible and that he had the La Grander faded to a frazzle, you have only to refer to Sunday's game, when he was substituted for Willard, who as w'getting his, in the third. When he relieved the little south paw on the firing line, the Kids had one lone tally to their credit, and the Mormons had eight. After that all the run-getting belonged to the "Yellow Peril." The man from Missouri allowed the La Grande bunch nothing, and when he got through with them they looked like 30 cents with a hole in every cent, and none of them plugged with lead, either. Nine and six are fifteen, and for that number of innings Mr. Osborn did not allow a score, and the railroad burg over the hill had heard of a pitcher being in town.

Saturday's game was good to look at. Every inch of it was base ball, the Kids making sharp, crisp work of it, with no close decisions and no opportunity for the umpire, who is said to have been born with a glass eye, and who eats raw fish, to give the visitors the worst of it.

Excepting the fatal third, when La Grande bunched and walloped "Trilby" Willard and touched the bell for six with the aid of a choice collection of raw decisions by the fish man in the center of the diamond, the game took on all the trimmings and accretions of the real article. One more reference to that umpire, and we'll pass on to the tale the score book unfolds: It is intimated that besides eating raw fish, he eats raw beef steak and drinks raw beef juice; that he is so raw that the weight of mosquito netting used by him in fly time produces bars on his face that resembles a checkered checker board. Here's the story:
