COAL FROM ALBERTA

O. R. & N. Waits for an Emergency Rate from Spokane

WILL BE EFFECTIVE 60 DAYS

Rates From Spokane Will Probably Be $2 per Ton for Coal Delivered at Points in This Territory.

The coal situation in this section of the Northwest promises to be somewhat relieved by shipments of Alberta coal over the Corbin road into Spokane and from that point over the Northern Pacific and O. R. & N. lines.

The following telegram from General Freight Agent R. B. Miller, of the O. R. & N., to general Superintendent Burns of Walla Walla, explains the action of that company in its efforts to secure fuel:

Portland, Nov. 17, 1906.

R. Burns, Walla Walla: "We have been waiting to hear from the Northern Pacific about emergency rates on coal from Spokane to relieve situation but have decided to publish rates on coal from Spokane of $2 per ton to Pendleton and intermediate points south of Snake river including Fomeroy and Dayton branches. Rates will be effective as soon as we can get permission from commission to waive thirty days notice. Alberta coal is quoted at $5.15 a ton F. O. B. cars at Spokane which would make delivered price at points in your territory $1.15 a ton and while slightly higher than Wyoming and Fernie coal, based on through rates to Walla Walla, $3.65 a ton on later.

"We hope our action in making this extremely low rate will enable your people to secure some coal they could not otherwise get and afford relief we have so earnestly desired. We have an informed by mines that they can furnish coal and now have up with Corbin line question of equipment. Have asked Mohler for names of mines and will advise you so you can put your people in direct touch with them. Rates will be effective in a period of sixty days.

"R. B. Miller." The Alberta mines have plenty of coal and the only obstacle in the way of securing fuel for this section at once is in getting permission of the interstate commission to grant the waiving of the usual thirty day notice for emergency rates. Superintendent Burns will notify Agent Dobie, local agent of the O. R. & N., when the rates go into effect, also the names of the different Alberta mines so that local fuel dealers may get into correspondence with the mine owners.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT CHURCH

Prof. J. S. Henry is Now Director of Baptist Church Choir

Sunday evening at the Baptist church a feature of the services was the special music. Prof. J. S. Henry, Prof. Frank Henry and O. A. Cannon rendered choice instrumental selections, and with Mrs. J. D. Plamondon at the organ, accompanied an excellent choir. Those who assisted in the choir were: Mrs. Edward Barrett, Mrs. Edward Payne, Mrs. Howe, and Miss Lela Gross, sopranos; Mrs. M. L. Watz, Mrs. O. G. Chamberlain, Miss Mae Gross, alto; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson of Walla Walla, and Mr. Walter Judy, tenors; Geo. Bannister, Mr. G. B. Kidder, Mr. Charles Betts and Mr. Fred Koontz, bass.

Special music is hereafter to be given in all Sunday services at the Baptist church. Prof. J. S. Henry has been engaged to rehearse and direct the choir. On next Sunday night union services will be held at the Baptist church, and on this occasion the choir of that church and the choirs of the Christian and Methodist Episcopal churches will be heard in chorus. On next Thursday evening the three choirs will meet together for rehearsal of church songs.

Whitman Trounced Idaho

Slow playing, fumbles and an abundance of punting characterized the Whitman-Idaho football contest Saturday afternoon, in which Whitman players defeated the visitors by the close margin of 6 to 5. The features of the game were the successful forward passes by the Moscow team, Robertson, the quarter, accurately making a difficult throw to George Armstrong at right end. Whitman attempted the forward pass once early in the game, but made a signal failure and abandoned the new play.

Holy Roller Woman Dead

Maud Hart Greffield, accomplice of Esther Mitchell, who shot and killed George Mitchell, died Saturday in the Seattle jail. After Mitchell shot and killed Joshua Greffield, the notorious Holy Roller leader, the two women concocted a plan to murder Mitchell and Esther shot her brother in the union depot, after he had been cleared of the charge of murder. The women were arrested and held for trial but later ordered deported on the charge of insanity. A writ of prohibition was issued by the supreme court and the women were in the King county jail when Mrs. Greffield died.

Devil was Routed.

T. H. Gourley, leader of the Church of God's Children, or the People of the Apostolic Faith, at Seattle, in explaining why he and his congregation made so much noise at night that the neighbors could not sleep, said: "We are casting the devil out of a woman and in order to do it we were forced to sing and shout. It was a hard task, but I believe we accomplished the desired result."

Fuel at Helix

Herald: Helix will soon have an abundant supply of fuel as Smith & McEachern have been doing some tall hustling. They have secured 300 cords of wood and have been promised at least two cars more of coal, but they are not sure about that part. They hope for the best, but they know they will get the wood as fast as it can be shipped.

$24,000 Land Deal

At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon 480 acres of land belonging to the estate of the late Mrs. Figz Thompson was sold at the court house by Attorney Carter, administrator of the estate. The land was bid in by Joseph Hanscomb at $24,600, which is a trifle over $51 per acre. The land is located 10 miles northwest of the city.—East Oregonian.

CASTLE ROCK ABOUT DONE FOR

Cowlitz River Cuts Channel Through Heart of Little City.

Castle Rock, a little town on the Cowlitz river, has just passed through the most terrible experience in its history as a community. Nearly one half of the town has been wiped out by the unprecedented winter freshet of the Cowlitz river.

Friday morning practically 50 per cent of the town was still under water, although the flood had fallen four feet from midnight. Two thirds of the town was at one time in full possession of a raging torrent which as it receded left the main street full of debris of every imaginable character.

Great holes have begun to form in many of the streets, the underlying strata of quicksand having been swept out by the flood.

The river has cut an entirely new channel through the principal residence section from the Metcalf Shingle company's mill directly to the rock, partially undermining the mill and cutting out under the new school-house foundation, ruining that costly two-story structure beyond hope. Between 30 and 40 houses in the direct path of the freshet were swept to the ocean. Some 40 houses are now on the other side of the river. Many houses are a total wreck.

THEY LOST THE TRAIL WAGON

Farmer Has Optical Illusion and Mistakes Vehicle for Coyotes.

Here's one on D. C. Baker, M. L. Watts' genial and capable ranch foreman.

Sunday Mr. Watts and his foreman, Baker, went to the Marion Jack place with a threshing machine, and started on a two-wheeled cart which was made fast behind on the principle of a trail wagon.

The day was cold and the men took turns walking and driving. Just whose turn to walk is not positively known, but anyway Mr. Watts was on the seat when he looked back and saw Baker trailing along behind but the trail wagon was missing.

"Where's the cart?" inquired Watts.

"Well I'll be daddled," exclaimed Baker. "I'll be blamsted if I seen it as I passed by. The only thing I noticed was a band of coyotes back there some ways."

The cart was found on a hill about a quarter of a mile back, and as Baker was the man who went after it, the boys in town do not believe Watts was trailing behind the vehicle when it was lost.

Thanksgiving Masquerade Ball

Because he took to heart a severe reprimand given by an officer for intemperance, Private J. C. Stephens of Fort Walla Walla attempted to commit suicide by slashing his throat with a razor. The soldier was removed to the post hospital and it is believed that he will live.

Finds Bones of Mastodon

While on Pine creek north of Town Sunday, Frank Swaggart discovered the bones of a mastodon. At the place where the discovery was made, the decayed bones were in a strata of clay in the creek bank and about fifteen feet from the top of the ground. Frank brought home with him one of the bones, which measured four feet in length and over 12 inches in circumference. The remainder of the skeleton was found to be very much decayed.

Rates Have Taken Effect

Robert Burns, of the O. R. & N. company, announces that the new interstate freight rate which has been under consideration by his company for some time, went into effect Thursday, Nov. 15. The new tariff is a material decrease from the old rate. In regard to rates with reference to distance there is a substantial reduction. All points on the O. R. & N. in Washington, Oregon and Idaho come under the new tariff.

Dairy Stock

The dairy stock of Umatilla county and other sections of the state is being improved, but the herds need continued improvement for years to come. Only the best breeds of stock and those especially adapted to the purposes in hand, should be kept. It costs no more to keep a first class animal than one that is not worth one third as much in a dairy. Dairy men and farmers are realizing this, and acting accordingly.—Echo Register.

DISCUSS RAVAGES OF DISEASE

Masses will Receive Benefit of Discussion and Deductions.

At the Hotel Astor in New York scores of eminent medical men, public health officials, legislators, clergymen and representatives of foreign governments, with others interested in the general welfare of humanity, assembled for the point session of the American International congress on Tuberculosis and the Medico-Legal Society of New York.

The chief object of the meeting, which was held under the sanction of the United States government, is the information and urging of legislation to prevent tuberculosis. Incidentally there was scientific discussion of the disease and the later discoveries, relative to its treatment and prevention.

The personnel of the congress was such as to give weight to its deliberations and conclusions. The roll call showed an attendance of many medical men and others of national or international reputation. Dr. F. E. Daniel, of Austin, Texas, president of the congress, delivered his presidential address, in the course of which he set forth the alarming and ever increasing spread of the disease and the necessity for the co-operation of all governments in legislative and other measures for its prevention.

The congress discussed every stage and symptom of tuberculosis. New and powerful light was turned on many phases of the disease, and it is intended to enlighten the masses concerning it. Preventive legislation was urged, also governmental and municipal sanitariums throughout the world. Boards of health, state and provincial medical societies and medico-legal organizations throughout America and Europe was asked to cooperate in the movement.

A feature of the congress was reports regarding a great number of special sanitariums and open air camps in this country. The model camp, known as Camp Pine Woods, in Sullivan county, New York, was studied; also Saranac Lake, the City of Last Hope, the army sanitarium for consumptives at Fort Bayard, N. Y., and other places where tuberculosis is being scientifically treated.

Zeko Matthews, Pendleton's veteran tonsorial artist, was in town Saturday.

UNAVAILING QUEST

Brittan in Mexico Finds Only Another False Clue.

INFORMATION SENT BY LAWYER

Information States that Child is Other Than One Lost at Toll Gate Last Summer.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of little Cecil Brittan from the Toll Gate last July is as far from being cleared as ever, says the Walla Walla Bulletin. Mrs. Brittan received a message from Robert L. Brittan this morning stating that his quest for his missing son in New Mexico resulted in no end. The father went to New Mexico Monday afternoon, lured by the hope that a small snapshot photograph he had received was that of his missing boy, but the word received would tend to show that it was only another of the will 'o' the wisps that the frantic parents have been following ever since the disappearance.

The message stated: "It is not Cecil. Will start home tonight."

It was sent from Albuquerque and dated at 8:30 in the morning.

Mr. Brittan has spent nearly all he owned in the fruitless search for some trace of the missing boy and has gone on numerous journeys in the hope of finding the lad. He has made trips to Chicago, St. Louis, Salt Lake and now to New Mexico, following some clue that promised to lead to something in the end only to find that the facts had been misrepresented.

His last trip was taken with New Mexico as the objective point. From letters received in Walla Walla from Albuquerque, Mr. Brittan was almost sure that he had found the boy at last, as the letters were very carefully worded to make sure that the reward would be paid to the person having the child or recovering it. Several of these letters, accompanied finally by a photograph, showing a boy greatly resembling Cecil, convinced Mr. Brittan that he would find his missing son in New Mexico, where he had been taken by a band of kidnapers. Mr. Brittan left Monday, keeping his destination secret, as he wished to surprise those having the child and to give them no warning of his coming.

The clue that he followed seems to have been a false one, as the lad in New Mexico proved to be other than his son.

Most people now believe the disappearance is only one of the many mysterious occurrences which have taken place in the Blue Mountains, the majority of which remain unsolved, even though years have passed.

SEATTLE STEAMBOATS COLLIDE

Steamer Dix sinks, Carrying With Her Forty-One People.

In a collision between the steamship Jeannie, belonging to the Alaska Coast company, Captain P. H. Mason, and the Puget Sound steamer Dix, belonging to the Alki Point Transportation company, 41 people were drowned at Seattle Sunday night. There were 73 passengers on board.

The cause of the accident was a misunderstanding of signals. The Jeannie struck the Dix on her starboard side just about midships, and keeled her over. She filled with water, then righted and went down stern first, sinking within five minutes of the time of the collision. The Dix was on her way to Port Blakeley from Seattle, and the Jeannie was going from Smith Cove to Tacoma to unload ore for the smelter. The Jeannie was not injured in the least and no member of her crew was lost. The master of the Dix was saved. The collision occurred while the Sound was almost as smooth as a millpond and after the boats had been steaming within sight of each other for a quarter of an hour.

The Jeannie was backing when she collided with the Dix and the impact was very slight. The Dix was struck aft of amidship on the starboard side. She listed heavily to port for a brief period, righted herself, then sank stern first. There was hardly time to launch life rafts or boats before she was almost entirely submerged. Passengers jumped from the decks into the water; women screamed and officers and men called orders that could hardly be heard above the din. The passengers of the Dix who could swim made their way to the sides of the Jeannie and were dragged aboard. The Jeannie was not moved until after all who had reached her had been re-hauled aboard. They she cruised about, picking up several who had managed to stay above water. It was after 10 o'clock when the Jeannie left the scene of the catastrophe and steamed to the Virginia street dock, Seattle, with her 39 survivors.
