RIVER RUNS AWAY

Puyallup Becomes Independent and Elopes with Chuck

LEAVES NORTHERN PACIFIC DRY

The New Highwater Mark Gives Valuable Pointers to Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul

The Puyallup river, which at Auburn was utilized by the Northern Pacific railroad company for supplying a water tank that feeds the railroad locomotives on the Portland-Seattle run, has escaped from the company and is running away into the Chuck river watercourse some miles distance from the water tank. The company is digging a large well at the tank to supply the locomotives, and engineers are figuring on plans for recapturing the runaway Puyallup and bringing it back to its bed.

It was during the recent floods in Washington that the gay Puyallup went on a rampage and decided to elope with the Chuck. It went out over its banks and after effecting a union with its neighbor a deeper channel was cut in the latter stream and the runaway abandoned its old course entirely, leaving the railroad company in the lurch and the fine trestle bridge at Auburn spanning a dry ravine.

While Northern Pacific people have been put to great expense and trouble by the floods, the water has taught many valuable lessons in time to the engineers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company, now building to the sound and Portland. It has shown them new high water marks and given them pointers on where to run their lines to avoid future floods. H. S. Rowe, general agent for the Milwaukee in Portland, speaking of the effect of the floods on construction work in Washington, said:

"The Milwaukee's grades are washed in numerous places, but no serious damage has been done by the floods along our route, for the reason that our work was not far enough along to be very much hurt. The grades have been completed in many places, but there were no ties or iron on them, and the washing down of the embankments is easily and quickly remedied. The floods were the greatest ever known in western Washington. They have served a very useful purpose for the engineers of the Milwaukee road."

"At Seattle the flood scenes were almost unbelievable. Many acres of suburban property where people had bought cheap lots and acreage tracts and built little homes were entirely under water."

WISH TO BUY POSTAL SERVICE

Syndicate of Capitalists Will Submit Offer to Run Mail Service.

A Washington special says Uncle Sam will be asked to turn over to a syndicate of capitalists the conduct of the postal business. The joint committee of congress investigating postal abuses and intrusted with recommending reforms, which has been in session in New York, has resumed its meetings and W. D. Boyce, of Chicago, will go before the committee with a bona fide offer made by substantial capitalists to take over from the government the postal business and relieve it of all the great expense attached.

The offer has several objects. It is true that capitalists have been found who believe that money can be made by a monopoly of the postal business. Whereas the government has failed to make the postoffice a paying institution, the capitalists believe that by the introduction of business methods they can put the department upon a dividend paying basis. Wells-Fargo Express company saw enough money in the monopoly to offer the government a bonus of $1,000,000 a year if permitted to run the postoffice. The proposition is presented in good faith and will serve the double purpose of emphasizing to the public the fact that there are capable business men in the country who believe that they can give the people penny postage and an excellent service, as good as that performed by the government. The offer will have the effect of showing to the people that these business men, who will give satisfactory bond, will guarantee to give the patrons of the postoffice reduced postage rates, which the department officials unite in reporting the government cannot afford to do.

The proposition broadly stated, is that the government shall withdraw from the field of controlling a public utility and shall place the business of transporting and delivering the mail in private hands, as the express business is today conducted. The capitalists who are willing to assume the burden will pay the government rent for the postoffice buildings all over the country and will charge the government regular rates of postage upon its mail, which is now carried free under frank and penalty stamps. It is roughly estimated that the government would offset in money received from rentals of the buildings the charge it would annually be required to pay for the transportation of its mail.

NEW PHASE OF COAL FAMINE

Citizens of Winona, Whitman County, Confiscate O. R. & N. Coal.

F. T. Abbot, O. R. & N. agent at Colfax has made a demand for the arrest of six citizens of Winona, a small town in the western part of Whitman county, demanding that they be officially accused of larceny and arrested on that charge. The alleged offense is the theft of company coal from a car at that place. The demand was made by order of Division Superintendent Thomas Walsh of the O. R. & N. at Tekoa.

Last Wednesday a car of coal was received at Winona, consigned to the agent at that place. Many families in the town were entirely out of coal and suffering extremely because of the cold weather. In many instances children were sent to neighbors who had some coal to keep them from suffering extremely from the cold. Leading merchants and business men offered to buy the coal to prevent further suffering, but were met by a refusal whereupon the citizens collected enough money to pay for the car, of 20 tons at the rate of $8 a ton and deposited the money with Stewart Small, a merchant. They then proceeded to help themselves to the coal. The entire car was appropriated and distributed to the people who were out, each getting about half a ton.

The prosecuting attorney refused to file an information, giving as his reason that no jury in Whitman county could be found who would convict these men.

TWO SMALL BOYS KIDNAPPED

Police of Sandusky, Ohio, Try to Find the Children.

In an effort to locate two boys who were kidnapped or mysteriously disappeared in Sandusky, Ohio, July 2, 1899, the chief of police of that city is sending circulars throughout the land seeking information as to the whereabouts of the children, in hopes that the parents of the boys may learn something to their advantage. On the night of July 13, 1899, two boys, Joseph Wirth and Willie Missig, aged 10 and 11 years respectively were playing on the streets of Sandusky, O. That was the last seen or heard of them. The boys were either kidnapped or strayed away. All efforts to locate the missing children have been in vain and for seven years the parents of both boys have been searching the wide world over.

The circular which tells the story gives the boys photographs, taken when each child was small and perhaps they have greatly changed in looks by this time. The circulars are being sent to every police office in the world, and every effort is being made to find the children who are now almost grown to manhood.

No Poor at Baker

That there is not a poor family in Baker City which is in need has been proven as a result of a chance meeting between a couple of old time friends who had not seen each other in 18 years, and the attempt of one of them to repay a loan of $20 made by the other at a time of dire need. For three days C. M. Mullen, the well known mining man who fell into sudden wealth by the sale of the Ox Bow power site a few months ago, has been trying to donate a fine large turkey with some celery, cranberries and sweet potatoes, to every worthy poor person in the city. His efforts have been vain, however, and after prolonged search, Mr. Mullen has been compelled to abandon his task and has disposed of his stock of good things to eat by presenting them to his friends.

Papers to Consolidate

The Walla Walla Morning Union and Evening Statesman are to be consolidated if the owners agree upon the valuation of the plants, says the Bulletin. O. R. Ball, manager of the American Type Foundry's company of Portland, has arrived in the city and after a conference with A. R. Burford, commenced taking inventory of the two plants, he having come by request of both parties to make up the estimates. It will require a couple of days at least to complete this work and it is expected that the consolidation will then be made. No one connected with either paper seems inclined to discuss the proposition but the facts have leaked out and the only thing that will stand in the way of consummating the deal will be a disagreement at the last moment over the question of valuation.

Work Resumed

Active work is now going on on the East Umatilla project after some delay on account of the recent floods. Forty men are now at work on the headgate with about a dozen teams, which will be completed in about a week. Two hundred and fifty men are at work on different parts of the project. The upper end of the ditch will be earth for about a half mile, then comes a half mile of rock section, and a little below Echo there will be a mile of cement gravel, all of which requires different work in different sections along the ditch to the Columbia.

REORGANIZE PHONE COMPANY

New Corporation With Fifty Million Capital to Be Formed

The recent advance in the price of the shares of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company has attracted considerable attention within the last few days, say San Francisco advices. On November 1 the shares of the company were rather slow at $100 per share, while yesterday 110 was bid, but nothing obtainable at less than $113. For the last 10 days there has been some quiet buying of these shares at prices in excess of $105.

In explanation of the rise of values it is announced that the company will undergo complete reorganization and a new company is to be organized under the laws of California with $50,000,000 capital to take over the stock of the present concern. It will be divided into $32,000,000 preferred and $17,000,000 stock. Bonds will be issued to rebuild and extend the lines of the company.

The expansion of business during the last few years has exceeded the company's expectations, and on the showing of recent years the company has determined to extend its lines to every village and hamlet within the borders of the territory. Eighteen million dollars is to be used for this purpose.

DEATH OF A PRINCESS

Mrs. Amos Underwood Daughter of Chief Chenoweth.

LIFE OF ROMANCE AND SORROW

Belle of Pioneer Days Wedded Prominent Army Officer But Refused to Follow Him From State.

The death of Mrs. Amos Underwood and her funeral at Hood River, which has just been conducted according to the rites of the remnant of the powerful tribe of Indians that once swarmed along the banks of the Columbia river, has caused old pioneers to reveal the fact that her life was one of romance and sorrow in her youth, and also that she was a great belle in her time and was the wife of a prominent army officer.

As the story goes, according to one of the few white settlers who was here in the late sixties, Mrs. Underwood was the daughter of Chief Chenoweth, after whom a town is named on the Washington side of the river, and who, in company with six other Indians, was executed at Cascade Locks for the massacre which took place there in which 22 whites were murdered.

Chenoweth and his companions claimed they were innocent, but after an investigation were deemed guilty and shot. During their trial and execution an army officer who was stationed at Fort Dalles saw Mrs. Underwood and became enamored of her and asked her hand in marriage. It is related that she refused to countenance his advances, as she did not care for him, but was prevailed on finally to accept him through the influence of Indians of her tribe, who thought that it was a good diplomatic move and would secure the favor of the great soldier against further chastisement.

So they were married and for two years lived together, but not happily, as the Indian maiden is said to have never recovered her repugnance to the man who was indirectly responsible for her father's death. At the end of two years the army officer was transferred to California and tried to persuade his wife to go with him, but she refused to do so and he went to his post of duty. After a time he returned and made another plea to which she was also adamant, and he then went to Alaska, where he was sent by the government, and is said to have returned no more.

Afterward she met Amos Underwood who was one of the few white settlers in this part of the country at that time, and an Indian fighter of great renown and who came into Oregon in 1832. To him she was betrothed and several children were born to them, the bodies of two of whom were exhumed at the time of the funeral and reburied alongside that of their mother with the ceremonies of the Indians of her tribe.

The ceremony was conducted by Indian Jim, who for several years has been engaged in the work of removing the bones of his tribesmen from burying grounds near the river back to the spot where Mrs. Underwood was buried, and which, it is considered, will be undisturbed for a great many years to come. It was Mrs. Underwood's desire that she be buried according to the custom of her race and the family respected her wishes.

A PLANT FOR STATE PRINTER

Willis S. Duniway Will Invest in New Printing Material.

A new printing plant for the new state printer, Willis S. Duniway, in the capitol of Salem, will take the place of the present plant, owned by Frank C. Baker, ex-state printer, and will be operated on and after Duniway's assumption of the office, January 14, 1907, says a Portland paper. Negotiations for the sale of the old plant were considered by the two parties for some time, but it is understood that a price could not be agreed on. Baker says that should the legislature put Duniway on a salary he will give the old plant to the state. The new presses will arrive for Duniway's plant early next month, and two are already on hand. Type and other accessories have been ordered, which will bring the total cost up to between $12,000 and $14,000. The new machinery will be installed before January 14, so that Duniway will be ready to turn out the legislature's printing on the very first day.

Had a Close Call

"A dangerous surgical operation, involving the removing of a malignant ulcer as large as my hand from my daughter's hip, was prevented by the application of Bucklen's Arnica Salve," says A. C.
