ATHENA, ORE., SEPT. 4, 1908

Enforced in a half-hearted sort of way, the game laws of the State of Oregon are not looked upon seriously by men without the necessary principle to do right because it is right and not because they are compelled to do so. The out-of-season shooting is said to be considerable, which is no doubt true. Another thing—counties are compelled, under the law, to collect the fee for hunters' licenses, bear all the expense of such collection, and remit the money to the state. One naturally wonders where the counties "get off at" in such a case. The issue of hunters' licenses just now in Union County is about 100 short compared with this time last year, says the Union Republican, and the inference is natural that there are some who are hunting without licenses. Evidently the fish and game authorities are placing the sportsmen largely upon their honor in the matter of observing the law, and while this is all right in some cases, it will not work in others.

Brass bands will play a prominent part in the campaign of the Hoosier branch of the Hearst Independence party, if the plans of the party leaders are carried out. Charles G. Conn, of Elkhart, the millionaire manufacturer of musical instruments, is being urged to accept the nomination for governor, and according to delegates who are here today in advance of the state convention, he will probably accept. Mr. Conn is known all over the world as a maker of wind instruments and his fame in this direction should insure him the brass band vote. He has made many millions in his business. Until recently he was a democrat and served several times in congress. At one time he was the owner of the Washington Times, now the property of Frank Munsey, which he conducted for the alleged purpose of giving his congressional acts proper publicity. He is a clever advertiser, and if nominated for governor by the independents, will likely make a spectacular race.

"Advertising Oregon" is the title of a page in "Printers' Ink" of July 8th, one of the most widely known advertising journals. And it is no wonder that the state's work along these lines has attracted this attention, for no portion of America is circulating the attractive literature that burdens the mails of Oregon everyday in the year. Now that the colonist rates are in effect every citizen of the state should feel it his duty to advertise the fact in his personal correspondence, to aid in every possible way the commercial organizations which are working to increase the state's population.

One thousand Central Illinois farmers are packing up their household goods and preparing to move to Oregon before next spring. They have made arrangements to come out by special trains to Southern Oregon and will settle on the military road grant in Lake and Harney counties. This is probably the largest emigration from one point to a western state since the days of the old Oregon trail, and will bring a particularly desirable class of farmers and residents into Southern Oregon.

Clarence S. Darrow, the Chicago attorney who attained international fame as chief counsel in the Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone defense, will take an active part in the socialist campaign. He will deliver several addresses, among them a Labor day speech in Grand Central Palace, New York.

European scientists assert that women are growing stronger. Man's only hope is they'll some day be strong enough to do all the work.

O. R. & N. RECONSTRUCTION.

Mr. J. J. Hill has been of great benefit to Portland and the region eastward, not only directly, in building the north bank road, but indirectly, by spurring Mr. Harriman into action. Not only has Mr. Harriman promised to build a road through central Oregon and discovered at least the Nebalem-Tillamook country, but he is now practically rebuilding the O. R. & N. from Portland up the Columbia, as far as Umatilla—the point to which it runs close and parallel to the new road.

It is said that in this reconstruction work alone he will spend some $20,000,000. The north bank road is said to be the best constructed road in the country. Though in places it was very difficult to build, no expense was spared to make it the best road possible. Trains can run over it safely at a high rate of speed. With such a road, as to speed, if not as to weight of loads hauled, the O. R. & N., with its lighter rails and worn and somewhat neglected track, could not successfully compete. But Mr. Harriman, as without this competition he might not have done for years to come, will make his road along the Columbia equal to Hill's, or as nearly so as possible, so that trains can run twice as fast and haul greater loads. Thus the gorge of the Columbia, for some 200 miles eastward from Portland, will have two of the very best roads in the United States, competing side by side. This work will not only give employment for a good while to many men, and put a great deal of money in circulation hereabouts, but will be of much positive and permanent advantage to Portland and the upper country.

Here we get an idea of the vast value of competition, of worthy rivalry, as against monopoly. As long as Mr. Harriman had a monopoly of the business, he did not care very much how it was done or whether his road was in first-class shape or not. Trains might mope along at any old speed, and as long as the track would carry the sauntering trains it would do; but no sooner does Mr. Hill build a new road alongside, than Mr. Harriman sees the necessity of building one just as good. Thus will the people be far better served than they have been, not only by the new Hill road but by the reconstructed old road as well. Railroad competition, to some extent, is an absolute necessity to the people's welfare; railroad monopoly throughout any large and important region is oppressive, and it should be and must be made unlawful in fact as well as in terms of statutes.—Portland Journal.

EYES AND THEIR MEANING.

Wide open eyes are said to be indicative of rashness. Side-glancing eyes are always to be distrusted. The downcast eye has in all ages been typical of modesty. The proper distance between the eyes is the width of one eye. People of melancholy temperament rarely have clear blue eyes. Eyes with long sharp corners indicate great discernment and penetration. The white of the eye showing beneath the iris is indicative of nobility of character. When the upper lid covers half or more of the pupil the indication is of cool deliberation. Gray eyes turning green in anger or excitement are indicative of a choleric temperament. An eye the upper lid of which passes horizontally across the pupil indicates mental ability.

Unsteady eyes, rapidly jerking from side to side, are frequently indicative of an unsettled mind. Eyes that are wide apart are said by physiognomists to indicate great intelligence and a tenacious memory. Eyes placed close together in the head are said to indicate pettiness of disposition, jealousy and a turn for faultfinding. Wide open, staring eyes in weak countenances indicate jealousy, bigotry intolerance and pertinacity without any firmness. When the under arch of the upper eyelid is a perfect semicircle it is indicative of goodness, but also of timidity, sometimes approaching cowardice.—Dundee Advertiser.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Weaknesses.

"I began to feel lousy to work, nervous, nervous, nervous, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."
Dr. John E. Fife, one of the Editorial Staff of THE ELECTRIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonia Dillen) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":
"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system. He continues: 'In Helonia we have a medication which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent.' Dr. Fife further says: 'The following are among the leading indications for Helonia (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and systemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen.'
"If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonia, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents."
Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb, in all catarrhal conditions, and general enfeeblement. It is useful."
Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root: "In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."
Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal: "Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

543 1-2 Congress St. PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.
I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.
