Milton Eagle: The little five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Small received a terrible burn last Wednesday and had not the mother been close at hand there is no telling what the result might have been. The little lady was playing in the kitchen and Mrs. Small was engaged in household duties that took her on the porch just outside the kitchen door. In her mother's absence from the room it is supposed the little one climbed into a chair in front of the stove in which a fire was burning and a spark flew from the front grate and lodged in the back of her skirts, igniting them and in less time than it takes to tell it the dress was burned almost completely off from the child. She ran to her mother, who quickly extinguished the blaze, but not until after the flames had burned the little one's back and one arm severely, and all the hair from the back of her head.
