

The Animals in the Zoo.

The sleeping hours of the animals at the zoological gardens in Regent's park vary as much, according to the families to which they belong, as do their other characteristics and habits. The orang outang goes to bed at sundown, draping its head in a blanket and refusing to see visitors after dusk. It is also an early riser. With the lions, tigers and other members of the cat tribe the night finds them at their liveliest, and they sleep most between the midday meal and supper time. The eagles go to sleep just about the time their neighbors in the owl cage are waking up, while the bears during the winter months apparently sleep all day and night too. The residents of the monkey house object seriously to being disturbed after dark, and if one of the keepers happens to take a light into their quarters they scold him unmercifully. On the other hand, it would probably take a dynamite bomb to arouse the rhinoceros, and it is not uncommon, the keepers say, to find rats biting holes in its thick hide with impunity.—London Mail.

A Ban on Patterns.

"There is one kind of correspondence sometimes received by women clerks that makes heads of firms hopping mad," said the pretty stenographer. "That is dress patterns. They don't mind letters and magazines, but if a girl wants to keep on good terms with her employer and maybe keep her job she had better advise pattern companies to send their communications to some other address. I know one employer of about 100 girls who has put up notices in the workroom to the effect that no patterns can be received at that office. Not many men go that far, but all hold the same grudge against patterns. A girl who has a new dress to make up can't help spreading the pattern out the minute she gets it. Then every other woman in the office becomes interested. Nothing is so disorganizing to women clerks as patterns. Nothing takes up more time that belongs to the firm, so you really can't blame the bosses for putting a ban on patterns."—New York Press.

A Beautiful Lake.

Perhaps the most striking instance to be seen in the whole world of the wonderful apparent coloring of bodies of water is the marvelously beautiful Blue lake in Switzerland. Encompassed on all sides by lofty mountains, their lower ranges luxuriantly clothed with verdure down to the edge of the water and adorned with many fine forest trees, while their higher acclivities are garbed in a mantle of eternal snow, the little lake, nestling in its deep hollow basin and protected from winds and storms, is quite startling in its singular and strange beauty. The water, although really pure and colorless, appears to be of a most vivid and intense sky blue. And its transparency is so remarkable that a small nickel coin dropped into the water in the center of the lake can be seen gyrating downward until it reaches the bottom, apparently more than a hundred feet beneath.

Japan's National Beverage.

Sake is the national beverage of Japan. It has a peculiar flavor not comparable to any European drink, is made from fermented rice by an intricate process in winter time and contains from 11 to 14 per cent of alcohol. It is a necessary constituent of every ceremonial Japanese dinner, is served in little, ampulla-like jars and drunk with much formality from squat, earless sake cups containing approximately about two ounces. To the European palate it tastes sour at first, but a preference for it is readily acquired. Curiously enough, it has a much more powerful effect on the Japanese than on Europeans. A stronger variety, shochu, contains from 20 to 50 per cent of alcohol. Another form, mirin, is more or less a liqueur.—London Lancet.

The Peanut.

The common peanut, beloved of the small boy, grows in a way that is distinctly original. The little plant sends up its shoots, with the fruit on the end of a somewhat stiff stalk, and then before it ripens the stem bends over and carefully pushes the fruit underground. As pigs are said to be especially fond of these, it has been suggested that the plant does this to hide its nuts from the porker's too inquisitive investigations.

System Required.

Clerk—May I have a day's leave tomorrow, sir? It is my mother-in-law's funeral. Employer—My dear Huber, this mustn't occur again. Last week your wife died, and now your mother-in-law's going to be buried. You must arrange things better in your family and see that they happen in the holidays.—Lustige Blatter.

Unkind.

Medical Man—Jobson has done the meanest thing I ever heard of. He came to my house the other night, ate a big dinner, got indigestion and then went to another doctor to be cured.

Cheering Him Up.

New Boarder—How's the fare here? Old Boarder—Well, we have chicken every morning. "That's first rate. How is it served?" "In the shell."

The Way of It.

Katzecker—Life is an irony. Bocker—Yes, by the time you have the money for a grand stand seat your home team no longer wins.—New York Sun.

Ankeny Breaks the Record.

Pendleton E. O.: All records for slow time between this city and Wenaha springs by auto were broken Sunday night by Neemith Ankeny of the First National bank and Brooke Dickson of the Domestic laundry. They started from Wenaha springs at 7:30 Sunday evening arriving in Pendleton at 4 o'clock Monday morning. When one of the tires blew out after they had proceeded a considerable distance they thought little of the accident but when the performance was repeated soon after and then repeated again, the amusing side of the situation wore off. It was necessary for them to pull the tire off four times on the journey.

Solid Wall of Fire.

A wall of fire five or ten miles in width was sweeping through the forests of Idaho to the Montana side near Trout Creek, Mont., this week, according to reports from western Montana. Strong winds caused the fires to break forth with renewed vigor and the situation is alarming. The forestry service is calling available men to the scene. The flames at Lola are reported beyond control despite the 260 men fighting.

Dies From Burns.

After two weeks of suffering, Anna Degen, the seven-year-old girl at Walla Walla who was so badly burned two weeks ago, died Sunday night in St. Mary's hospital. The accident happened on the afternoon of July 18, near her home and is supposed to have been caused by stepping on a parlor match, the lighted end flying up and igniting her clothing.
