The Phrenologicalist—
A distinguished phrenologist, while dining at a hotel stated at the table that he had formed an opinion of the character of each one present. An Irishman said that he would propound a question and that if it was truthfully answered he would forever believe in phrenology. The phrenologist said he was satisfied and told him to proceed. "Thin," said the Irishman, "will yez be afther tellin' me am I married or single?"—London Telegraph.

Sweet.

"I think your wife has such a sweet voice."
"So do I. She gets $1,200 a year for spilling part of it in a church choir."—Boston Transcript.

VACATION.

Could the empty school house speak
Through the long vacation,
This is what I think 't would say,
In its desolation:

"Where are all the little lads?
Where each little lady?
Where are all the feet that tripped
Round my walks so shady?"

"Lonely are my vacant halls,
I miss their merry faces;
But bye-and-bye they'll all come back
To their accustomed places.

"Here I'll wait through summer time,
I must not feel neglected;
They cannot work the whole year
through,
'Tis not to be expected.

"Soon my hall doors wide will swing
And tones that shake each rafter
Will call the happy, dancing feet,
The songs and shouts and laughter.

"Soon I'll gather in my arms
Each candidate for college;
Short, indeed, the years they spend
To climb the Hill of Knowledge."
(Mrs.) R. S. Foreman,
8th grade class of 1910.
