CLOTHES For You Alone

If you have your clothes made to order, they look it from every view point. If you wear ready-made clothes, they look it from every standpoint; one costs no more than the other. Which will you have?

Where's the clothier that can show you 1500 different kinds of suits, all your size. I have them. I guarantee you a perfect fit, dependable quality and dependable Workmanship. I buy woollens direct from the mills and pay top prices for every piece of work done, which insures the best results in tailoring. I draft patterns for any style coat front you desire. I also carry the famous Kohn clothes, and while a little higher in price than some others, are worth the difference in hand work, good shrinking and shape-retaining clothes

Ladies' Suits

Coats, Skirts and one-piece Dresses made to order

I have installed a French Dry Cleaning Machine at my shop and will be able to handle work equal to any city, at reasonable prices. Woollens sold by the yard.

AN UNKNOWN RACE.

Traditions of the Hohokam, Who Were the First Americans.

In the beginning the Hohokam dwelt in the land. They were the first Americans—before the pilgrim fathers, before the Spaniards, before the Indians. They were the unknown people who lived in the United States so long ago that their name is utterly lost. In the southwest old tribes of Indians like the Zunis and Navajos know nothing of them save by vaguest tradition. The Pimas and Papagos of southern Arizona, who occupy part of the land that once was theirs, know that another race possessed the country long ago. More they cannot tell. They and their fathers for hundreds of years have seen what we see—the scanty remnants of ancient villages. For the inhabitants of the villages they have no name except the Hohokam—that is, the "unknown."

The modern archaeologist describes the implements and pottery of the Hohokam. He cannot do much more, for their houses are laid low. Except in a few places, such as the ruins of Casa Grande, near the Gila river, the very walls have vanished. Casa Grande itself may be the work of a people later than the main body of the Hohokam. We can never know the whole story. Yet little by little we may learn its chief facts. Arizona and the adjacent regions are full of ruins unknown to scientists and even to the people who live within a mile of them. They are so nearly obliterated that there seems at first sight little to repay study.

Archaeology begins the task of reconstructing the past. Geography must finish it. Modern geography enables us to determine the mode of life which must prevail, especially among primitive peoples, under given conditions of physical environment. If we can correctly picture the geographic environment of the Hohokam we may learn much of the history of our earliest fellow countrymen.—Ellsworth Huntington in Harper's Magazine.

BOILERS AND BODIES.

Alike in Many Respects in the Treatment They Require.

The boiler has a certain temperature corresponding with the working pressure it is designed to use and for which it was constructed.

The body has its normal temperature. Any variation above or below this means too high bodily pressure or a reduced vitality.

The fuel put into a boiler should be that which it is designed to burn. Differently constructed boilers will not economically burn the same fuel.

The body should receive the food it is best able to assimilate. Diverse constitutions require diverse nourishment.

A boiler should be fired with small, equal quantities of fuel at stated intervals; large masses irregularly fed are fatal to satisfactory results.

The body should be fed similarly; overloading the stomach produces imperfect digestion and deranges our physical systems.

Boilers are insulated by brickwork, cellular asbestos, etc., to prevent loss of heat by radiation.

Cellular tissue and fat aid in maintaining our normal temperature.

Some boilers well designed produce good results with a small fuel consumption; others are less economical. The more perfect the boiler the less the consumption of fuel.

Some individuals are so constituted that they exist on small quantities of food; others in the same circumstances consume much more. The more perfect the physical development the less the food required.

The above data, intelligently used, govern good boiler practice.

The above will also secure health and good digestion.—Popular Magazine.

Why the Trunk Was Slow.
"I had a most delightful time last summer," gushed Miss Noling, "but I was dreadfully inconvenienced at Leadville waiting for my trunk. I went there by the N. T. C. so as to take advantage of the scenery along the route, but I had to send my trunk on the slow B. C. and E."
"But why couldn't you have sent your trunk on the N. T. C. too?" murmured Miss Sterling.
"Because," explained Miss Noling, glad to show her superior knowledge, "I learned from a friend of mine that the N. T. C. is not a trunk line."—Brooklyn Life.

Ho Promised.
Sutton—No, can't spare the money very well, but I'll lend it to you if you promise not to keep it too long. Gayboy—I'll undertake to spend every penny of it before tomorrow.—W.

Getting the Particulars.
Nellie—Hasn't Mr. Felewalky proposed yet? Nora—No, but he has gone as far as to ask what time we save breakfast and whether mother is a good cook.—Exchange.

Bad men excuse their faults; good men will leave them.—Johnson.
