

A HARD ONE TO LOSE

away from Bundy. In the seventh, with the score 3 to 1, Hanson was in distress and Brown, Bundy and Owens each found him for singles, but the Portland infield tightened up and saved his goat. Brown being forced out at second, Bundy ditto and Clark going out, Nadde to Parrot.

Picard annexed his second tally in the eighth making the score four to one for the Millers, and it looked like the game was clinched right there for Frink was working strong, having fanned the last man up in the seventh, with clock-like regularity. The nifty twirler had fanned one in the first, two in the second, one in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth, and the support was stunningly strong, and all thought the game was safe. But it wasn't. Pembroke and Seagrist scored on errors, not a bit being made off Frink by the six men who faced him in this inning. After Shradler, who had relieved Harmon on the mound had been struck out, Pembroke was safe on Picard's error. Then Seagrist was given life at first through the same source. Harmon came through with a bingle that looked to many that Bundy should have felled but the score book says "fielder's choice," and the two runs came in.

Still the game was won. But in the ninth, after Smith had gotten a single and Shradler had passed Bundy, the best Owens and Clark could deliver were flies that went right at a waiting fielder. Parrot went out to Clark. Frink struck out Waldon and Seagrist was safe on Picard's error but he had two strikes on Boewer, who was put in to strike for Shradler. The big crowd, believing the game was Athena's, 4 to 3, got up on its many feet and was filing out of the grand stand when bing! Out sizzled a two-bagger, Seagrist scoring, tying up the game. Then the big crowd shuffled its many feet and sat down again to witness an extra inning affair. Shradler, who had given way to Boewer, was replaced on the hill by Seagrist in the tenth and he fanned Picard and Lienallen. Frink found him for a three base hit, but Pelland couldn't wallop him, and struck out.

In the 12th, the Millers came back and won the game again, but couldn't hold it. Owens went out, Seagrist to Parrot. Clark was safe when Waldon juggled and scored when Picard binged it on the nose for a two-base smash. Lienallen came through with his third bingle, Jesse scoring and the Athena fans went crazy with joy.

Then the score book ends the tragedy with this: Boewer pinched out a three-base hit. Pembroke gets credit for another, Boewer scoring. Pembroke scored on Harmon's single. Harmon sloped for second, Brown threw to Pelland the ball going through Bundy, Harmon scoring and the game was over. The score:

Now for the Weston bombardment. "Get a hit, get a hit."

Not a very high class article of ball were those two exhibition games last week. The score ran 18 to 2 with Weston. Beyler, he of the strong left arm, got his bumps for nine runs and left the mound to be occupied by Wheeler. He was also bumped at regular intervals. The fiasco ended in the ninth with the score standing 18 to 2 in favor of Athena. The game with Walla Walla Saturday was no better. Shradler was on the mound for the Bears, and Picard, Brown and Smith officiated for the Millers. Walla Walla walked away with it to the tune of 18 to 4.

Jesse Picard held third at Walla Walla Sunday, and while he is charged with three errors, the lad more than made up for them by getting three hits and making three runs. Pendleton won from Milton, 13 to 2; Weston took Echo into camp, 5 to 3. Weston plays here Sunday, Walla Walla goes to Pendleton and Echo to Milton.

A Bridge of Ants.

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ant-nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from leaf to leaf. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves, each gripping the waist of another in its mandibles. A number of such chains will co-operate in bringing two leaves together.

A Legend of Lace.

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of spreading seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with thread against a piece of linen and, working on, with her thoughts following her lover, invented lace.

Force of Habit.

He was an old merchant who had built up a big business by advertising. "John," said his wife, "what do you want on your tombstone?" "Oh," he answered, "it isn't very important what the text is so long as it gets good space and is well displayed."—London Telegraph.
