Catarrh and Blood Disease

Catarrh and Blood Disease – Doctors Failed to Cure. Miss Mabel F. Dawkins, 1214 Lafay-ette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried sev-eral doctors and a dozen different rem-edies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sar-saparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suf-fering from catarrh." "I observe that on your sideboard you have several cut glass decanters and that each of them is half filled with what appears to be ardent spirits."

"Well, now, deacon, it isn't any thing of the kind. The bottles look so pretty on the sideboard that I just filled them half way with some floor stain and furniture polish, just for appearances."

"That's why I'm cautioning you, sister," replied the deacon. "Feeling a trifle weak and faint, I helped my-self to a dose from the big bottle in the middle."

Wild Oats.

Arthur Lefevre, the well-known Texas author, said in Victoria, according to the Kansas City Star, apropos of the Texas prohibition campaign: "That reminds me of a happening at the University of Virginia during my student days in '84.

"There was a Baltimore freshman at the varsity whose father got several letters about his boy's wild waysabout his fondness for peach-andhoney and such like heavy drinks. These letters grieved the old man to the heart. He wrote to the freshman and in reply got a general denial of all the charges. "Evidence, however, continued to pour in, and finally the father decided on a secret journey to Charlottesville. He timed himself to arrive late at night. It was, in fact, 2 o'clock in the morning when he rang the bell of his son's boarding house.

French Honor.

The French playwright had begun the third act of his latest problem drama. It was to be a great act, an act that required expression, repression, even suppression.

The heroine had just fallen across the threshold she had disgraced, and was about to utter her first impas-there in the best of humor. He got sioned speech, when the playwright's valet appeared in the doorway. "M'sieur no doubt remembers that he has to fight M. Rene Slosh at 3 o'clock ?" The dramatist threw down his pen. "No; I had forgotten."

Casting a look of poignant regret at his manuscript, he sought the field of honor and almost immediately jabbed his rapier through the waistband of his opponent.

Then he returned home. Again he took up the pen. The valet reappeared "M'sieur fights the Duc de Mushead uals. Often the whims of certain consumers are allowed to accentuate minor factors. Again, with many too much importance is given to aroma, a factor concerning which no very accurate information can be given as to actual value. The geographical origin not infrequently is a prominent subconscious factor in the determination of quality, notwithstanding the fact that hops from different parts of the same identical region often differ more widely than hops from regions widely separated. This factor also accounts for the fact that the quantity of hops sold on the market as coming from a certain locality often exceeds greatly the actual output of the region specified. To overcome this difficulty certain legal restrictions have been made in some countries. In Germany and Austria regulations exist which require that the package of hops shall be sealed and accompanied by a certificate in order that their origin may be guaranteed in the interests of both grower and consumer. In England, also, hops must be branded with the name and address of the grower. These very legal requirements indicate a widespread inability on the part of the consumer to judge the quality of hops. Recently a local hop dealer told the author of an actual happening which aptly illustrates the point in question. Some Idaho hop growers were enthusiastic over the quality of their hops and placed large labels on the bales stating that they were Idaho hops.
