Newspaper Has Record for Size.
The largest newspaper in the world was the Illuminated Quadruple Constellation, which appeared in New York on Independence day, 1858. Its dimensions equaled that of a billiard-table—eight feet long by six feet wide; and, strange to say for an American publication, it had no advertisements. A copy of this mammoth newspaper production can be seen at the Newspaper Museum of Aix-la-Chapelle, France. Its price was fifty cents.

PURE-BRED SIRE PROFITABLE
When Colt Reaches Market Age High Price Paid as Service Fee Is More Than Saved to Owner.

As a business proposition it pays to breed mares to pure-bred stallions, although the service fees of such horses are higher than those of the grade or mongrel and scrub. The fees of the latter are $5 and $10 less at the time of service, but when the colt reaches market age the saving is lost. There is at that time a difference of at least $100 in value in favor of the colt from the pure-bred sire, so that the higher service fee has proved a profitable investment. Then, too, there is a ready, appreciative outside market for the good grade colt, while the scrub goes to the local buyer at low figures and there is little if any demand for such horses.

We are fast improving our cattle, sheep and hogs. Our grains and fodder crops are up to date in purity of seed, quality and average returns. Our horses, however, are away behind the procession. The use of grade, scrub and mongrel stallions keeps them there and their production is profitless.

It is high time to put our horses on a plane with our other animals in point of breeding and quality, and it can only be done by owners of mares absolutely refusing to patronize stallions other than those of pure breeding, soundness, prepotency and high individual character and quality. When such sires can be found the service fee is of little moment. The colt will pay for the fees and return fine profits when sold. The continuous use of pure-bred sires, intelligent employment, will also quickly fill the state with high grade mares in place of the sorry aggregation of mongrels and misfits now disgracing many farms.

DYNAMITE LARGELY INCREASES YIELD OF DIFFERENT CROPS

By Use of Explosive Farmer Is Enabled to Blow Out Boulders and Stumps; Drain Marsh Land and Improve Soil by Making It Porous—Trees Make Rapid Growth.

An Explosion of Dynamite.

At last the American farmer has found a new way of raising better crops. He has put dynamite to an agricultural use. With dynamite he can blast stumps and boulders from his land, he can drain marsh land and make it usable, and he can improve the earth so by shaking it up and making it porous that trees, grain and vegetables grow with phenomenal rapidity.

This new agricultural science has been used extensively for only two or three years. At first the farmer was dubious and afraid of dynamite. He considered it a dangerous explosive, used only by anarchists and safe-breakers. But the more progressive members of the agricultural fraternity tried the "new-fangled scheme" and found it good. Crops were doubled to the acre, trees planted in dynamited ground spread their roots through the loosened earth, drank in the moisture and nourishment and thrived wonderfully.

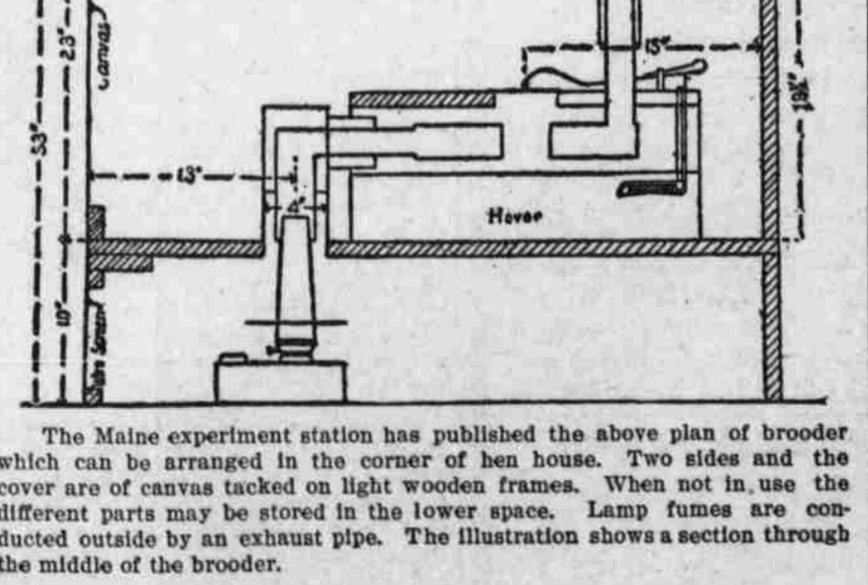

Experiments were made with corn and other vegetables planted at the same time in fields side by side, one of which had been dynamited, the other only plowed. The product in the dynamited ground soon outstripped the other.

Last year 250,000 American farmers used dynamite. This year the experts tell us 500,000 farmers will use it. Knowledge is growing. Consequently a new profession has sprung up—that of the professional blaster. Many farmers want their fields dynamited, but don't care to handle the explosive themselves. They would rather employ an experienced man, skilled in the use of dynamite, to do the work for them, even if it does cost a little more.

The professional blaster is a man used to handling dynamite, who knows how to explode it in the way that it will do the most good and no harm. He frequently goes about the country, advertising his coming beforehand in rural newspapers. Often the branches out, becomes a contractor and has several crews of experienced blasters under him. There are a great many more young men learning agricultural blasting in this country today than there are learning to build airplanes.

Dynamite, while a dangerous explosive, is not half as dangerous as most persons think it. Handled by a skilled person, who is used to it and knows how to take the proper precautions, there is little or no danger. Anarchists, as a matter of fact, do not use dynamite in bomb-throwing, and neither do burglars use it in "cracking" safes. What they use is nitroglycerine. There is an erroneous and widespread impression that a dynamite cartridge will explode if dropped on the ground or thrown against the body of a person. The efforts of the government and the leading railroads to perfect plans and methods for draining the vast area of swamp now covering millions of acres of rich, verdant soil have directed the attention of the general public toward the importance of increasing the cultivated area of the country.

In ditching with dynamite the first thing done is the locating of the proposed ditch. Then the width and depth are decided on. Holes are punched at intervals of about two feet along the course of the center of the ditch. In each of these holes a cartridge is tamped and "tamped" in with some mud. A row of ten cartidges is made 150 or 200 feet long and only the center cartridge is primed with a fuse and blasting cap.

The Maine experiment station has published the above plan of brooder which can be arranged in the corner of hen house. Two sides and the cover are of canvas tacked on light wooden frames. When not in use the different parts may be stored in the lower space. Lamp funes are conducted outside by an exhaust pipe. The illustration shows a section through the middle of the brooder.

NEW MACHINE IS DEATH TO WEEDS
Contrivance Effectively Burns Them Off and Extinguishes Flames Immediately Afterward.

A machine which it is asserted will destroy weeds by fire and extinguish the flames and sparks immediately afterward to prevent fire from spreading is one of the recent inventions described in Good Roads. It uses crude oil which is driven by boiler pressure into a mixer, where it combines with steam at a heat sufficient to vaporize the oil. From the mixer the oil and steam are conveyed through a tube to burners, combustion takes place, and the flames are driven down to the roots of the weeds with a steam pressure of 120 pounds. Practically any number of burners may be used. By using a fine spray of oil it is possible to burn out stubborn growths like salt grass and other stubborn weeds while they are green. By this method the gutters of residential streets, where the traffic is not heavy enough to keep down the weeds, may be kept clear.

The burner is covered with an apron of sheet steel, lined with fireproof material an inch thick, to localize the fire and prevent damage to fences, shrubbery, etc. After the flames have done its work it is extinguished by a fine spray of water forced over the ground.
A hand burner is recommended for clearing gutters. This is a small tongue, mounted on a cart with the tongue fastened to the rear of the machine in such a way that it can be guided along the line. It is claimed that 20 miles can be cleared in a day, and all seeds and roots destroyed.

BUTTERFLY IS TRANSPARENT

Prof. Beebe Describes Insect Through Whose Outstretched Wings Objects Are Clearly Seen.

In "Our Search for a Wilderness," William Beebe of the New York Zoological park, describes his first sight of the transparent butterfly—Hoeraera piers—of British Guiana, an insect through whose outstretched wings any substance on which it rests can be clearly seen.
"As we crossed a swirling creek on the trunk of a mighty fallen tree, something fluttered ahead," he writes. "We could not see what it was. Closer we came, and still the object remained indistinct; we seemed to see a butterfly, and yet that appeared impossible. At last we marked it down on a fern frond, and crept up until our eyes were within two feet of it. Nothing was visible but the graceful lace-work of the frond, until a slanting beam of sunlight struck it, and there, close before us, was a butterfly that spread fully three inches, but was wholly transparent, save for three tiny spots of azure near the margin of each hind wing.
"As we looked, it drifted to a double-headed flower of scarlet, and when it alighted, the scarlet of the flower and the green of the leaf were as distinct as if seen through thin mica, and the faint gray haze of the insect's wings was marked only by the indistinct venation."

AMUSING FOUR-HANDED GAME

Can Be Played With Partners or All Can Play Alone—Board Contains 100 Squares.

To make possible a four-handed game of checkers, two playing partners, or all playing their own game,

Four-Handed Checkerboard.

The board shown in the illustration has been constructed in France. The game is played with either 20, 26, 56 or 80 men, and the squares are in four different colors which divide the board diagonally into four triangles. It is well to note that the ordinary French checkerboard contains one hundred squares instead of the 64 of the American board.

YOUNG BEAVER'S DAY'S WORK

Industrious Little Animal in Regent's Park Gardens, London, Falls Tree Two Feet Thick.

A young beaver in Regent's Park Gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree twelve feet long and two feet six inches thick, just as the town clock sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground.
That done he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until four o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until 5:30 o'clock.
Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground, he portioned it out mentally, and again began to gnaw.
He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter.

Why Shoes Have Tongues.
Every one that wears lace shoes knows that there is a tongue of leather under the place where the two sides of the shoe meet, but there is none in button shoes. Probably very few persons know that this is a comparatively modern idea and is not for the purpose of keeping the laces from hurting the instep, but is to keep out rain and snow.
There would be no discomfort if the laces touched the sock, but no matter how closely a shoe may be laced up there is always a slight space which would allow rain to reach the stocking.
Not a Frog in His Throat.
Ever talk so much that flies get down your throat? A horse down in Connecticut last summer was not talking, but he was holding up his mouth, wide open, to engulf an apple from the limb of a tree. There was a swallow that had been frightened and it flew blindly into the horse's mouth. The horse choked to death and so did the swallow. Even if the horse had been able to swallow the swallow he would have remained horse.
