dog is almost invariably a decided change in its disposition. It either becomes more cross, irritable and sulky or shows unusual friendliness and wants to be continually petted. Obviously in the latter state it is a most dangerous menace to its owner, who easily may be infected through a scratch on the hand or by a bite during unusual playfulness. In either case the dog soon becomes extremely restless, lying down, then almost immediately getting up to run around nervously for a few seconds and again lying down. This rotation it keeps up without interruption for some time. The dog is easily startled, growls and barks at the least provocation. The owner or keeper who knows its disposition will easily discern this change work, agricultural products, canned and by simply shutting up the dog securely for observation will obviate all

SERVED IN A COLD PIE.

Sir Jeffrey Hudson's Introduction to Queen Henrietta.

Perhaps the most remarkable dwarf on record was Sir Jeffrey Hudson, the little fellow whom Scott introduces in "Peveril of the Peak." He was born in Rutlandshire, England, in 1619.

When eight years of age he was presented by the Duke of Buckingham to Queen Henrietta in a cold pie. He afterward became attached to the court of Charles I. At one of the court masks the king's porter, a man of gigantic size, who used to torment the little dwarf, pulled from one pocket a loaf of bread and from the other Jeffrey, much to the surprise and amusement of the company present. Jeffrey was at this time only eighteen inches in height. He remained at this stature until he was thirty years of age, after which a curious exception to the laws of growth took place, since Jeffrey rapidly grew to be three feet nine inches in height, whereas most men do not grow a quarter of an inch after the age of thirty. This dwarf had an enormous head and very large hands and feet; otherwise his proportions were symmetrical and his face was considered handsome.

The White Ship.

The age of chivalry is supposed to be that age when young men dressed themselves up in armor and pounded one another with lances and swords. It is perhaps well to recall the story of the White Ship, which in the year 1120 carried to England the grandson of the Norman conqueror. This ship was captained by the son of the man who had steered across the conqueror himself. The ship sank. There was only one lifeboat. The young prince was put in that, to be rowed away. His sister screamed. He put back to save her also. So many leaped into the boat from the sinking ship that all were drowned except one butcher, who clung to the mast. The passengers on this ship were 140 picked and noble knights, guarding the person of their future king .- Collier's Weekly.

A peculiar and barbaric marriage custom of the Kabyle women of Africa consists in the martyrdom of the bride. who, clad in her wedding thery, stands through an entire morning against a pillar in the village square, her eyes closed, her arms pressed to her sides and with only the narrow base of the column for a footbold, the while a ring Christian church, across mill race, of villagers criticise and comment on her appearance.-Argonaut.

HENRY BELL'S COMET.

The First Steamer That Plied For Hire In Great Britain.

Among the curiosities of advertising may surely be placed the first advertisement of the first steamer that plied for hire in Great Britain-namely, Henry Bell's Comet. Thus ran the advertisement in the Glasgow Courier of "Steam passage boat, the Comet, between Glasgow, Greenock and Helensburg. For passengers only. The subscriber having at much expense fitted up a handsome vessel to ply upon the river Clyde between Glasgow and Greenock-to sail by the power of wind, air and steam—he intends that the vessel shall leave the Broomielaw on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays about midday or at such time thereafter as may answer from the state of the tide and to leave Greenock on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in the morning to suit the tide. The elegance, comfort, safety and speed of this vessel require only to be proved to meet the approbation of the public, and the proprietor is determined to do everything in his power to merit public encouragement. The terms are for the present 4 shillings for the best cabin and 3 shillings for the second, but beyond these rates nothing is to be allowed to servants or any other person employed about the

THE GOLDFINCH.

Changes In Plumage That Are Puzzling to the Novice. Most every one in America is acquainted with the goldfinch, but many people know the bird by the name of ettuce bird on account of its bright yellow color. Goldfinch is a very appropriate name, as the bright yellow of the male when he is in breeding plumage is like burnished gold. The female goldfinch is more modestly dressed than her mate. The changes in plumage of the male are very interesting and to the novice somewhat puz-

Until the student becomes acquainted with the bird he may wonder why he sees no males during the winter. The truth is at this season the flocks of supposed female goldfinches are really of both sexes, the male bird having assumed in the previous fall, usually by the end of October, a plumage closely resembling that of the female and young bird of the year. The male retains this inconspicuous dress until late in February, when one can notice a gradual change taking place in some

This renewal of feathers is actively continued through March and April, and by May 1 our respleadent bird is with us again. The song period with the male goldfinch continues as long as he wears his gold and black livery, for it commences as early as the middle of March and ends late in August.

A Successful Interview. The late Arthur McEwan when he was working on a San Francisco newspaper was attracted by the activities of a politician who was vulgar, illiterate and hideously ungrammatical in his method of expression. McEwan looked up this man and had a talk with him. Then he went back to the office and wrote the interview in the most perfect English, brilliant, polished and crammed the story full of classical allusions, quotations and big words. It was a most scholarly production, and McEwan considered the satire great. Next day McEwan had a call from the politician. "I wanter thank yez for that interview," he said. "It's bully. Just what I said. You must be a grand shorthand reporter."-Saturday Evening Post.

FAVORABLE FOR AN OPEN RIVER

LYMAN RETURNS FROM CANVAS OF NORTHWEST STATES.

Predicts Completion of Open Columbia River With Finishing of Panama Canal.

A Walla Walla dispatch says that Professor W. D. Lyman, of Whitman college, who has been spending his summer vacation in the interests of the open Columbia river, has returned. from an extended tour of Washington and Oregon during which he has delivered many addresses on the subject, and reports everything favorable for the completion of the work on the river by the time the Panama canal is ready for use in 1915.

While absent from the city, Mr. Ly-man visited in Vancouver, Portland, Raymond and South Bend, and found the people of those cities enthusiastic in the movement. He expresses the belief that one more good appropriation will complete the work at Celilo, and the jetty at the mouth of the Columbia. The sum of $42,000,000 will be available next year for the rivers and harbors work, and it is thought the Columbia will receive enough to nsure an open river by the time the Panama canal is completed The work in the Columbia river easin is being organized for the purpose of securing funds with which to sarry on the campaigu, and in South Bend the Southwestern Washington Development League has been organized. A meeting is to be held in that city August 29-31, which Professor Lyman expects to attend, and the movement is expected to receive substantial support.

Mr. Lyman also visited Seattle, Everett aud Mount Vernon while absent tue city, and reports all com munities in sympathy with the movement for an open river.

Fishermen's Delight.

The Hermiston Herald informs its readers that Friday of last week, 20 cans containing 10,000 bass all the way from one to three inches in length were put off the train at that place and a little later taken to the project reservoir and liberated. The fish were from one of the state hatcheries. There have already been a quantity of bass planted in the reseroir and fishermen report sport good. With this additional number turned loose, the reservoir will prove a very attractive place for sportsmen of the tod. While fishing is probibited from any bridge or stationary object built into the water, fishing from the bank or from a boat is allowed.
