ATHENA, ORE., JULY 18 1913

That Governor Sulzer is to have no holiday fight in his efforts to carry out the pledge of the platform on which he was elected, is evident now. That he is not shirking the fight is evident also. A new factor has entered American politics, and thus far in his gubernatorial career Governor Sulzer has proved his fitness for the task it imposes on him. The idea, once commonplace of politics, that "platforms are to get in on, not to stand on," is obsolete. To the surprise of political bosses like those of his party who are at odds with Governor Sulzer now, platform pledges are demanding recognition at par. So great a change can not establish itself without tremendous conflicts, conflicts of a kind which men in Sulzer's position have seldom dared to challenge even when they wished to. But Sulzer, who fortunately understands the game, is still more fortunately determined to play it for the public interest, instead of private, party or factional interest. At last, it would seem, the democrats of New York have elected a governor who knows how to get it, and who has the skill and the courage to get it for them.

It is everywhere said, and with finality, that American women must disown and rebuke the methods of the Pankhurst faction in England. Equal suffrage must come through steady continuance in the course heretofore followed in Oregon and other states of the nation. Nor is it sufficient to refuse to aid or endorse the English militants. They must be read out of the entire movement in all countries, or the evil which they do will live long after they are dead. Not by violence, not by breaking the laws, not by ignoring the plain ethics upon which human society rests, can any group of women secure their desires. Mrs. Pankhurst's "food strike" is stupid, and worse than useless. Before long her deluded followers will manage to kill someone. Then we shall see the end of these riotous bacchantes who have disgraced their cause and have given sharp weapons to every opponent of equal suffrage in America.

Monopolistic control of credit is the chief evil mentioned by the President in urging currency reform. It was the same evil which brought about investigation of the so-called money trust by the last congress. That investigation was not complete, but it did shed some light on the subject. The testimony of the late J. P. Morgan revealed the fact that twenty-five billions of deposits are held by a chain of banks practically controlled by a combination of various privileged interests, including the Standard Oil interests, the steel trust, big insurance companies and great railroad corporations. Thus the so-called Money Trust appears to be a formidable combination of other trusts.

Speaker Clark has performed a public service in calling attention to the loss resulting from emigration of American farmers to Western Canada. As a remedy Mr. Clark suggests that "Congress should make our home-land conditions as easy as possible, compatible with safety, and should increase the area for home building by judicious encouragement of both irrigation and drainage."

Bulgaria, weakened in strength and ease from bearing the brunt of battle in conquering the unspeakable Turk, is now being crushed by the Allies, being made the goat at the behest of the powers. The only Balkan nation that was capable of bringing lasting peace is being crushed.

If we had war with "Japan or Germany, we should be licked out of our boots," says Chauncey Depew. Perhaps so, but even then we might continue to fight. Some of this country's most glorious victories were won by men who were barefooted—and cold and hungry.

The telephone and mail box should form a part of the equipment of every rural school. They would bring the parents and outside world into closer touch with both teacher and pupil, and help solve many of the rural teacher's problems.

Here is the devil's name separated: Take off the d and you have evil; remove the e and you behold the vil or vile; discard the v and you have ill; take off the l and you see 'l'.

A sub-committee of the United States committee on Territories has drawn up a bill providing for government construction and operation of railroads and for government operation and development of coal mines in Alaska.

Some 20,000 Bulgarians and 15,000 Servians were killed or wounded in a battle between those people. 'Twas one of the bloodiest battles fought in that war-scoured, sin-blistered country.

A literary smart-aleck translated the word virgin thus: "Vir, a man; gin, a trap; virgin, a mantrap." Some girl must have jilted that translator.

The "insidious lobby" probe has brought out Malball—and others. As usual, the President has the laugh on his critics.

"The LIFE of a wagon is what counts
—that's why I buy a Studebaker"

"That's reasonable, isn't it?"

"A wagon that doesn't last is expensive no matter what price you pay for it."

"Suppose you buy three wagons, one after the other, and the three of them don't last as long as one Studebaker—which is the best bargain?"

"I didn't find this out myself. I heard my grandfather say it a good many years ago. He said he had proved that it paid to buy a Studebaker. I followed his advice to my own satisfaction."

"A wagon can't have life in it unless it has the material and work and finish in it. The Studebaker people have been making vehicles for sixty years. They ought to know how to make wagons right—and they do. They have the reputation because they've produced the goods. They don't put the name Studebaker on until the wagon's right, and when you see the name Studebaker on a vehicle of any kind it is your insurance of quality."

"That's why I buy a Studebaker. I trust a Studebaker wagon because I trust the people that make them. It's good business."

"A Studebaker promise is always made good."
