IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED
Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanses little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Slack children need not be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Applied Logic.
An onlooker shook his head as he watched a steam shovel bite off earth by the ton. He said: "It throws men out of work; it loads those cars faster than 100 men with picks and shovels could do it."

But another onlooker answered: "See here, mister, if it would be better to employ 100 men with picks and shovels on this job wouldn't it be better still by your way of thinking to employ 1000 men with forks and tablespoons?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Had No Regrets.
Mr. Cohen is the owner of several apartment houses which represent the fruit of many years of toil in the shop of careful business methods as a manufacturer and of strict frugality. His first job in this country, as a janitor, he lost after a few days because he could not read nor write. Recently the president of a bank where he does business said to him:

"What a pity it is, Mr. Cohen, that you never learned to read and write. There is no telling what a man with your natural business talent might have accomplished."

"I know that," he answered promptly. "If I could read and write I would be yet today the janitor."—New York Tribune.

Not Worth Paying For.
Ed and Joe were walking along a country road one hot day in July and became very thirsty, but could not find any water. Coming at last to a farmer's house, and noticing a woman standing in the door, they went up to her and requested a drink of water.

She said: "We haven't had any rain for three weeks and the well is dry."

"Then please give us a drink of milk," the woman replied that the milk was all taken to market, but added that she had some buttermilk stored away and would give the thirsty travelers a drink of it.

After quenching their thirst with buttermilk they offered to pay the kind woman for it, but she refused the money, saying: "I was going to give it to the pigs, anyway."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

An old but sturdy Irishman, who had made a reputation as a gang "boss" got a job with a railroad construction company at Port au Prince, Haiti. One day when the sun was hotter than usual his gang of Haitians began to shirk, and as the chief engineer rode up on his horse he heard the Irishman shout: "Allez!—you sons of guns—Allez!" Then turning to the engineer, he said: "I curse the day I learned their language."—From the Argonaut.

DROPPED ELEPHANT IN TIME

Hunter's Narrow Escape From Huge Brute Which He Had Wounded and Maddened With Pain.

Capt. C. H. Sigand tells in his new book, "Hunting the Elephant in Africa," of a narrow escape he had from a young bull elephant. The animal had charged the hunting party, with the usual result that the natives fled at their best speed. He dodged sharply from the path of the enemy and tripped over a fallen tree, dropping his rifle and just managing to seize it by the muzzle as the elephant was about to tread on it. He then dived head foremost into the branches of the fallen tree: "I made frantic efforts to crawl through, but a stout branch resisted my progress, and at the same moment the Galongwa pushed in after me and pushed me through the branches to the other side. Two drops of blood from his forehead fell on my shorts, one on the thigh and one on the knee. Instead of pushing me straight through in front of him, though, he kicked me sideways. The impetus he gave me bent aside the stubborn branch and the next moment I found myself crawling out on hands and knees on one side of the tree, with rifle still grasped by the muzzle, whilst the elephant was executing a dance and stamping up the ground the other side, five yards from me, evidently thinking that I was under his feet.

"I quickly changed my rifle round and discharged it into his stern. It was the last cartridge in the rifle. Having fired, the rifle was taken out of my hands, and I found Matola, who had counted the shots, standing beside me, serving me the second rifle as a waiter might offer a dish. By some oversight it had not been loaded and I had given strict orders that none of my men were ever to load or unload my rifles. Being a good soldier, Matola had not disobeyed this order, even under these extreme circumstances, but had gone the nearest to loading it he could.

The breach was open and he was holding the clip in position with his thumb just over the magazine. All I had to do was to press it down as I took hold of the rifle, close the bolt, and I was ready to fire. The elephant was turning round and I shot him in the brain, dropping him dead."

Craze for Luxuries.
The craze for luxuries is one of the prevailing ills of the times. It is perfectly natural for men and women to want the good things of life, but it is mighty bad policy for them to attempt to get these things when they have not got the means. This fact is emphasized by a report from Boston which says that many of the residents of that once conservative town have sacrificed their homes in order to indulge in the luxury of motoring. The story of a man selling his home for the purpose of purchasing an automobile was formerly regarded as a good joke for the vaudeville artists, but now it has become a tragic fact. The report from the Hub may be exaggerated, but there is no reason to doubt that thousands of persons go to the wall every year in a vain and foolish attempt to live beyond their means. The desire to imitate those who are richer than themselves is the rock on which many an otherwise happy home is wrecked. Luxury once tasted seems to get in the blood and the only remedy is a determined effort to get back to the simple life.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Not a Real "Bad Man."
A cowboy calling himself the Tacoma Kid has been arrested for shooting up London. We fail to recall the young man's title in the list of moving-picture performers, but he must be the real thing because he wore the full alfalfa regalia and fired a gun out of a car window—to the amazement and alarm of several women and children.

Of course there was no chance for him to fling himself across a rough neck canyon and clutter down Fall Hall to Windsor Forest. No, the boobies got him and haled him before a magistrate, where he was convicted and fined something like $27 in the coin of Uncle Sam's realm.

The episode recalls the remark of the Goldfield bartender who was asked what he would do if a so-called bad man tried to hold up the establishment.

"Why," he replied with an elaborate sneer, "if such a worm crawled in here we'd break him in two and scatter him along the roadway!"

From which it will be inferred that the simon-pure bad man is a thing of the romantic past.

Angel Child.
Little Louis was a solemn-eyed, spiritual-looking child. One morning he came to his aunt, who was visiting the family, and asked:

"Auntie, is this God's day?"
"No, dearie," replied the aunt; "this is not Sunday. It is Wednesday."
"I'm sorry," said the boy sadly, as he went back to his play.

Each succeeding day he asked the same question of the aunt in his serious manner, and she said to his mother:

"Really, I don't think that child will live long. He is too good for this world."
When Sunday morning came the question was repeated, and the aunt replied:

"Yes, my darling; this is God's day."
"Oh, goodie!" cried the boy. "Then where is the funny paper?"

Naming the Weapons.
The Irishman in France had been challenged to a duel. "Shure," he cried, "we'll fight wid shillalaha."
"That won't do," said his second. "As the challenged party, you have the right to choose the arms, but chivalry demands that you should decide upon a weapon with which Frenchmen are familiar."
"Is that so, indeed?" returned the generous Irishman. "Then we'll fight it out wid gullotines."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence.

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight, and are forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success now is the result of the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Post Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt.—"We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me."—Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine
It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

SAM JOHNSON WAS REBUKED

Cleveland Who Had Temerity to Whistle at Tramp is Promptly and Justly Reproved.

Sam Johnson swears that this happened to him Wednesday morning. There was a ring at the back door bell, and he answered, being the only member of the household astray. He opened the door, and there stood a hobo, who said in part:

"Coulder spare a poor feller a bite ter eat?"
"I'll see," said the hospitable Sam. "Just wait outside while I look."

He looked into the larder, and there found a few things left over which he thought might appeal to a hungry man. Then he went to the door to apprise the tramp of his success. The tramp wasn't there. He was on the back step of the next house, telling the same sad tale.

Sam called "Hey, there!" but the tramp didn't pay attention. "Hey, you!" shouted Sam, with similar results. Then Mr. Johnson put his fingers to his mouth and gave a shrill whistle. The tramp turned and regarded him angrily.

"Say," said the tramp, "who do you think you're callin' to—a dog?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Story With a Moral.
"Say, Uncle By, why do you let your farm run down so shamefully? A little work would put it in good shape."
"I know it. But what's the use? A feller was along here a while ago and told me there might be valuable minerals under both my meadows—an' maybe radium in th' ridge up yonder. I'd be a dum fool to waste my time farmin', wouldn't I?"

Splendid Idea.

"I agree with you. But they are going to remedy that soon."
"Fine. In what way?"
"Haven't you heard? The movies are going to put on up-to-date vaudeville acts."

Just Once More.
The living skeleton wished another engagement at the museum, but the manager demurred.
"Perhaps I can work in something new," suggested the thin one.
"Well," observed the manager, "I've given you three engagements as a living skeleton; I reckon I can use you for one more if you will agree to go as a dead one."—Pulitzer's Magazine.

An Unlucky Man.
"Well, I'll pay you that dinner I lost on the Giants. What will you have?"
"I think I'll take steak and mushrooms."
"I'm afraid to take a chance on mushrooms. A man as unlucky as I am would be apt to get toadstools."

The Two Finally Agree.
"Well, there's one thing I will say in favor of the hats and gowns of the present time."
"Say it."
"They're every bit as funny and grotesque as the pictures in the fashion magazines show them to be."

Gynical Reflection.
"You don't seem to care for the numerous compliments extended to this work of yours," said the admiring friend.
"No," replied the artist; "in order to secure a first-class advertisement, a picture has to be roasted."
