ATHENA, ORE., MAR. 27, 1914

The Press has made arrangements through the American Press Association, of which it is a member, whereby it secures for publication a series of articles on home trade building and which shows up in their true light the nefarious practices of the mail order houses. This paper will publish the articles free of any charge to the business men of Athena, saving them the cost of such "special" service as was offered them by a traveling representative this week. The Press articles, the first installment of which will appear next week, are arguments from the pen of Thomas J. Sullivan, economical expert and exponent of better business development, whose talent and ability have long been sought by the leading magazines of the nation. These articles are educational to the buying public and every merchant in Athena will be benefited by them, whether he is an advertiser in these columns or not.

Woolgrowers of Oregon have been cautioned about hasty contracting of their wool. The National Wool Warehouse & Storage company of Chicago, predicts higher prices and warns growers of the inadvisability of making contracts at this time. Telegrams carrying the warning have been received at wool centers all over the Northwest. Interest centers in this warning from the fact that buyers are endeavoring to use the Democratic tariff reduction embargo as a leverage to buy up the new wool crop as cheaply as possible, when the fact is apparent that there is a steady upward trend in domestic and foreign wool markets, based upon stable conditions.

The people of Umatilla County, generally speaking, will be pleased to hear of the entrance of Joseph N. Scott as a candidate for Joint Senator to represent Umatilla, Union and Morrow counties in the legislature. And none more so than his friends in Athena and vicinity his home community. Joe is one of the cleanest, most capable men to enter the campaign thus far for any office within the gift of the people. That he will have a platform, goes without saying; and that he will stay with any pledges he makes the people through his platform, if elected, does not require even assurance, when the calibre and integrity of Joe Scott is taken into consideration.

Oregon's "Blue Sky" law is to have its constitutionality tested in the courts. An attack will be made upon it by the "National Mercantile Company," some sort of a concern with a Canadian charter, having its offices in Vancouver, B. C. Since the Blue Sky law went into effect in this state it has become a noticeable fact that salesmen of stock in wildcat schemes have passed up Athena purchasers. "Wireless" stock is unheard of here and rubberneck plantations are unloaded elsewhere.

If American wool growers can add three cents per pound to the value of their product if they would send it to market graded and put up as attractively as are the Australian wools, why don't they do it? Sand and grease are not purchased by the buyers; it is the wool they are after, hence close grading results often to the detriment of the seller.

Good clothes give a "front" to the wearer, it is said. Evidently this applies to Villa, who some days ago donned the first military uniform he has ever worn. He immediately ordered the advance of his army upon the stronghold of Torress. The result is known.

A mail order house in Chicago did $3 million dollars worth of business during 1912. They declared a dividend of 17 per cent. All this business was secured through the medium of a picture book.

James Ross and his daughter Janet from Canada visited relatives in Chicago recently. Day after day Janet and her father went sightseeing, always together.

Janet's aunt, noticing this, one day suggested that she let her father go downtown alone some time, jokingly adding, "Men do not like to have women always tagging along."

"Aye, aye, but he wants me," explained Janet earnestly. "He can't thole to stir out o' the hoose his lane. Ye wadna believe hoo fast he is one where w'oot me. Ye see, father hank's sic brail Scotch that stranger folk dinna ken what it's about, an' I hae tae gang w' him tae doe the conversin."—Everybody's.

HUMAN BROTHERHOOD.

When Disaster Came All Were Kin and Equality Reigned.
Friends who went through the horrors of the San Francisco earthquake in 1906 and kept their spiritual senses alert tell me that its most poignant experience was not one of horror or of pity, but of the almost miraculous attainment of human brotherhood.

"Just after the disaster, when rich and poor waited in line together for their allowance of bread and milk, I saw," says a friend, "a rich woman from the St. Francis Hotel lying asleep on a doorstep with her head on a muf. A long sable coat was thrown over her, and under one corner of it a young Japanese boy, a perfect stranger to her, was curled up asleep. * * * "Everybody was everybody's friend, and, though we were all dog tired, there was not a word of complaint or ill nature. To bivouac together in the park and care for each other's babies around fires of driftwood gathered on the beach transformed men and women into defenseless children of the earth, revealed each to each by their innate loveliness. "Common danger and mutual helpfulness, common misfortune, common work, common confrontation with the elemental, brought a swift achievement of almost ideal brotherhood. A crushing blow made all the world for a time kin."—Atlantic Monthly.

TAKING A PHOTOGRAPH.

So Easy Nowadays That It Positively Peaved the Old Timer.
"I'm in an organization where the members are expected to furnish the secretary with photographs of themselves."
"Yes?"
"Well, I hadn't been to a photographer's for twenty years. I hated to go. I remembered the old hand clamp, and the twisted spine, and the awkward hands, and the depressed chin, and the silly smile. It seemed to me worse than the dentist's. But I had to go. I walked into the photographer's big room like a Christian martyr, and the operator pointed out a chair, and I sat down, and he said, 'That's all.' I asked him to repeat it. He did. Then I got out of the chair and went back to my office."
"Well?"
"Well, I don't feel right about it. It didn't seem to me worth while. I don't think the photographer treated me right. It looked to me as if he had a disagreeable job on his hands and wanted to shirk it. He should have fussed over me more. What do I know about posing? Besides, there wasn't time. 'That's all,' he said, and flipped me out of the chair. They didn't snub me that way twenty years ago, no, sir!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Brick Is Fool-Proof

When you decide to use brick in your building you are sure of one thing—the contractor cannot tamper with the material.
With both lumber and cement you are blindly trusting to the dealer and contractor. The chance is again you, for you have no way of knowing whether they are treating you honestly. You may find out afterwards—when it is too late.
Don't trust that material man; don't tempt the contractor's honesty.
Build with brick—the one material that is actually fool-proof.
