At a business meeting of the ladies of the Methodist Aid society yesterday, it was decided that their annual bazaar this year should be held about the middle of November. This early decision is reached and announced so that all interested may have ample time in which to plan and make articles for sale at that time.
The contract for the warehouse and storage tanks of the Standard Oil company's distributing station in this city, has been let, and work on the same will commence in a few days. The Athena band has secured an engagement to play at Pendleton's Fourth of July celebration. Walla Walla was also after the band to fill an engagement there on the Fourth, but Pendleton people who heard the band at the Caledonian and Pioneer picnics, lost no time in securing this splendid musical organization to head the celebration program at the county seat.
Rev. J. G. Adams of Fort Worth, Texas, styled by the press as the dynamite temperance and Prohibition evangelist of America, will speak in the Christian church tonight, Saturday evening and Sunday evening. As a humorist, his equal has not been seen here lately. He has a wonderful mimic ability, and is a power in the temperance cause. This will be a great series. Come out and hear him.
M. W. Smith, erstwhile local agent for the O. W. R. & N., but now a life insurance agent of quality, delighted his Athena friends by dropping in on them unawares, Wednesday afternoon. Outdoor pursuits evidently agree with "Martha," for he has appreciably gained in avoirdupois; but he has yet to go some before he can pull down the scales with Aus Foss, the Press man, Hawks, and a few others of like obesity.
Next Sunday evening at the Methodist church, a splendid Children's Day program will be given, to which all are invited. Much time has been spent on preparation for this annual event, and an entertainment that will please old and young, will begin at 7:30. Rev. Gornall, who is at Dayton where he may be called for any church and community matter where his services may be needed, will return for the Sabbath.

The entertainment given in the Christian church Monday evening by the Christian Endeavor society of Pendleton was liberally patronized by Athena people, and was well received. The "old maids convention" was realistic, and the Pioneer Pedagogy and musical numbers were good. The young people made the trip by auto-track, and were accompanied by their pastor, Rev. T. E. Weaver of the Christian church in Pendleton.
Mrs. A. Mackenzie Meldrum, wife of the departing pastor of the Christian church, was presented this week by the ladies of the Mothers' Club, the W. C. T. U., in both of which organizations she has been an untiring worker, and other friends, with a beautiful gold tangle in token of the high estimation in which she is held. The tangle, engraved with her name, was presented by Mrs. B. H. Hill in a few well chosen words of appreciation for her help and encouragement during the four years of her residence here.
Five years ago John Wright lost three head of horses, which disappeared from the Bergovin ranch, where they were being pastured. The other day one of the horses was found in possession of a youth from near Freewater, but who works for a rancher in Camas Prairie. He produced the man from whom he purchased the horse, which has been held according to law by Mr. Wright. The stories of both boy and man seem to be straightforward, the man purchasing the horse four years ago from a Morrow county stockman, who will be asked to give an account of how he came into possession of the animal. Mr. Wright allowed the boy to retain possession of the horse temporarily.

THEY DON'T WASTE WORDS.
Nyasaland Natives Exist in a State of Partial Coma.
Referring to the native peculiarities in Nyasaland, the author of "Hunting the Elephant in Africa," Captain C. H. Stigand, comments on a certain state of coma into which the "boys" descend when there is no active work for them to do, or at least when there is no compulsion to do it. He believes that the native is capable of assuming a state in which the mind is absolutely detached and not working, and when in such a state he is only recalled by a start to his present surroundings.
The life of the head man of a village in Nyasaland, when not engaged in the strenuous pursuit of his official duties, is something like this: At sunrise he crawls out of his hut and sits outside. After a short time his wife crawls out and offers him some food. He eats this and then makes his way to a tree, perhaps a hundred yards from the village. Under this he sits in deep abstraction, till about noon a child brings him some food and water. After partaking of this he moves a little so as to get the afternoon shade. He then sits in deep meditation until sunset, when he crawls into his hut and goes to sleep.
Sometimes he is joined by a few other old men under his tree. They hardly ever speak to each other, and if they say anything it is to make some obvious remark, as, "There is a dog." "Yes, it is a dog." "Oh," "Ah," and a further period of silence.
