Immediately after announcement of the vote, the house adjourned, the crowds which had packed the galleries throughout the prolonged debate dispersing with mingled expressions of egret and jubilation.

Prohibition leaders declared that the najority for the resolution had fulfilled their expectations, as they had not hoped for a two-thirds vote at this time. Whether a similar resolution pending in the senate submitted by Senator Sheppard, of Texas, would reach a vote in the senate at this session was not certain. Administration leaders were inclined to believe, how ever, that it would not, in view of the action of the house. Notwithstanding repeated public as notwithstanding repeated public as-sertions that many members of the house would try to dodge a record vote on the issue, the rollcall disclosed a heavy attendance, larger than the average throughout the session. On the final vote 386 votes orded. To have carried the resolu tion would have required 258 affirma-tive votes. It thus failed by 61 votes.

It was at the conclusion of one of the most stirring contests of recent days in congress, and following votes on several amendments that the final on several amendments that the inal vote was reached. Representative Hobson had closed the general debate, participated in by all the house lead-ers, many of whom were repeatedly cheered by men and women in the crowded galleries. Speaker Clark re-estedly admonished the spectators to maintain order. Although advocates of the Hobson resolution freely predicted that it would receive a majority vote, many of them, including Mr. Hobson, had ceded at the start that the resolution would not receive the two-thirds ote necessary for its adoption. Before the final roll call, Represer tative Hobson presented an amendment, which was adpoted, giving to "the congress and states concurrently" the power to enforce the prohibition by eedful legislation. An amendment offered by Repres tative Adamson to give the states ab-solute control of prohibition under the proposed prohibition amendment was voted down on a rising vote, 179 to 82.
