He is undecided where he will locate to engage in business again.

Athens has challenged Pilot Rook, winner of the pennant in the Blue Mountain league for a series of games to decide the county championship, in event the Athens team wins the East End league pennant which in all probability will be the result. Manager Osborn will meet Blue Mountain league officials in Pendleton, Saturday when arrangements may be entered into. Fans are taking a three game series, one game to be played here, one at Pilot Rook, and in event of each team winning, the third game to be played on neutral grounds at Pendleton.

George Muller, who will be remembered as a baker doing business in this city five years ago was murdered in his bakery at Portland, California. The news of the death of Mr. Muller came to the bank here from his little daughter, who with her mother resides at Las Vegas, Nevada. The news of the terrible crime was read by many here in the newspapers at the time but few recognized the victim as being the former Athens baker. The crime was a most revolting one. After killing the man, the murderers placed the body in the oven over the furnace, in the hope of cremating it. When Muller left here he sold his place of business to Mr. Cruise, and followed his wife and daughter, who had preceded him to California, their former home.

The demonstration of fruit and vegetable canning and preserving given yesterday afternoon at the depot by Mrs. M. E. King, under the auspices of the O. W. R. & N. Co., was very successful, judging from the interest taken by local ladies. The car was filled to overflowing with interested observers of the canning methods and processes of canning these necessities of life. The lady announced that the object in these demonstrations is for the betterment of home conditions generally, in making the work of the housewife easier, and assisting her in making use of the plentiful supply of fruits and vegetables in season, so as to last throughout the year. Many questions were asked by the audience. Mrs. King was assisted in her demonstrations by Mrs. J. B. Mathers and Miss Hazel Parker.

That has given complete satisfaction. It is built to cut grain in the most economical way, maximum efficiency in the field with a minimum of trouble and repair cost. Practicality, ease of operation and features of merit all combined in what the needs of Cutting Machinery are demanding today. These can best be found in the Johnston line of harvesting machinery.

The manufacturers of this line of cutting machinery were established in 1871 and today they are putting 48 years of knowing how in every machine that leaves their factory. Johnston Harvesting Machinery is being sold today in most all civilized countries. Much time and money has been spent in perfecting their line of machinery to meet the rigid requirements of the Pacific Northwest. A policy of the Manufacturers is to know that every machine is in perfect running order before it leaves the factory. This is an assurance that it will do the work when placed in the field. All machines are guaranteed to the work for which they are intended.

ANCIENT WAR METHODS.

Did Hannibal Use Dynamite in His Passage of the Alps?

Every one knows the story of how Hannibal crossed the Alps. It is usual to assert that he demolished the rocks that opposed his progress with the aid of fire and vinegar. The word used by the Latin historians and which is ordinarily called in English translation "vinegar" is acetum.

The question has been raised by a European officer whether this is the true meaning of the original. He thinks that by acetum the historians intended to describe a substance resembling dynamite in its properties, and he invites chemists to consider the question whether the ancients may not have possessed a formula for making a powerful explosive of this kind.

He calls attention to the fact that two ancient historians, Marcus Graecus and Albert of Aix, speak of the existence of two kinds of acetum, one of which possessed greater energy than the other. A clue to the composition of this explosive may be found, he believes, in the fact that to acetum was ascribed the property of extinguishing the dreaded "Greek fire." He thinks the substance may have been strongly oxygenated.

Although to discover how Hannibal's "dynamite" was made would be to add nothing, perhaps, to our sense of the greatness of his achievements, yet such a discovery would certainly throw new light on some interesting events in the wars of antiquity.—Washington Star.
