Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern, judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all limes in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view that not only the judges, but barristers also, took up the custom throughout Europe.—London Graphic.

holiday. The country wheat markets were also quiet.

Grain farmers in the interior are holding their wheat firmly in anticipation of higher prices. They have followed this policy for the first two months of the season and are well satisfied with the results. As most of them are independent they are not likely to upset values by a general selling movement. As an indication of the way supplies are being held back in the country it is cited that on the lines of the Spokane & Inland rall-way there are now 1.366,676 bags of wheat, against 940,000 bags at this time last year.
