Attitude Toward Neighbers Unselfish.

There was a time in the sarly days of our own great Nation and of the sepublication of the desire way to independence in and South America when the deverage in the United States looked upon teels as in some sort the guardian stoat any encroaching their many the properties to the south of her as political control from the other stoats the water; felt it its duty to plant and the south of the south of the same that it is duty to plant and the same that a state and the unmotated soif government of her independent peoples. But it was slways difficult to maintain such a role without offense to the pride of the peoples whose freedom of action we sought to protect, and without provoking serious misconceptions of our motives, and every thoughtful man of affairs must welcome the altered circumstances of the new day in whose light we now stand, when there is no claim of guardiannship or thought of wards, but, instead, a full and honorable association as of partners between ourselves and our neighbors, in the interest of all America, north and south. Our concern for the findependence and prosperity of the states of Central and South America is not altered.

We have been put to the test in the case of Mexico, and we have stood the test. Whether we have benefited Mexico by the course we have pursued remains to be seen. Her fortunes are in her own hands. But we have a least proved that we will not take advantage of her in her distress and underly take to impose upon her an order and government of our own chooling. Wireless Amateurs.

There are now between 350,000 and 400,000 purely amateur wireless stations in the United States, according to H. Gernsback, editor of the Electrical Experimenter. There are not more than 15,000 such stations in all the rest of the world. And he goes on to explain the value of these hundreds of thousands of amateurs, most of whom are schoolboys, as follows:

"The average amateur must needs have a higher intelligence than his card playing, dance hall resorting classmate. Indeed, when your average radio amateur has mastered all the intricacles of a wireless set, he has obtained a pretty thorough knowledge of electricity in general. As a rule most of our electrical industries, hig and little, require thoroughly practical young men, the ones who knowledge

The Children's museum of the Brooklyn institute has undoubtedly taught more boys the practical way to become wireless operators than any other one institution, and the best evidence of this is the thousands of houses in Brooklyn that have wireless apparatus on their roofs.

Taking No Chances.

Taking No Chances.

A new regulation in a certain coal mine required that each man mark with chalk the number on every car of coal mined.

One man, named Rudolph, having filled the eleventh car, marked it with a No. 1, and, after pondering a while, let it go at that.

Another miner, happening to notice what he thought was a mistake, called Rudolph's attention to the fact he had marked the car No. 1 instead of 11.

"Yes, I know," said Rudolph, "but I can't tink which side do odder wan go on."

"Of course it is," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But the public doesn't always realize it. Most people would rather be cheated a little in an affable way than do business with a per-son whose conscience keeps him in a state of irritation."—Washington Star.

First in Road Construction.

According to the report of the state highway commissioner. New York stands first in road construction, having completed and accepted 863 miles of road last year and contracted for 1,148 miles, a large per cent of which is now open to traffic. The state highway commissioner, in his annual report, recommends that foreign cars using New York roads should be required to pay some burden of the making. First In Road Construction.
