WHISKER CULTURE.

A Critic Who Does Not Like the Hanging Garden Effect.

In the American Magazine James Montgomery Flagg, writing piece on "Whiskerculture," contributes the following pearl to cultivate hangings on the face:

"This is to verify that the bearer... has permission to stand on the grass in any part of Central park, or other city parks, during May and June and pretend he is a spruce bush. If by any chance he should begin to bear currants or marrows grapes he must allow the commissioner of parks first pickings."

"He is required also to permit any uniformed official of the Long Island railroad and found department to enter his beard at will, without a written order, and search for lost purses, umbrellas or packages of pressed beef or coins of any denomination."

"On the 24th of February he agrees to step out from his cocoon and if he sees his own shadow, report it immediately to the board of health and crawl back again."

"In going over his privet hedge in the fall, before putting it in camp, he must destroy all nests he comes across."

"On national and state holidays he is permitted to string Japanese lanterns in any part of the shrubbery above Forty-second street, but he is forbidden to set off any Roman candles or red light in it."

"During the open season for grouse or caribou he must have his entire beard adequately patrolled. He agrees to report to Washington if any careless tourists start fires in any portion of this tract, especially near any ranches. He agrees to see before retiring that no lighted cigar butts are left smoldering in the underbrush."

"If all these regulations are faithfully carried out his beard will be set aside as a national park in January of the following year."

THE HILL OF TARA.

Where in Ancient Times the Kings of Ireland Were Crowned.

In the County of Meath is supposed to have stood the hill of Tara, celebrated as being the palace of the ancient Irish kings. There seems to be no doubt that on the hill of Tara the national assemblies met once a year to consult on the affairs of the kingdom and to make laws. The lawgivers were a class of druids called Brethons, who acted as magistrates and judges. They did not hold their courts of justice in any hall, but seated themselves on the top of a hill in the open air, where they heard all complaints that were brought before them and decided every cause according to their own ideas of right and wrong.

The hill of Tara is also famous in Irish history as the spot on which the kings were crowned. The throne, or seat of inauguration, was a black stone, which was called Lea Fall, or the fatal stone, said to have been brought in the early ages from Spain, and it was therefore held in high veneration. It was either borrowed by Fergus the Great, an Irish chief, or else it was carried away, among other spoils, by the Scots in one of their invasions of Ireland and was ever afterward used as a coronation seat of the kings of Scotland at the abbey of Scone until it was conveyed away by force of arms, together with the crown and scepter, by Edward I. to England, where it still exists and forms the basis of the coronation chair to this day. —Argonaut.

Roosevelt as a Woodchopper.

When he owned a ranch in the west Theodore Roosevelt, as he says in his autobiography, "could chop fairly well for an amateur," but he admits that he could not do one-third of the work that his men did.

"One day," he writes, "when we were cutting down the cottonwood trees to begin our building operations, I heard some one ask Dow what the total cut had been, and Dow, not realizing that I was within hearing, answered, 'Well, Bill cut down fifty-three, I cut forty-nine, and the boss, he beavered down seventeen.' Those who have seen the stump of a tree that has been gnawed down by a beaver," adds Mr. Roosevelt, "will understand the exact force of the comparison."

Ruskin's Roast Beef.

During a visit to Matlock in 1871 Ruskin was seized with an attack of internal inflammation, which nearly carried him off. Mrs. Arthur Severn, who nursed him, records that at the crisis of this illness "he hungered, to our horror, for a slice of cold roast beef. It was late at night, there was none in the house, and Albert (goodwin) went off to get some anywhere he could. At last at an eating house in the town he discovered some and came back triumphant with it wrapped in paper. Mr. Ruskin enjoyed his late supper thoroughly. Though we anxiously waited till morning for a result, it had done no harm, and to every body's surprise he recovered." —London Spectator.

Innuendo.

"Is dem you all's chickens?" "Cobse dey's my all's chickens. Whose chickens did you s'pose dey was?" "I was s'posin' 'em about 'em. But I will say dat it's mighty lucky dat a chicken won't come a-runnin' an' a-waggin' its tail when its regular owner whistles, same as a dog." —Washington Star.

Settlement Work.

"Did you hear about Muggins taking up settlement work?" "Yes, he usually works his creditors for 50 cents on the dollar." —Town Herald.

Protect Your Prosperity

How will you handle your grain this year? Bulk grain is here! Southern Idaho built approximately 50 Elevators. Eastern Washington and Oregon about 50 last year; it is authoritatively stated that 150 Elevators will be built in the Columbia River Basin this year. We are now planning and building Elevators in Eastern Washington and Oregon. Portland plans new million bushel Elevators! Astoria will double capacity of elevator. Seattle recently completed million bushel elevators at docks. Spokane farmers' meeting of last year almost unanimously voted for bulk grain. Oregon Agricultural College meeting indorses bulk grain system. Every Saturday brings word of some farmers meeting to adopt bulk grain handling. At Pendleton meeting N. B. Atkinson of Wasco county, Oregon, told of farmers building elevators and paying for them with sack money the first year.

BULK GRAIN IS HERE
MAKE MONEY IN 1917

Sacks are out of date. Handling in bulk saves 3c to 3c per bushel. And this saving is made above the cost of installing granaries (as shown above.) Bulk handling insures getting ALL the profit, and reduces the labor very materially. Act now—Come in Today—Look over our many designs—Ask us how you can equip your farm for handling bulk grain—By using the money you would pay for sacks for one year—After that you save money every year.

Tung-Lok Grain Bin
1500 Bu $140, 2000 Bu $165

Most practical bin on the market, made of yard seasoned wood—all cut to exact sizes, grooved and tongued—easy to erect, no "expert" help required—put up in less than a day. Perfect storage under all conditions. Better than metal and far lower in cost. Metal bins sweat and rot contents. They warp and bulge and are easily damaged, and terribly expensive.

5000 Bu. Grainery

Level ground type - $321.00
Side Hill type - $311.00
Can be built larger or smaller as desired.

1000 bushel portable Grain Bin, $48.00

UTAH'S NATURAL BRIDGE.

The Secret of Its Origin Somewhat Puzzles the Scientists.

What is thought to be the largest natural bridge in the world is that of southwestern Utah, known as the George natural bridge. The total length of this great work of nature is about 200 feet; its width—i. e. the "roadway"—is about thirty-five feet; the span in the clear is about ninety feet. At the base there flows a small water course which, during the hot months, dwindles to a mere rivulet.

Scientists are somewhat perplexed to explain the means by which nature produced this bridge. It is thought hardly possible that it could have been created by water erosion, unless, as was most unlikely, there was a very large and swift stream flowing at the point where the brook now runs.

Some authorities are inclined to the view that this bridge was due to volcanic action, occurring at some remote geological period.

Although long known to the Indians, it was not until about fifteen years ago that white men became familiar with the sight of it. Mining prospectors were the first of the whites to see it, since it is located in the heart of a very rugged and inaccessible region.

The span is composed of a dark brown sandstone of unusual hardness, and the thickness of the span is twenty feet or more.

Engineers who have examined this bridge assert that it is perfectly safe and secure and that it is fully capable of sustaining an immense weight, especially as the span is free from flaws or seams. —Washington Star

JUSTICE AND LUNCHEON.

They Seemed to Clash a Trifle, So the Court Made a Change.

It was formerly the practice of the supreme court to sit from 12 noon until 4 o'clock continuously on each day that it was in session. From time to time, as the afternoon progressed, the justices, one or two at a time, would slip out of their seats, snatch a bite of luncheon and return. Sometimes as many as four or five of them would be off the bench at once. They usually had their luncheon brought to them by their messengers and ate it in the little curtained recess behind the bench, and as the argument progressed there could be plainly heard in the courtroom the clink of knife and fork on plate and what O. Henry has called "the crash of dishes on the American plan."

One day a lawyer pleading a case made bold to enter a protest. He most solemnly inquired if he could count upon the continuous and undivided attention of even one justice to the thread of his argument. "The personnel of the court has been twice entirely changed since I began," he said plaintively.

The court doigned no response, but on the following Monday it was announced from the bench that a recess for luncheon thereafter would be taken every day from 2 to 2:30 o'clock and that the court would sit until 4:30 o'clock every afternoon. —World's Work.

Birds That Fight Eagles.

In Foula, one of the Shetland islands, the natives make a business of rearing skau gulls in order to rid the islands of eagles that congregate there and commit many depredations. The magnificent red sandstone cliffs that skirt the northwestern coast became a favorite haunt of the eagles, and in this inaccessible spot they increased so rapidly that they became a terror to the farmers and fishermen who dwell on this isolated spot. The skau gulls are also strong and fierce and the inveterate foes of the eagle. In battle the gulls are nearly always victorious, and so the inhabitants of Foula hit upon the novel plan of feeding and caring for the skau gulls, which, though formidable to their feathered enemies, are very peaceful and docile when brought in contact with man. —Dallas News.

He—You look to me as if you were a man. You don't expect me to remember any. Why is it after me all the time. Ebenezer Baxter

To say of a man, "He means well," is worth nothing unless he does well.
