School Notes.

A Thanksgiving program is to be given on Nov. 22 by the pupils of Miss Sherman's room, in which only those who have an average of 95 or above in department, are allowed to take part. A special feature of this program is the little play, "The Runaway Thanksgiving Dinner," in which the children take the parts of the different entrees of a Thanksgiving dinner. The program will be given later.

As a result of the contest being held in Miss Wolff's room, Brooks Anderson and Verva Gross received a half holiday for receiving ninety per cent and over in all their studies and ninety five per cent in department. Walthia Haynie, Areta Payne, Elsa Ringel and Dorothy Koepke earned one-fourth holiday for getting ninety per cent in all except one study.

Don't forget the High School play "On the Little Big Horn" which is to be given Friday, Nov. 16.
 The Honor Cup was won this month by the primary room. It is to be kept by them three days and then returned to Miss Lawson's room to be kept for the remainder of the month. The primary room had a total of 183 points, Miss Lawson's room 181 1-2 Miss Wolff's room 186, Mr. Gribble's room 117 and the High school 169.

The 7th and 8th grade boys are practicing basket ball and are ready to play the Weston grades at any time.
 The seventh and eighth grade girls of the Hi Jinks Club are going to have a party tonight.
 Mr. Schaffner's class in Manual Training are plastering and putting oilcloth on the walls of the Gymnasium. They have on hand a large supply of picture molding which will be used in making picture frames for each room.
 The class in Agriculture under the supervision of Mr. Schaffner have received from O. A. C. all the available bulletins that are most useful in his class work.

Athena has a good standing in the United States Food Administration, the per cent of cards turned in being 92 1-2. 148 home managers signed pledge cards and returned them in District No. 29. The local committee composed of J. O. Russell, Mrs. B. D. Sharp and Mrs. B. B. Richards, express great satisfaction in the prompt action of the parents of the Athena district.

The first quarter of the school year ends today. Examinations were held during the past week and report cards will be given out Monday or Tuesday.
 The Junior class have the distinction of being the only High school class to report no tardiness for the past month.

The first of a series of High school receptions to be given by the different classes will be held tonight in the domestic Science room with members of the Senior class as hosts and hostesses. Committees have been at work the past week and everyone is assured a good time. Remember the slogan "I'll be there."
 Mrs. Wyrick, an officer of the parent teachers' association of Pendleton was a visitor in Miss Lawson's room last Wednesday afternoon.

Pupils of Miss Lawson's room receiving above 90 in all their grades are: Lorene Dennis, Melvin Coppock and Ellen Henry.
 The pupils of the third and fourth grades are making some very artistic posters for the High school play.

Muriel Carden was the winner of the fourth grade spelling contest and Melvin Coppock of the third grade.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is cataract. Cataract being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Cataract Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Cataract Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address P. Luckily For the Aviator, He Was Out of Range of the Drops.

It will be easily understood, writes C. G. Grey in "Tales of the Flying Service," that before a bullet that has been shot straight upward begins to fall there must be a point where it stands dead still and that for the last part of its upward flight it travels very slowly. One officer of my acquaintance told me, after some months of war, that his most curious experience was when once, and once only, he discovered the exact extreme range point.
 He was flying along quite peacefully on a bright, sunny morning at an altitude of a little over 8,000 feet, without worrying about anything, when suddenly he saw something bright dart past the side of the machine. He began to look about him and saw, a shade below him and a trifle to one side, a whole stream of little bright things glittering in the sun.
 Then he realized that he had just struck a level that happened to be the extreme vertical range of a machine gun that was making uncommonly good shooting. Other bullets from rifles and other machine guns also flashed into view as he flew along, and when his eyes caught the right focus he could follow the slow, topmost part of their movement for considerable distance. "It looked," he said, "just as if it were raining upward," and the phenomenon was so novel that he quite forgot for a time that the "raindrops" indicated that he was unpopular with some one below.

Bomb Dropping Balloons.
 The first bomb dropping balloons were humble enough and equally futile. Balloons had been used in war as early as the siege of Maudsberg by the Austrians for observation purposes. The first talk of bomb dropping was in 1812, when the Russians were said to have a huge balloon for that purpose, but nothing was done with it. In 1847, however, the Austrians, when attacking Venice, sent up paper fire balloons, which were to drop bombs into the town. But they forgot to allow for contrary air currents. The balloons got into such a current and, drifting back over the Austrian lines, bombed them instead of Venice.

Webster's Portrait.
 Daniel Webster once sat for his portrait to G. P. Healy, and the senator's remark when he surveyed the completed picture became one of the artist's favorite anecdotes in after years. "I think," said Webster as he looked at his counterfeit presentment, "that is a face I have often shaved."
 Healy found Andrew Jackson a disagreeable and unwilling "subject," and he compensated himself by painting Old Hickory with absolute fidelity to nature, not glossing a single defect. The portrait gives Jackson an ugly, . . . and daffid face.
