Correct Lubrication for the "T"-Head-Type Engine

The "T"-Head, illustrated here, is one of several types in popular use today. Engines of this type, like all internal combustion engines, require an oil that maintains its full lubricating qualities at cylinder heat, burns clean in the combustion chamber and goes out with exhaust. ZEROLENE fills these requirements perfectly, because it is correctly refined from selected California asphalt-base crude.

ZEROLENE is made in several consistencies to meet with scientific accuracy the lubrication needs of all types of automobile engines. Get our "Correct Lubrication Chart" covering your car. At dealers everywhere and Standard Oil Service Stations.

IMPORTANT USE FOR CAMERA

The adventures of the camera men in this war are more thrilling than any romance. Braving the fire of batteries of anti-aircraft guns and hourly encountering the skillful air duellists, they must calmly choose their positions, risk their lives often for a single exposure, and carry back their pictures in record time. Successful photographs have been made at a height of more than three miles, says Boys' Life, the boy scouts' magazine, for February. From such an altitude the earth appears flat, all objects being lost in a dull cloud-like effect, but the cameras used are of the telephoto type, which will pierce through this distance. Some are made with a pistol grip which enables the aviator to aim his camera quickly. Other aero cameras are built into the floor or side of the aircraft and pictures are taken by touching a button with the foot. An ingenious mechanical device has been invented which will take pictures at any desired rate per second, so that nothing will be overlooked.

Aero photography has many important uses apart from warfare. The camera has been carried by daring adventures over unexplored regions. It has been estimated that an aero photograph could cover more territory in a day in the Arctic region than could be traversed in a month by dog sledges.

His Tribe Is Increasing. Our daughter Belle, now Mrs. A. M. Frost, increased the population of Tacoma by one small baby girl on July 27. This makes our sixth grandchild. We always had trouble to count our children, and if the second generation keeps coming so fast we may have to put them in a corral and run them through the chute to find the number. —Condon (Ore.) Methodist Episcopal Church.
Regular services will be held next Sunday. Family Day will be observed June 9 unless the local situation makes this all-day meeting inadvisable. In this time of National stress, we should assemble often to encourage one another and to take heart in the great work before us. You will find an especial welcome at this church.
Walter S. Gleiser.

Bessarabia.
The original inhabitants of Bessarabia are believed to have been Climeans, after whom came the Scythians. Because it was the key to one of the approaches toward the empire of Byzantium the province was invaded by many successive races during the early centuries of the Christian era. Trajan incorporated it with the province of Dacia, and in the next century the Goths poured into it, to be followed in turn by the Huns, the Avars and the Bulgarians. In the seventh century a Thracian tribe, known as the Beas, settled there and gave to the land its name.
