Camouflaged Philosophy.

Underted means undereducated.
Land sharks are worse than sea serpents.
Who remembers when a dollar was worth a dollar?
Sauce for the goose is sauce for the propagandist.
Eat less while you discuss prices. That will help some.
Wearing old shoes is the latest declaration of independence.
When airship traffic is established exigency may laugh at railroads!
A woman loves to wear a sweater on a hot day—if the sweater is new.
A man who has anything but a job these days is almost under suspicion.
The profiteer can stand almost any thing except the limelight of publicity.
In the war on the cost of living there must be no peace without victory.
Pork is coming down, but it is probably a bit too early to yell "Look out below!"
The cost of investigations doubtless will go up because of the increased demand.
The point has been reached when the consumer is bearing all the donkey can carry.
The shoe price outlook suggests that it is even going to cost more to kick about high prices.

After all, there is nothing that affords some people more real pleasure than agreeable work.
Happy is the region that, undisturbed by greater cares, worries about a visitation of mosquitoes.
What the trainmen mean in their reference to the living cost is that they can't make the grade.
Now they are blaming the consumer, who should have more sense than to pay such high prices.
If everybody insists on hanging to all his present profits, how is the high cost of living to be reduced?
How can the United States be in a hole, when everybody you meet has a perfect cure for the situation?
Alarmists have been preaching dire calamities since Cain slew Abel, and yet the old world putters along.
"After the Profiteers," says a headline. That's just the trouble, we've been riding in their dust too long.

Higher wages, higher freight rates; higher rates and higher cost of living. The endless cycle that gets nowhere.
It remains to be seen whether necessity knows any flag when it comes to the purchase of goods according to one's means.
Bela Kun seems to lose his job about as often as they used to kill the German crown prince in the early days of the war.
At the present rate of progress a profiteer soon will be about as popular as an unprize who decides against the home team.
Turkey has not yet been made safe enough to tempt the sultan to come up out of the subcellar and join in a street parade.

A brewery in Wales has been bought by a reformer and will be turned into a cheese factory. This is adding insult to injury.
More automobiles and trains contesting the right of way at the crossings, with the former invariably getting the worse of it.
A man who spends his time counterfeiting money is worse than criminal these days, when so many other things are worth so much more.
Swimming is now suggested as a cure for some forms of insanity. But many of the bathing suits are likely to cause mental disturbance.
Judging from the disturbances on both sides of the ocean, the war microbe has not been sufficiently worked out of the atmosphere.
We think we have trouble sleeping in the summer time but think of the former kaiser who also has wood sawing worries to contend with.
Distribution by the government of 341,000,000 pounds of surplus food will make a lot of people regret they threw away their knives and forks.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

A meal should be regarded as an important end in itself. It should be taken at leisure, body and mind being for the time being given up to it, and to agreeable, social intercourse.

THE DELICIOUS PEACH.

No more delicious dish for dessert can be served than one of sliced peaches with cream and sugar. When peaches are plentiful one likes to vary the serving. A most appetizing pie may be made by baking a rich crust and when cold fill it with sliced peaches well sugared and covered with sweetened cream. To make it still more beautiful sprinkle with finely minced pistachio nuts or with shredded blanched almonds.

A bird's nest pudding is another form of dessert well liked. Slice a pie pan half full of peaches and cover with a baking powder biscuit dough. Bake and turn over on a plate, spread with butter and sprinkle sugar and a little nutmeg if liked over the peaches.
Peach Pudding.—Pour a cupful of hot milk over a cupful of dry bread crumbs and let stand five minutes; add a half cupful of sugar, the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and the stiffly beaten white of one. Mix well and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Heap thinly sliced peaches well sweetened over the top and cover with a meringue made of the two egg whites and three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cover the pudding with the meringue and bake until a delicate brown. Cake crumbs make a more delicious pudding.

Rice With Peaches.—Cook one cupful of rice until tender, adding milk at the last of the cooking; season with butter and add sugar to sweeten, then pour into a hollow mold. When ready to serve un-mold and fill the center with sweetened sliced peaches and serve with cream and sugar.

Peach Chutney.—Prepare three pounds of peaches after peeling. Put them into a saucepan with a pint of mild vinegar; cook until tender. Pound in a mortar four ounces of onion and two ounces of garlic, five ounces of fresh ginger root; add the peaches with six ounces of raisins, an ounce each of white mustard seed and chill peppers and six ounces of sugar, simmer ten minutes and add more vinegar if needed. Bottle for winter use.

FAMOUS PALACE AND JAIL

Historic Tower of London Easily "Most Ancient and Most Poetic Pile in Europe."
Palace and prison, once noted also for its menagerie and its pageantry, birthplace and death house of monarchs, scene of hairbreadth escapes and reputed hidden treasures, ghostly in its memories of tortures and killing and sacred for its martyrs, the Tower of London amply warrants description as the "most ancient and most poetic pile in Europe," reads a bulletin of the National Geographic society.
William the Conqueror gave London a charter, but built the White tower to show the people how little that charter might mean. Like the English constitution the rambling London Tower of today is a product of centuries, and not one, but many towers, are now scattered over some 15 acres. The site had been a fortress since Roman times.
To the Middle Tower Elizabeth came back a queen five years after her jealous half sister, Mary, had kept her there a prisoner. The humpbacked Richard III hired three assassins to murder his nephews in Bloody tower. Not until years later were their bones found and taken to Westminster abbey.
Lady Jane Grey, she who "had the birth of a princess, the life of a saint, and the death of a malefactor," was beheaded in London tower.

Fraudulent Old Clocks.

The brass lantern clocks of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries have made a strong appeal to collectors, and this fact has led to the manufacture of replicas of the old clocks. When these are sold frankly as replicas, there is nothing to be said against such a practice; but, unfortunately, the matter does not stop here and too often the attempt is made to palm off an imitation as a genuine old clock. Famous makers' names are added and various expedients adopted to make the new clock pass muster as an old one. Such frauds are deplorable from every point of view, and the ignorance of many collectors makes success possible. Every one, it is obvious, cannot possess a genuine old clock. It would be well if this fact were faced, and the clocks bought simply as reproductions, by all those who are not in a position to make reasonably sure that they are really purchasing a genuine old English clock.—Christian Science Monitor.

The government has presented to the state, through Adjutant-General Starin, official battle flags of the 162d Oregon infantry and the 95th Coast artillery; also a large national flag for the 162d.

UMBRELLA AS BERRY PICKER

By Its Aid Long Island Woman Gathers Ninety Quarts in Day.

Sayville, L. I.—Mrs. Margaret Cross of Sayville, L. I., went huckleberrypicking. She carried an umbrella. Neighbors asked her if she feared rain, but she only smiled.

Reaching a spot where the berries grew thick, she opened it, inverted it under a bush and shook the bush vigorously. The berries fell into the umbrella and were easily transferred from it to Mrs. Cross' berry pail.
By this means she gathered 90 quarts during the day, thereby establishing a record for one day's picking, it is said.

When a man reaches the point where nothing but lemon extract or bay rum will satisfy him, he'd better run round a telephone pole until he's dizzy.

A 100 per cent increase in women's clothes is predicted. That, on the other hand, is what the very same man will call too much of a kick.

Quackery Sometimes Effective.
"Faith and foolishness will cure any disease," says the cynic, and judging by some instances of miraculous wholesale cures, there seems to be some ground for the assertion.
There is the historical episode of the prince of Orange, for instance, who during one of his campaigns, cured those of his soldiers who were dying of the scurvy by a piece of quackery.
With his doctors, who were in the secret, he said he had procured a medicine—really a decoction of camomile, wormwood and camphor—of the greatest rarity and value from the East. It was so strong that two or three drops would impart a healing virtue to a gallon of water. The men took the medicine with faith and cheerful faces, and, so historians tell us, grew well rapidly.

Risky Food Combinations.
An Argentine doctor in a Spanish medical review states that there are many articles of diet in hot weather, which, although sound and nutritious in themselves, are positively dangerous when taken with other foods. Everybody today recognizes the harm of drinking tea with a meat meal, the tannin of the tea rendering the meat as indigestible as leather. Yet in these days of summer dishes, one is not aware perhaps of the fact that vinegar retards the digestion of food, and that the smallest quantity will lengthen digestion by 30 minutes at least. Milk and cherries together are held to be singularly harmful, and were said to have caused the death of Franklin Pierce, president of the United States.
Risky combinations in the Oregon state park water, taken in Salem for a trip as far east as New York on a visit to several of the best managed and largest prisons in the country.
A little more than a quarter of a million dollars more than was paid last year will be paid by Umatilla county taxpayers next year, according to the estimate of County Assessor
