A TEMPERATE VIEW

We are glad to see our own view of the exposition unpleasantness confirmed by the Enterprise Record-Chief, which says in its current issue:

"A Portland exposition would be a great attraction. It would be visited by many people of the state and would bring to Oregon thousands of visitors from without, many of whom would become interested here. The benefit would accrue chiefly to Portland.

"In launching the project the promoters chose a most unhappy season. Throughout the world business depression and uncertainty prevail. The rural parts of Oregon have suffered their full share of this depression, and the eastern part of the state has been afflicted grievously. It is trying to get on its feet, and it finds the effort calls for all the courage, all the resources it possesses. An added burden, particularly for a project which would yield no immediate gain, and promised little ultimate profit, aroused such hostility as has not been seen in many years.

"Some men argue that Portland and the state are at loggerheads; that a great and dangerous enmity has arisen between the two. This is far from the case. The state admires Portland heartily and wishes it nothing but abundant prosperity. But in this particular transaction the state feels that Portland failed to grasp the point of view of the remainder of Oregon. Now it is past and will be forgotten."

It is well that the republican party of Umatilla county has an efficient organ at last. It has spent more money—and received less in return—in bolstering up the Pendleton Tribune under former regimes, than would elect several Newberrys to the United States Senate. But the ol' Trib. has always been different under the nursing of Harry Kuck. And right now it is entirely different from the difference before. If a republican county court and a republican district attorney need cleaning up, why, demmit, let the republican organ do it. "Ish ka bibble."

Perhaps the source of Newberry's strength in the United States Senate, which has resulted in his success at last, lies in the knowledge of other republican senators that their seats are tarred with the same stick.

Inasmuch as the proposed alliance between France and Britain is for defensive purposes, we are not disposed to regard it as an offensive one.

Per capita circulation declined $6.09 last year and is now only $53.03. Wonder what became of our $53? (We've found the three cents.)

Emma Goldman complains that she is a woman without a country. The island of Yap suggests itself, if the Japanese are willing.

No matter what else may result from the second Arbuckle trial, we trust that Filmdom will be purged of fatty degeneration.

The ten Grand Rapids church elders who drank wood stain at communion are out of danger. Glad it was not a fatal finish.

We are moved to doubt that Newberry secured the consent or endorsement of the witness he has so solemnly cited.

The difference is that although the German people are making money, their government is only making marks.

A New Jersey woman has become the mother of her twenty-first child—which is one better than a good score.

We wish there were some place away back where De Valera could be firmly persuaded to go and sit down.

And yet it is not surprising that those cement concerns accused of an unlawful combination, stick together.

We haven't learned how tall that missing St. Louis banker may be, but he is $754,000 short.

Conference heads having agreed, it is now only necessary to look after details.

The esteemed Trib. steps stoutly on the Ridgway—with hob nails in its shoes.

After sympathizing with Uncle Sam over the sad condition of his foreign trade we learn that it is much better than before the war. England is his best and Germany his second best customer. Exports were $2,380,000,000 in 1921 as against $1,500,000,000 in 1913. Imports were $865,000,000, compared to $750,000,000 in 1913.

Briand has resigned as premier of France, which has failed to appreciate the good work of this able and devoted statesman.

The Anglo-Irish pact pleases the pope, which with the exception of the De Valera crowd just about makes it unanimous.

If we "get" China, she would also have her open door regarded as an exit by a certain Asiatic neighbor.

Newberry may prove to be the added straw that will eventually break the g. o. p. elephant's back.

That boot-legging submarine said to be active on the Sound, is surely a rum boat.

The new Irish government is due to find that it has something to govern.

GREAT SHOCK AFFECTS HAIR

Well-Authenticated Cases of Sudden Whitening Over the More Important Nerve Centers.

There has been some interesting correspondence in the Scientific American about the possibility of a person's hair "turning white overnight," and now Elmer G. Still of Livermore, Cal., contributes a letter from the viewpoint of a phrenologist. He asserts that there are many cases on record in which a great shock to a specially sensitive emotion was followed at once by whitening of the hair just over the region of the brain in which this emotion is situated.

He cites one case of a man with a large bump of cautiousness, who was upset from a sail boat and clung all night to its bottom. In the morning his hair had turned grey in two tufts the size of a half dollar on each side of his head, right over the centers of cautiousness.

Another was the case of a woman whose hair fell out over the region of conjugal love while her husband was undergoing a serious operation. The hair grew in again, but quite white. The region of conjugal love is situated about two inches directly back horizontally from the meatus of the ear.

Another is that of a man with a triangular tuft of white hair just below the center of the back of the head, over the region of philoprogenitiveness, or love of children, and on inquiry Mr. Still found that he was a man remarkably fond of children.

QUEEN CHOSE PEASANT MATE

Bohemian folklore contains many interesting and inspiring stories, but all of them express the national feeling and the aspirations of a subject people for independence. Now that the World war established Czechoslovakia as a free state, the national consciousness has redoubled the interest in Bohemian history and fiction.

A favorite story is of the Princess Libussa, youngest and wisest of Prince Krok's three daughters. She was intelligent, with perfect morals and active in deeds for the welfare of her people. Endowed as a seeress, the people chose her to be their ruler. Libussa in return asked the people to choose their king. They waived this privilege, and the queen sent them far away to find a young peasant, who would be plowing in a field with two oxen, whose spots the queen described. The messengers brought back this man and he became king.

Together Libussa and her husband founded Prague (Prah), the queen prophesying the city would become world famous. The peasant king defined its limits by throwing up a furrow with his plow. His shoes were worn by kings for generations as a pledge that they would protect the interests of the peasants.
