Over The Hill

Misses Thelma Anderson and Lillian Erikey were Walla Walla visitors, Saturday.

Mrs. Minnie Walker, who is a patient in St. Mary's hospital, Walla Walla, is convalescing satisfactorily following a recent serious operation, according to late reports received by Mrs. Walker. It is expected that Mrs. Walker will be able to return to her home near Helix within a few days.

Mrs. Sarah Jones of Pendleton was the guest last Thursday of her daughter, Mrs. M. W. Pedersen.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Winn were dinner guests Easter Sunday at the home of Mrs. Fannie McBride.

Mrs. Flora Zigman and daughter Susie motored over from Walla Walla Tuesday for a few hours' visit with Mrs. Susan Tucker.

The Millinery School held in Memorial Hall last Thursday and Friday occasioned considerable interest and was well attended. About forty ladies were present to receive instruction in hat making and trimming.

Among those who fashioned especially attractive Easter bonnets under the direction of Mrs. Van Deusen were Meslames C. E. Fisk, Lysle Webb, Leon Lundell, R. L. Reynaud and A. C. Geiss.

D. W. Green, a prominent potato dealer and grower of the Yakima district, was in town Tuesday, accompanied by his son. Mr. Green wanted to pick up a couple of cars of Weston Mountain seed potatoes—not necessarily certified—but at last accounts had not been able to secure them. He said that at the present market uncertified seed would command around $40 per ton, f. o. b. Weston.

Wayne Compton's long illness from the after effects of pneumonia continues at his home on Weston Mountain. Neighbors were planning this week to secure a Red Cross nurse, if possible, to relieve the boy's mother, Mrs. H. V. Compton, who is worn out with watching and nursing.

It is quite natural that the widespread interest in radiotelephony should have reached Weston, where it is a daily subject of conversation. At the picture show last Saturday evening, which was especially well attended, a plan was broached to install a receiving service station in Memorial Hall. This Saturday evening the project will be developed further, two four-minute speakers to "talk it up" having been secured by Manager Barnes. Many assurances of support for such an undertaking have been received from different Weston citizens, and confidence is felt that in due course Weston will be connected by radio telephone with the outer world, and will be able to hear lectures, concerts or news hot "off the bat" from The Oregonian, the Oregon Journal or other sources. It is thought that a receiving station suitable for the hall's needs can be secured and installed for something like $200.

George Ginn, a Weston boy of the long ago, was here Tuesday from Walla Walla, shaking hands with old-time friends.

Miss Doris Barnes left yesterday for an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Bert Vaughan, at Homestead, Oregon.

Jimmie Smock of Reed and Hawley mountain, who takes a personal and public spirited interest in the good roads question, is putting in culverts and otherwise improving the Wild Horse grade at his own expense. He was notified by the county court that no money would be available for the work—that the only appropriation for mountain roads in this way this year would be devoted to the Pine creek grade—and decided to get individually busy, which has often been his practice in the past. Jimmie is not very strong for talk, but is a young whirlwind for action.

The date of presentation of "The Old New Hampshire Home" has been postponed from April 28 to Tuesday, May 21. This was done in order to not conflict with the big Dokie carnival April 28 at Walla Walla, which a number of local Dokies are planning to attend in order to meet the Imperial Prince, Gus Meese of Spokane, who is the supreme head of the D. O. K. K. for the entire United States. Members of the cast are also reflecting that the postponement will give further chance for rehearsal and thus assure smoother production of a strong piece which demands action a bit difficult for amateur talent. All the proceeds of the play will go to Memorial Hall.

A car driven by Ed Edwards, a young man of Milton, caught fire Monday evening between the George Winn place and Weston, and had to be abandoned for the time being. The body of the car was ruined, but the engine and running gears are said to have escaped material damage.

Allen Richal, popular Weston citizen and civil war veteran, was able to appear on the streets Wednesday and receive the congratulations of his friends. There has been considerable improvement of late in Mr. Richal's vision, of which he had been almost totally deprived.

Herman M. Saling, who "grew up" at Weston but has been adventuring in other fields for the past sixteen years or more, visited with his mother, Mrs. I. E. Saling, Herman conducted a dairy farm in Washington county for a number of years and is now located with his family at Hood River, where he is engaged in the meat market business.

W. J. Harris, Water street resident, likes gardening as an occupation. He is farming five garden tracks—his own and four others which he has leased. He has been planting mostly early stuff, in order to market it to the best advantage.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon O'Hara entertained the following guests at a beautiful Thanksgiving dinner Sunday at their home in Weston: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jones and Ray Jones of Athena; Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. May and Erma and Harry May of Weston Mountain; Mrs. Henry Thompson of Gibbon; Ruford Price.

AN OLD PIONEER CALLED
Benjamin Franklin Walden, an early pioneer of Umatilla county, departed this life April 14 at Pendleton, after a long illness. "Uncle Ben," as he was known, came west with his parents, Peter S. and Martha J. Walden, in 1852. The family settled in Linn county, coming to Umatilla county in 1869. They lived one year near Pilot Rock and then settled on Dry creek near Weston, which had ever since been the home of the deceased. "Uncle Ben" won many friends because of his kindly qualities. He was twice married, both helpmates preceding him to the grave. He is survived by one son, George Walden of Portland, and by one brother and two sisters—Thos. Walden of Pilot Rock, Mrs. Mary Phipps of Antelope, Oregon, and Mrs. Nancy Case of Spokane. Interment was made at Pendleton.

ALFALFA HAY AT $23
Scarcity of feed has made itself felt in this locality, and particularly so on the mountain, where the long winter has left the farmers with little or no forage for their farm stock. The advent of spring weather this week, however, has greatly relieved the situation. A resident of Reed and Hawley mountain, Tom Boeber, says that spring is none too early in coming, as people in his neighborhood hadn't seen the ground for five and one-half months. Feed has advanced in price to such an extent that baled alfalfa retails locally at $23 per ton. What remains in the Hudson Bay country is held by the growers, it is said, at $20 per ton. This would entail a higher local figure were it not for the fact that the dealers are offering stocks which were bought at a lesser price than is now quoted by the growers.

GRAIN DEALER IN TROUBLE
Bert Owsley, of the independent wheat buying firm of Owsley & Case, Walla Walla, is in difficulties over an alleged crooked deal in wheat involving about nine thousand sacks belonging to a big Eureka Flat grower. The story goes that with the collusion of a warehouseman Owsley was able to dispose of the wheat to the Kerr-Gifford Co. and pocket the money, without the owner's knowledge. Owsley and his confederate are also accused of an abortive attempt to burn a warehouse in order to better conceal their crooked deal. Owsley is under bonds of $5000 to appear for trial. His partner, William Case, a son of W. H. Case of Weston, is absolved from any knowledge of or any connection with the alleged theft.

PLENTY SNOW AT MILL
During the slight snowstorm which made its appearance last Saturday in the lowlands, no less than four inches of fresh snow fell at the Blue Mountain sawmill on Weston mountain, twelve miles east of Weston, according to Will Beathe, who was a recent visitor to the mill and made measurements. Under this "top dressing" there was about five feet of old and well-packed snow. Plenty of it will be left, it is expected, by May first, at which time last year teams were on the road hauling lumber from the mill.

ATHENA HIGH DEFEATS HELIX BY SCORE OF 4 TO 3

The pitching of Kretzer, St. Hodgson's fielding and a home run by Shick were the features of the Athena-Helix high school game, Wednesday afternoon, Athena winning 4 to 3.

Lop-sided support given Kretzer in the first inning, gave Helix her three runs on three errors and one hit. After that Kretzer tightened up when hits meant runs. In the fourth, with none down and runners on second and third, "Lefty" fanned three Helix batters in a row.

Hodgen put up a fine exhibition of fielding in the left garden. Harden held first, releasing Kretzer, and the combination worked to advantage.

After the first inning, Athena settled and working up from behind, scored two in her half of the second. Athena tied the score in the sixth when Shick busted out his swat for four bases, and in the ninth Banister singled, stole second and scored on a two-base hit by Kretzer. The score:
