ATHENA, OREGON, OCT. 13 1922

The Peoples Power League will have a "state government reorganization and occupational representation" amendment on the Oregon initiative ballot in 1924. Sounds formidable if not promising. But we'll have the same kind of people and they'll elect the same kind of legislators, even though they'll assemble in one house instead of two; and we'll have the same kind of state officials, even though state government is "reorganized." It's our blessed privilege and practice to beate our solons and other office holders, but they assay always just as high as their constituents. A stream may not rise above its source and Oregon government under any kind of system is apt to be no better nor worse than the standard of its citizenship indicates. Let's have no more hifalutin' reform measures until we get used to those we possess.

Lady Mount Batten, England's richest heiress and wife of the young peer who with her is touring America, says with determination that she hasn't had a chance to meet any American flappers and she'll see that he doesn't. We'll bet that with equal determination scores of American flappers will now make up their minds to meet Lord Mount Batten.

The eager manner in which the government's half-billion dollar bond issue was snapped up by the big eastern banks cannot be considered an entirely encouraging feature of this country's economic status. It shows that millions of idle money awaits investment—but in tax-free securities and not in industry.

The Oregonian will run a series of articles by Dr. A. Conan Doyle on "Our American Adventure." And herein the famous spiritualist will have the advantage of a good medium.

It may cheer Uncle Sam to learn that he has regained a measure of our respect, now that he has retired from the boot-legging business on the high seas.

Princeton gets the skull of a giant titanother. The news leaves us unmoved, unless there's some way of comparing it with the skull of a congressman who thinks the new tariff will benefit the American farmer.

"Reading maketh a full man," and if devoted to the official pamphlet before election day will also make a better informed and more competent voter.

The St. Paul Crescent remarks that "what this country needs isn't that we get more taxes from the people, but that the people get more from the taxes."

However natural the conclusion may be, it isn't because Lloyd George came from Wales that the walls are coming from England.

Gotham brags of its peach trees abloom in October. Well, what of it? Right here in October, perfect peaches are walking the streets.

Ocean-goers on Uncle Sam's boats will now have to satisfy themselves with a eye-full of the "big drink" beneath the keel.

The present sultan will soon quit reigning in Turkey, but not because its soil has been drenched with the blood of "Christian dogs."

The American people need not expect to be liberated from the chains of high taxation without paying the price of eternal vigilance.

The Portland fair is now up to the voters, and when 1927 rolls around the voters of Eastern Oregon will be down to the fair.

Glad Voliva has prophesied another world war, since this makes it pretty certain we'll never have one.

Siki is coming to America. He's apt to be a long time coming to in America if he mixes with Dempsey.

The striking workman seldom comes any nearer to winning a victory than getting his job back.

It cannot be said that "The Sick Man of Europe" was revived this time by the tonic in Teutonic.

It may be because the Turk seeks a rejuvenating gland, that he has made a monkey of Europe.

The Christian powers have discovered that there is still something of a slam left in Islam.

The Near Eastern situation never seems to get so bad that it can't grow worse.

How diplomatic chickens come home to roost is shown by the fact that England must now find the solution to a Turkish problem that is mostly of her own making.

With her marks at more than three thousand to the American dollar, Germany may just as well save time and paper by making them with a pencil.

We suspect that Kemal qualified as a goat-getter in order that his beloved Angora wouldn't be lonesome.

She Objected to Skunks.

A school superintendent received the following note from the mother of one of his pupils:
"In regard to Elliot missing So Much school the first month he was ill & the Dr. told me not to send him till he got stronger & his Eyes did not Hurt him so Much then he was trapping & going to School & the Teacher Sent him Home because he She said Smeld of Skunk She said he would Have to quit School or quit Trapping."
—Everybody's.

Sport Suits for Young Men Better Clothes for Less Money

YOUNG MEN will find Sport Suits, in their deftly developed variation of style lines, in unimpeachable leadership. The popularity of the model suits will be more in evidence among business men who take a "step out a step or two" away from their conservatism in dress.

Illustrated here is unquestionably the leader among the styles of Sport Suits. The pictures give both the front and back view. The fur patch pockets to button, the straight yoke, the inverted pleat and three-quarter loose belt are all outstanding style-features which give a preference to this model.

In addition to the two and three button single breasted models, there are double breasted models greatly favored by many; also semi-conservative styles. Choice of wear-resisting cassimeres in blues, grays and browns, club checks, tartan plaids and fancy mixtures. Sizes 35 to 44.

$19.75
$24.75
$29.75

Also single and double breasted, two and three button conservative suits—at the above three popular prices.
