ATHENA, OREGON, OCT. 20 1922

When in pessimistic mood those of us who do not own a car are fond of pointing out that a good half of the people's financial woes is due to lavish spending on automobiles and the gasoline with which to run them. Yet there's another phase of the question. Cars are a real asset when used for service, and are likewise of value in promoting the enjoyment of the populace. Pursuit of pleasure, in moderation, is essential to mankind's well-being, and cars have afforded us a wonderful advantage over all preceding generations. This temporal blessing is not to be denied because of its frequent abuse by speed demons and joy riders. Rather should a strict curb be put upon the latter's dangerous activities. However, the citizen who spends most of his surplus on automobiles should lay the blame where it properly belongs, and not on the government, for his slim bank account.

Having sold to American "investors" for $960,000,000 paper marks that are now worth only $56,000,000, Germany has made more out of the printing business than most country editors.

The Brooksville Record thinks that "it is hard to understand a sex that is too proud to do housework at $15 a week, but will marry and do it for nothing."

Ten traffic accidents is Portland's record for one week. Evidently pedestrians must be kept off the streets if cars are to be kept off the pedestrians.

The prudent Oregon housewife will insist that her spouse take out a life and accident insurance policy at the same time he does his hunting license.

Rockefeller's income is said to be larger than Henry Ford's. The more "tin lizzies" that are turned out the more gasoline it takes to run 'em.

While the "importance" of Saturday's football game may not set well with the Pendletonians, as compared with the coming Enterprise game, the fact that the Pendleton team was thoroughly licked by Athena will not be overlooked by conference officials in summing up for the season. Let Pendleton pin her estimation on population, if she desires; we'll gauge ours by the number of games won.

The New Brunswick murder mystery is becoming plain to us. We theorize that the slayer got hold of and read one of Hall's mushy notes to Mrs. Mills and was driven to homicidal mania.

"Our own opinion," says the Baltimore Sun, "is that the kangaroo is just one of Nature's abortive efforts to produce a safe pedestrian."

Speaking of lucky days, the Edmonton Journal points out the one on which the United States declined a mandate for Constantinople.

Must be immoral support the Turk has been getting from Russia, since that is the only kind of which the bolsheviks are capable.

"A small business that pays is better than a big one that doesn't," is among the Sap and Salt man's most sapient remarks.

We're simply not going to say that Hermonston has qualified as the county's "earthquake center" because it needs a shaking up.

England should have reflected that if on a good many occasions she hadn't let George do it, it might never have been done.

It will soon be realized that the change in England's government and not in the pockets of her idle workmen.

Lloyd George has resigned. It wasn't fair, anyhow, that Wilson, Clemenceau and Orlando should have all the luck.

Despite his recent literary efforts, Bill Hohenzollern will best be remembered as the author of the World War.

Disapproval of congress is not quite unanimous, its record having been endorsed by President Harding.

Voliva may succeed in keeping Methodists out of Zion City on earth but not, we trust, in heaven.

"Couple Spoon in Tree" at Long Beach, California. Looks to us as though the tree would leave.

None but themselves will regret that the Wobblies have made at Portland a striking failure.

In view of the fact that it helped to arm the Turk, we feel a certain degree of hesitancy in sharing the confidence of the French chamber of confidence in Premier Poincare's government.

Trust Henry to be careful, however, that his beloved Fords will never take a drop too much.

Serve the bally Turk right if his bloomin' country went bolshevik.

"The correctly attired man of the next few months will wear trousers with a corset effect." This decree from the national clothiers in convention assembled is apt to meet with numerous breeches.

Trouble is, too, that England cannot burn the coal in her busted coalition.

England will be guided hereafter by Law if not the gospel.
