In

The Dressmaker From Paris

featuring

Leatrice Joy and Ernest Torrence

"The Dressmaker from Paris" is not just a picture. It marks the return of Leatrice Joy to the screen, and you can let it sink deep down that Miss Joy is an inspired actress in this picture. As Fifi, the little arrand girl of the Paris shop who wins a contest and becomes a famous creator of fashions, Miss Joy gives to the screen the most fascinating role in her career of many fine characterizations. Ernest Torrence, of "Covered Wagon" and "Peter Pan" fame, is featured at the head of the supporting cast. He plays the role of a Scotch department store owner with moths in his pocketbook.
