Oregon State News Notes

The damage to dining-room equipment resulting from the riot involving approximately 200 convicts in the Oregon state penitentiary at Salem will be paid out of the prisoners' amusement fund, according to announcement made by J. W. Lillie, warden of the institution. Warden Lillie said that it probably would require $190 to replace the broken dishes and repair the tables, chairs and other furnishings.

The recent freshets in the Santiam river and Hamilton creek worked a great benefit to the shingle industry of Lebanon. The Super Shingle company had a large number of shingle bolts in Hamilton creek, which they were unable to get down the stream to the mill at Lebanon. The high water became of the right stage to easily float the bolts, and the company got to the mill nearly 2000 cords of shingle bolts.

Ten thousand pine trees, beetle-infested, in the Spencer creek watershed, west of Klamath Falls, will be sacrificed this year by three lumber concerns in a desperate effort to stamp out the parasite infestation. The three concerns are the Weyerhaeuser Timber company, the Long-Bell Lumber company and the Oshkosh Lumber company. It is estimated that the 10,000 trees that must be cut represent between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 board feet of timber. At $4 a thousand the stumpage would cost between $35,000 and $40,000. The pine beetle control camp, composed of 20 men, has commenced control work.

Wild geese that have become in-trap and, due to the closed season, are immune from the ordinary menaces of hunters and shotguns, have made their winter home in Gilliam county, near Arlington and Bialock. A man has been employed by the game commission to drive constantly up and down the wheat fields in an automobile to frighten the geese away, due to complaints received several weeks ago from farmers that their wheat fields were being despoiled, but the geese have become so tame that this has so far had little effect, the geese going no further away from the fields than is necessary to keep from being actually run down. In the neighborhood of 50,000 to 75,000 geese are estimated to be encamped in the region.

Immediate relief for 18 Oregon counties and one in Washington which have lost tax payments through the return of the Oregon & California railroad grant lands to the federal government under the act of 1916, is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Stanfield in the senate, under which the counties affected would receive approximately $4,911,000.

Continuing until Monday, March 15, which is the last day for filing federal income tax returns for the calendar year 1925, field deputies from the office of Clyde G. Huntley, collector of internal revenue at Portland, will visit the principal cities and towns of Oregon to assist taxpayers to prepare their returns and compute the amount of tax due the government.

Elimination of governmental employees who have ceased to be necessary since war and immediate postwar conditions have passed was asked in a resolution passed by the Albany chamber of commerce, to be forwarded to congress.
