"ISOLATING WAR GERMS"

Commenting in The Independent, on the aims of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations being founded at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Owen D. Young, private citizen of the United States, but one of the world's greatest men, says:

"Nations through their diplomatic services, collect facts of tremendous importance, but in the nature of things diplomatic intelligence is to promote national interest. Consequently, there is need to disinterested study by men fully as acute as the diplomats, but who stand quite outside their circle of interest, and whose future do not depend upon the success or failure of any national aim or policy.

"The Walter Hines Page School of International Relations plans to begin this study in a modest way and grow up to its full opportunity by degrees. The cooperation of all American universities will permit the work to go forward in a large way at small cost. I dream of the time when similar units in Japan, England and France and elsewhere will be making contributions to the world's store of facts on international relations.

"This generation cannot reasonably hope that its posterity will be supermen; but our successors will be able to do their work far better if we do our level best to provide them with facts now unknown, but merely awaiting discovery. That is a big job, but surely not too big for a generation which has seen what we have seen, and which is marching from one triumph to another in so many lines of thought and work."

IN PLAIN ENGLISH

"We continue reducing the national debt," says Frederick Palmer in the American Legion Weekly, "and we are again reducing national taxes. But extravagant borrowing continues to increase state, city and town debts and taxes. When they are short of money or need to finance a new project they float more bonds. Each project is worth the cost only if it gives back full value to the public. Every dollar of interest on any kind of a public bond is another dollar in taxes; and every dollar in taxes is another dollar that comes out of the people in increased cost of living. The landlord who has to pay more taxes raises the rent on your house and on the store where you buy your food. All the economy cannot be practiced by the housewife and the national government. Look out for the waste between the home unit and the national unit. Make sure that you get value delivered in the new bridges, roads and streets, and that no project is just an opportunity to sell bonds.

An exchange observes that this world in which we live has changed so materially in the last few years that many of our viewpoints and judgments have had to be revised. The rapid strides of transportation and communication have given us new neighbors. No matter what anyone may say, science is so compressing the world that we as a nation, cannot isolate ourselves. It is too small for us to be isolated from each other, and avoid irritation through want of contact. Why talk of isolation when the people of Berlin, Chicago, New York, London and Paris danced to the music of the same orchestra on New Year's night?

HERE AND THERE

Well, we see by the esteemed advertisement that shorteas are now on the market and by the picture of the living model that they are scuttier than scutties and teeny-weener than teeny-weenies and snuggler than snuggles and we guess the next garment of this nature that comes out will have to be called absentees.—Ohio State Journal.

The American women have kept the Japanese silkworms on the jump during the past year. Postal cards from the empire of the mikado indicate that the worms have had the liveliest year they have ever known and the exports of silk from Japanese harbors are much heavier than they have ever seen before.—Los Angeles Times.

The theory that Grover Bergdoll is being prosecuted in Germany in the hope that he will be expelled from that land and sent here will not hold water. German courts have a habit of punishing criminals, not rewarding them.—New York Sun.

ings and the ancient streets can be seen, when the light is right, the council committee trying to widen them.—Minneapolis Journal.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

If the family likes kidneys the following will be liked and they may eat them with the knowledge that they are, with liver, one of the most nourishing of our meats.

Deviled Kidneys.—Whip one-third of a cupful of butter to a cream, add one teaspoonful of dry mustard, the same of lemon juice, and salt to taste. Clean the kidneys and let them soak in water with a little salt, for an hour. Wipe dry and cut into small pieces and saute in two tablespoonfuls of butter, cook twenty minutes, add the creamed butter, one tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce and the mustard and lemon. Strain until well seasoned, then serve on toast garnished with thin slices of lemon, sprinkled with minced parsley.

Chicken With Olives.—Cut up two young chickens into joints and cook very tender in three pints of boiling water, salt and pepper when nearly done; add one chopped onion. Drain and wipe dry, then fry until brown in our sweet fat. Strain the broth, using a large cupful for the sauce; put this into a frying pan after the chicken is cooked, add two dozen chopped green olives, a tablespoonful of capers, and when hot pour over the chicken and serve.

Apple Sponge.—Pare, core and cook six tart apples to a pulp. Rub through a sieve. Mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with three tablespoonfuls of cold water, add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of boiling water. Add the apple pulp, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and sugar to taste. Beat well, remove from the heat and add three yolks of eggs well beaten. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in a shallow dish until puffed and brown.

Cream of Celery Soup.—Take three cupfuls of diced celery, cook in boiling water until tender. Press through a sieve. Scald three cupfuls of milk with a slice of onion, add the milk to the celery, removing the onion. Melt four tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and mix well. Add to the soup, cook until smooth, serve hot with croutons.

Grief in Animals

A man or woman who loses some dear one is overcome with deep sorrow, remembering only the admirable qualities of the lost one, but this feeling is soon softened by a multitude of external impressions and influences, so that sorrow gives way to melancholy, which in its turn diminishes.

Not so in the case of many animals. These not only retain their grief much longer, but there are cases in which it lasts as long as life itself.

The cat will swim after her kittens when some cruel man is trying to drown. The story of the dog who starves to death on the grave of his master is no fable. A stone in the Paris dogs' cemetery is thus inscribed: "He was so intelligent that he might have been taken for a human being—but that he was faithful."—Das Neue Ullstein Magazin, Berlin.
