AS WE FIND THEM

No intelligence test yet devised beats the ballot.—New Orleans Item.

The old-fashioned girl who kneaded the dough now has a daughter who whether she needs it or not, generally gets it.—Fort Wayne News Sentinel.

Geologist claims the world is only one million years old. Flatterer.—Lawrence, (Mass.) Eagle.

News items say that in Vermont and Georgia the law entitles a man his wife's earnings. What have Florida and California to offer to offset this?—Arkansas Gazette.

A missing western cashier was described as six feet tall and $6,000 short. The six feet got away; the shortage remains.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The fire hydrant knows exactly where the best parking place is.—Miami News.

Yes, as somebody remarked, sewage is a serious problem. Especially when its printed.—Rockford Star.

What is needed is less advice for the merchant marine and more freight.—Jersey City Journal.

Many a wife craves nothing for her husband lives on his account.—Judge.

The most complete "booze who" list will be the one the undertakers are now compiling.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

According to some of our foreign critics it's a supreme outrage not to lend a debtor enough money to pay what he owes.—Westerly Sun.

Famous last words: "I'll tell you how to cure that cold."

The Pedestrians Protective Association recently organized will undoubtedly take for its emblem the grasshopper.—Greenboro News.

Does France pay her premiers by the job or day?—Buffalo News.

Even the passing interest in relativity was relative.—Boston Herald.

Too many people think opportunity means a chance to get money without earning it.—Milwaukee Leader.

California reports a seedless lemon, but what the country really needs is a spiritless grapefruit.—Indianapolis Star.

The pedestrian at the street crossing knows he's on his way, but doesn't know where he's going.—Atlanta Constitution.

Now that Bryn Mawr permits it, it would be interesting to know what the faculty of Duke University thinks of co-ed smoking.—Detroit News.

One good way to stifle the scornful tone is to tell the barber that you usually shave yourself.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Well, Russia has gone back to liquor and sin.—Ohio State Journal.

Premier Briand seems determined to inflate the currency and deflate the war debt.—Seattle Times.

Chicago grave diggers strike. Overworked probably because of gang activities.—Everett Daily Herald.

Loose gravel and blinding lights are running synthetic gin a close race in the death columns.—Sioux Falls Argus-Leader.

Sanson had the right idea about advertising. He took two columns and brought down the house.—Charleston Gazette.

About the only thing that will make a modern flapper blush is a box of rouge.—San Francisco Examiner.

When a man says "I run things at my house," he may mean the washing machine or furnace.—Altoona Mirror.

In some financial circles it is being hinted that La Belle France is rapidly becoming La Dumbelle.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Fifty years ago the Russian regime was called "Anarchy." Today it flourishes under the new name of "Sovietism." It has another alias, "Bolshevism." But is the same old devil in a red shirt. Los Angeles Times.

Man showed up at his golf club on Sunday and said it was a toss-up whether he should go to church or out on the links. He had to flip the coin fifteen times.—Seattle Times.

One Elgin matron is trying to invent a pocket-size letter box to hold letters which she requests her husband to mail. The box, if perfected, will work on the principle of an alarm clock and will ring a bell every 15 minutes until the letter is mailed.—Elgin Recorder.

When government ownership displaces private business, the loss in taxes, as well as the excessive cost of operation, is levied upon property and business which survive.—Baker Democrat.

The French chamber of deputies, in its attitude toward all measures thus far proposed to liquidate the nation's indebtedness, seems to have adopted the war-time slogan: "They shall not pass."—Roseburg News-Review.

Grants Pass men appear to be vying with the ladies in bright colored hats for the spring, so far, they seem to be getting the best of it.—Grants Pass Courier.

The fact that a committee of some kind has awarded the blue ribbon to some lady in New Jersey as the "perfect mother" is not one of any particular consequence. The judges did not examine into the situation thoroughly at all. Most any of us could have told them of a mother who had this one beauty in a thousand ways.—Yakima Republic.

Bad company Only two words, but a whole sermon. This was the statement made by W. R. Lloyd just before he was hanged for the murder of Clinton I. Baum of Independence. Bad company since boyhood had led to a life of crime, which was ended abruptly on the scaffold when he was only 26 years of age.—Polk County Itemizer.

The inventor of barbed wire is dead. Any boy who has ever invaded a melon patch and left in a hurry will agree that the inventor was no benefactor of mankind.—Everett Herald.

It may be more contrariness of course, but occasionally a man ceases to be a grouch when people begin calling him one.—Kent Adviser-Journal.

Spaniard Gets Credit for the Frankfurter

What is a hot dog? Well, it is mostly bull; bull meat mixed with pork, highly spiced, steam cooked and smoked over hickory smoke. It originated in Bologna, Spain, so long ago that only the main facts may be recalled. They used to slaughter an enormous number of bulls in the arenas of Spain in days when bullfighting was more popular and more brutal than it is today.

It looked like a great economic crime to see so much prize beef wasted. But nobody wanted bull beef just so; bulls are tough and not so delicious as cows and steers are. A butcher in Bologna had an idea and bought bulls that were killed in the bull ring and made the meat into a sausage, mixed with pork and highly seasoned. Bologna sausage appeared to the popular taste.

Germans borrowed the formula, put the same sausage mixture into small casings and Bologna became "Frankfurter" in Frankfurt and "Weenie" in Vienna. Coney Island gave it the name of hot dog and popularized it.

One stand in Coney Island that has been selling hot dogs for half a century is reputed to have a sale of five to ten tons of Frankfurters a day in the busy season. Somebody has to sell a lot of ten to get rid of that 400,000,000 pounds a year.—Colliers' Magazine.

Columbia Basin Pact Favored

Washington, D. C.—The house has placed its stamp of approval on a measure to authorize $25,000 for promoting a Columbia river compact directing distribution of its waters among states of Washington, Montana, Idaho and Oregon. Both this bill and one resembling it, which has been passed by the senate, are designed to promote the development of irrigation projects in the Columbia river basin.

First Loves Lose Out

Few men marry the first woman with whom they fall in love, says Elsa Rema, the Dorothy Dix of Germany. Chance, she says, is mightier than Cupid and usually first loves become separated. . . . Men marry readily when young, Fraulein Rema finds, but when they are confirmed bachelors it takes sympathetic housekeepers to land them. Widowers are easy marks because they no longer know how to live alone. They are used to a home and feminine caresses and are unable to do without the comforts and tenderness that goes with married life. . . . Same on this side of the water, Rema. Same on this side.—Capper's Weekly.

Juniper Tree Older Than King Solomon

There is something about an ancient tree that wins our reverence whether we know much about trees or not. And sometimes one of these veterans is found of such age that we seek in vain for a word that expresses our feelings about it.

In Logan canyon, Utah, a knotted old juniper has very recently been discovered; the men of science say that it had reached a vigorous life before King Solomon was born. A student in the Utah agricultural college discovered it. The tree is still growing, its roots imbedded in rock at an elevation of 7,300 feet above sea level; it is about forty-four feet high. The old tree has been taking its nourishment from the limestone cliff for 3,000 years. All that time this noble veteran has fought a lonely but victorious fight against wind and storm and drought. Through its long struggle the old juniper has acquired such strength that it is actually breaking apart the ledge on which it grows and gradually pushing several tons of rocky material away from the edge of the cliff. The national forest service has been asked to protect this tough old settler from the souvenir hunters, by surrounding it with a strong steel fence.—Youth's Companion.

Oregon Ballot Titles Finished

Salem, Or.—Ballot titles for initiative measures providing for old age pensions in the state of Oregon and repeal of the so-called motor vehicle registration title law enacted at the last session of the legislature were completed by the attorney-general.

WILL GO TO PARIS

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McFadden, in company with Dr. and Mrs. Smith of Portland, are contemplating going to Paris in September, 1927, where the two ex-service men will attend the International Legion convention.

WOODMEN MEETING

The local Woodman Camp is preparing for a big meeting on the evening of April 7, when the Walla Walla degree team will put on the initiatory work. A big feed will be a feature of the evening, and all Woodmen are requested to be present.

THE B. Y. P. U.

The B. Y. P. U. will hold a Sunrise prayer meeting Easter morning on a hill on the Jesse Smith farm, Mrs. E. M. Bollinger leader. Miss Lorraine Terry song leader. After the services an Easter breakfast will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cannon.

SCHOOL BUILDING

At an estimated cost of $80,000, Weston school district No. 19, is contemplating the construction of a new school building, reports the Leader. A meeting was recently held and the matter was enthusiastically discussed. It is said that the present building is unsafe, reports to that effect having been received from the state fire marshal and Architect Osterman.

The Upset Of A Little Lamp

The disastrous fire at Chicago in 1871, resulting from a cow upsetting a small lamp, shows how little things grow into enormous proportions.

It was not the kicking over of a lamp that started a little store but it was the little store itself that started a business growing into one of National importance.

The first J. C. Penney Company Store—then known as the Golden Rule Store—transacted less than a $29,000 business the first year. Less than a quarter of a century later, we find it with 676 Stores, doing a business of approximately $90,000,000.

That's a reward of service!
