The Sea Beast

From the Story "Moby Dick"

With

John Barrymore and Dolores Costello

With a powerful Cast in the Greatest Sea Picture ever screened

"In 'The Sea Beast,' I hope to make live again before the eyes of America and the world, one of the most adventurous, colorful, and characteristically American of industries, that of whaling, now defunct and living only in all its glory and glamor in the traditions of New Bedford and of such novels as 'Moby Dick.'"—John Barrymore.

An epic of the golden age of sea-faring heroism—the love and hate of brothers on the whaling ships of 1840; a mighty super drama of heroic lives and treacherous infamy.

Gloria Swanson

In

The Coast of Folly

The phrase, "The greatest Swanson picture ever made," has been used before. Not without truth. But if ever a picture merited that phrase, it's "The Coast of Folly." Only this time it ought to be printed in bold italics, for that's just what it is—The Greatest Swanson Picture Ever Made. Gloria's greatest acting role—her first big dual role in which she plays two distinct characters.
