In

The Trouble With Wives

How often you've heard men start out that way and launch into a serio-comic rigamarole about the frailties and foibles of the poor dear ladies that leave you undecided whether to laugh or shed a tear of sympathy. Well, here's a picture comedy that tells frolicsomenly just what the trouble with wives is, and what's to be done about it. Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin wrote it. Malcolm St. Clair, who made "Are Parents People?" directed. Tom Moore is seen as the husband; Florence Vidor is the wife. Esther Ralston is the vamp and Ford Sterling, Moore's bungling college chum.
