Athena, Oregon, April 22.....1927

It is a noticeable fact that adult education is increasing as is manifested in correspondence students in Oregon, as well by increase shown in other states. Leaving of school work at the completion of the eighth grade or at the end of the high school course, has been found in after years by adults to make them deficient in educational requirements demanded for success in many vocations that opened to them. Ordinarily the student who acquires a thorough high school education is fitted to begin life's work, but as times have changed, occupational opportunity has become more of the specialized order with the result that the high school graduate finds that he is handicapped in his application to preferred vocations, as compared with the student who took at least a preparatory course in institutions of higher education.

The Portland Journal assumes to believe that New York's banished crime bandits are flocking to the coast cities, and sees in the twin robberies of the Olds, Wortman & King department store, evidence that they are operating in Portland. The swansong of the gangster was sung in Gotham when the legislature at Albany passed a real law in defense of society which effectively sawed crime mongers short off at the pockets. The same legislative dose in the behalf of decent, law abiding citizens is needed in every state in the union.

We read that Tammany has organized the "Columbia order, a patriotic and benevolent order of which political Tammany Hall is an outgrowth." Further the Tammany outfit proposes to invade other states by forming "auxiliary wigwags," little festered sprouts coordinating with the New York Tammany society. Well, we have always had a leaning toward Jeffersonian democracy, but here's hoping that the G. O. P. will be so allied strong in Oregon that the roots of Tammanyism will forever wither here.

The lower Mississippi is having its annual battle with dykes and the dykes are breaking, bringing ruin and misery to plantation owners in the lowlands. Within the week 25,000 persons in the southern flooded districts have become refugees. It begins to look like the reclamation policy of the government will eventually have to be turned toward the building of dykes and levees instead of dams and canals.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the financial difficulties now being encountered by the Portland Evening Telegram may be satisfactorily adjusted by the cooperative movement on the part of the employees—the men and women whose sweat has bought from the public appreciation of the paper's real worth—and that the Telegram will continue to fill the important niche it has held for fifty years at Portland and in the state.

"Calling attention to the possibility of trouble ahead in the coal fields, Carry C. Abell, past president of the American Gas Association, predicts that a phenomenal turning to gas fuel by both industries and homes will be an outstanding development of the next five years." Yes, And if the proper development of Umatilla Rapids and other meritorious projects were realized, electricity would be enabled to do its share.

It is a question whether or not the proposed national movement in asking motorists to cooperate in saving lives of birds and wild animals along the highways will function, because of the mere fact that the average motorist is usually in such a hurry that he cannot determine whether his machine strikes a wren or a moose.

The real trouble confronting the accomplishment of church union, is that it is rather hard on the fellow who is called on to turn the key in the door lock and batten up his church house windows. Church property may be only church property, but it's property just the same.

Senator McNary announces to Salem cherry growers that the tariff commission has assured him that the import duty on that fruit will be raised. All of which is cause for cherry men to perk up and smile quite a bit.

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Smith have front page space now, and the scare heads on religion are just as scary as are the heads carrying chronicles of murders and robberies.

The Social Side

Happy, Happy Kiddies

Mrs. Richard Thompson entertained a bevy of youngsters at an Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon. Despite the cold windy day the Easter bunnies had hidden dozens of eggs in the Thompson garden and the eighteen little guests scrambled about harvesting the gay colored trophies. After the hunt the hostess served ices and cakes to the happy kiddies.

Bridge at Mrs. Watts

Mrs. H. I. Watts entertained informally when a small group of friends were invited to her attractive home on south third street. Guests sufficient for two tables of bridge were present. Mrs. Henry Barrett making high score and Mrs. W. P. Littlejohn received the consolation prize. Dainty ices and cakes were served.

The Etude Club

Members of the Etude club spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Ames Tuesday. The swansong of the gangster was sung in Gotham when the legislature at Albany passed a real law in defense of society which effectively sawed crime mongers short off at the pockets. The same legislative dose in the behalf of decent, law abiding citizens is needed in every state in the union.

Frankel, president of the Oregon Federation of Womens clubs. A most interesting program was enjoyed, the Etude contributing two chorus numbers and Mrs. David Stone a solo.

Gave Silver Tea

A very pleasant event of Wednesday was the silver tea at the home of Mrs. F. B. Boyd on Fifth street. Easter lilies and other spring flowers adorned the rooms and the beautifully appointed tea table was centered with yellow and white roses and narcissus. The affair was sponsored by the women of the Christian church for benefit of the orphan girls' University at Eugene. Mrs. David Stone gave two songs, and Mrs. C. M. Eager a reading, which were much appreciated. Proceeds were $15.

Newlyweds Serenaded

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koepke Jr. were surprised by a group of friends who serenaded the newlyweds with an old fashioned charivari. After the due amount of din the perpetrators were entertained by music, dancing and later a buffet supper was served.

Enjoyable Easter Service

A most profitable and enjoyable Easter service was held at the Baptist church Sunday morning when the church was filled to capacity. Special Easter music by a large choir was enjoyed. The theme of the sermon, delivered by Rev. Bollinger, was "Victory and Immortality." The auditorium was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, fruit blossoms and daffodils. A feature, was the song birds among the flowers.
