Game Commission Sets Pheasant Dates for Wednesday, Saturday

The state game commission Monday stuck to its former decision to charge Washington residents $10 for hunting and $5 for angling in Oregon. This puts the matter up squarely to the Washington officials to abide by the reciprocity clause on its non-resident game fee statute, the commissioners believe. The Washington act sets the non-resident charge at the amount of the fee charged its own residents in other states. If successful the Oregon charge will reduce the Washington non-resident fee about $10 so far as Oregon residents are concerned.

For Idaho residents the commission will charge $50 for combination hunting license including large game, $5 for hunting of birds and $5 for angling, the fees charged Oregon people in that state.

Linton and Benson lakes in the McKenzie pass district and Thomas, Blyue and Crabtree creeks were opened to fishing. Their tributaries remain closed.

Days for the twice-a-week Chinese pheasant hunting schedule for Eastern Oregon, prescribed by the last legislature, were set for Saturday and Sunday, the opening days, and Sundays and Wednesdays thereafter during October.

At a recent meeting of the Umatilla County Game Protective association held at the club house of the Echo Rod and Gun club the sportsmen passed a resolution to be sent to the state game commission designating Sundays and Wednesdays as the days for shooting during the open season on China pheasants in this district.

Gilbert New Head

Appointment of Doctor James H. Gilbert as permanent dean of the university college of literature science and the arts, Professor Charles E. Carpenter as head of the law school and Earl M. Pallett as University registrar were some of the 34 changes in faculty personnel approved by the board of regents at its meeting Tuesday. Doctor Gilbert has been acting dean of the law school faculty since 1922 and Mr. Pallett comes from the faculty of Teachers college of Madison, South Dakota.

O. A. C. Building Damaged

Fire swept the fourth floor of the chemistry building at Oregon Agricultural college Tuesday and water poured in by fire fighters caused heavy damage to the lower floors of the building. The fire started from an explosion in a laboratory on the fourth floor. The same building was swept by a fire eighteen months ago with a loss of about $30,000. Early estimates placed the loss in Tuesday's fire at about $15,000.

Kills Coyotes, Saves Deer

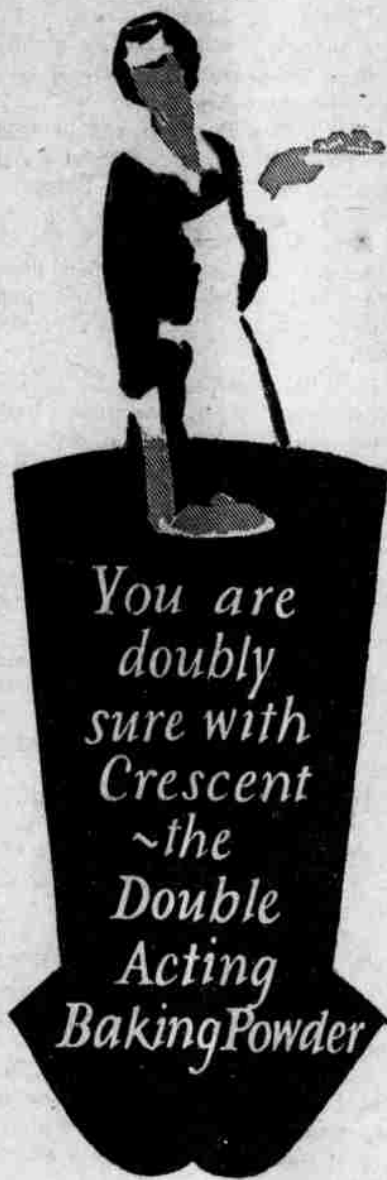

The Rev. Robert Brumblay, and J. J. Keyes returned Sunday after a ten days hunting and fishing trip on the Wenaha River, reports the Walla Walla Union. During their trip they arrived on the scene of an interesting bit of drama of wild life. Two coyotes in pursuit of a mother deer and two fawns were shot down in the nick of time by Rev. Brumblay. The mother deer in her fright deserted one fawn which followed Mr. Keyes back to camp and played with their hunting dog. After feeding the animal the hunters returned it to the scene of action and its fond parent.

Land Thrown Open

Oregon and California grant lands which have been open to ex-service men since February 23, were thrown open to the general public Tuesday. Monday was the last day of the preferential period allowed the former soldiers. Yesterday was the day set for drawings in cases in which more than one civilian has filed on a parcel of land. This distribution will be the last work of the Portland land office, which is to be closed June 30. Remaining public lands will be handled from the Roseburg land office.
