ALL FARM BOARD MEMBERS PASSED

Senate Confirms Eight On Board; Only Three Contested.

Washington.—Confirmation of the eight men selected by President Hoover to administer the farm relief act, was voted overwhelmingly by the senate.

Contests were waged against only three of the men—Alexander Legge of Chicago, the chairman and business representative; and Samuel R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, wheat representative; Carl Williams of Oklahoma, for cotton.

Roll calls were taken only on three, the others receiving approval without record votes. Legge was approved 67 to 13, McKelvie 50 to 27 and Williams 57 to 20.

The leaders of the democrats and republican independents, who twice put the export debenture principle of farm relief into the farm bill over President Hoover's objections, before the house finally rejected it, joined to express a willingness to give the president his own board to administer his own act.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, voted for all the nominees. Senator Borah of the republican independents supported Legge but voted against both McKelvie and Williams. Senator Norris of Nebraska, of this group, voted against Legge and Williams but refrained from voting on McKelvie.

"The responsibility must rest where it belongs," Senator Robinson stated in announcing that he was willing to give Mr. Hoover the farm board he chose to administer the act he demanded.

Idaho Vandals Are Real Menace For Northwest Conference Championship

University of Oregon.—Idaho, with a 19 to 0 triumph over Montana has become Oregon's immediate menace in the Northwest, and even more thorough preparation than had been previously planned will begin in the Webfoot camp Monday following the 34 to 0 slaughter of the light Willamette team Saturday. Since Washington's miserable showing against U. S. C., the Oregon-Vandal battle at Portland this week-end has moved into the position of prime importance in the north.

With the exception of Idaho, which will not run into southern competition until November 23 when it plays the Trojans at Los Angeles, all the teams north of the California line have been edged out of the Pacific Coast conference title race. The interest in the north now is to determine what Northwest football team is supreme in its own section.

Last year the unofficial title was divided between Oregon and Washington State, but the Cougars, in a last minute upset, were toppled from their claims by losing to Washington, 6 to 0, in the final game of the year. Thus on the basis of an undefeated conquest of the north in 1928, the title of the "strongest team in the Northwest" was tacked on to the Webfoots.

This year, however, the claim to Northwest supremacy is contended for by four schools. Washington, although still a factor, was pushed into secondary importance through its tie with Montana, and the Grizzlies in turn were automatically dropped after the loss to the Vandals. The four teams who now stand foremost in the north are Oregon, Oregon State, Idaho and Washington State.

Dayton Outplayed Mac-Hi According To Dayton View

Football is a hot topic in Milton-Freewater this year, where Mac-Hi has what is considered to be a winning team. Last Saturday, the game in which Dayton won from Mac-Hi by the score of 13 to 0, was a desperately fought contest.

It has since been whispered around that Dayton received the breaks in the game but a Dayton fan has this to say in the Walla Walla Union:

"Dayton went into this game outweighed at least ten pounds to the man, and outfought Mac-Hi from whistle to whistle. Dayton recovered almost every fumble simply because its boys were rushing the ball and always had two or three fighting wildcats within reach of it. We were hitting those big boys so hard it hurt and they simply were never given a chance to start a march to the goal line. Contrary to your recital of the game neither score came as a result of a recovered fumble. One score was a beautifully executed forward pass and it was an earned score in anybody's game. The second score was an interception returned to a touchdown."

Athena Is Playing At Hermiston Today

"Pike" Miller and his Athena high school football players, left this morning for Hermiston, where they will play Hermiston in the second game of the season, this afternoon. Hermiston defeated the local team on the home grounds in a hard fought contest, 6 to 0, on September 20.

Hermiston in the game here proved to be better than last year, but the Athena team forced her to use all she had in her repertoire of plays. Having this knowledge, the Athena team should be in a position to hold the west end team to another close score, or maybe take this afternoon's contest.

Athena has improved since meeting Hermiston here. New plays have been developed and the line and backfield has been strengthened by several shifts recently made by the coach. Today's game should be a good one.

Here a 90-mile portage was made over the summit of the Rocky mountains to the headwaters of the Bell river, where the two men embarked in skin canoes for a 500-mile float down the western slope of the Rockies, the Bell and the Porcupine to Fort Yukon. Report Made By the County Health Nurse

Helen J. Samson, new county health nurse, gives the following report for publication in the county papers:

A large portion of the month has been spent in getting acquainted with the people and the conditions in the county. All the dentists and nearly all the doctors have been called upon, as well as many of the local people of the different towns who are interested in the health program.

As the greatest number of defects among the school children are listed under the heading of teeth, we are hoping for wonderful results from the coming dental survey by Dr. Brunk, of Salem. On account of the survey, it has been necessary to locate as many of the rural schools as possible and endeavor to have definite directions for reaching them, this has taken much time and without the aid of Mr. Yeager, county school superintendent, would have been impossible. Many of the larger schools have been visited and conferences held with the principals for the purpose of organizing the work. The pupils in nine of the rural schools have been given the regular routine examination.

A class for mothers was held in Pilot Rock. This was the first of a series of eight lessons.

Investigations were made for the county court, the Oregon Child Welfare commission, and the Doernbecher hospital.

Mr. Willis was returning to Echo after buying butter at Hermiston, when he attempted to pass another car, struck the gravel and the accident resulted. A passing motorist took Mr. Willis to the Hermiston hospital where he died in half an hour. He was badly bruised and suffered a fracture of the skull near the temple.

Burglar Injured In Blast, Leaves An Ear and a Finger Behind

Roseburg.—The mutterings of an injured man while recovering from an anesthetic, paved the way to jail for Harry and Raymond Carr of Portland, on suspicion of being the men who attempted to blow a safe at Grants Pass.

Harry Carr had been taken to a hospital here by Raymond Carr, who said they were brothers, physicians revealed. The former was suffering from the loss of two fingers and an ear and other injuries. Physicians said they decided surgical attention was necessary.

Later Harry was removed to a ward. Physicians said other patients heard him mutter of "safe robberies." Sheriff G. T. Jackson was notified and he placed the brothers under arrest.

Physicians declared the injured man might not live.

Police at Grant's Pass said one of the robbers who attempted to blow the safe, had been injured. Bits of human flesh splattered the walls of the Golden Rule department store and a trail of blood led to the offices of Dr. C. E. Marks and Mrs. C. J. Moser in an adjacent building, where a human finger was found. Opiates and surgical instruments were reported to have been stolen from the physicians' offices.

The blast did not open the safe but wrecked it so badly that experts were unable to open it despite several hours of work.

Questioned here by Sheriff Jackson and Sheriff Lister of Grants' Pass, Raymond Carr denied any knowledge of the robbery. He said his brother had been injured in a hunting accident near here. The officers declared, however, that they found safe burglars tools and a bottle of nitro-glycerine in an automobile said to have been driven by Carr.

Hay Market Affects Sales of Livestock

The most active fall hay market in many years with average prices for alfalfa in Oregon $2.60 above the level of a year ago, is reported in the weekly market review just released by the agricultural economics department of the state college extension service. Scarcity of feed because of poor pastures has stimulated the demand for hay at the same time that holdings the country over are some seven million tons below last year's total.

This situation in the feed market has caused heavier shipments of unfinished cattle and hogs to market, temporarily depressing the price. The general outlook remains favorable after the present forced shipments are over, although some observers believe that the market for stocker and feeder cattle will remain somewhat below that of last year.

School Boys Stage a Round-Up at Helix

Hugh and Donald McEwen aspiring young cowboys of the district north west of Athena are receiving quite a lot of newspaper notoriety this fall. The two boys took part in the pony races at the Walla Walla County fair last month, riding their Shetlands to and from the scene of action.

Last week during the vacation granted school children on account of the Teachers' Institute, the boys staged a miniature Round-Up in Helix at the Gun Club Park.

Details were carefully arranged, the parade being a feature of the day. Hugh, who was president led the concourse on a beautiful bay horse. A large number of buckaroos in brilliant costumes, a stage coach followed by Red Cross attendants with emergency cot wended its way to the grounds, when races and the bucking contest amused the large crowd of spectators. Admission of five and ten cents was charged, the receipts of the day totaling five dollars which was used in prizes for the successful contestants.

Hubert Snapp, Gordon Gammell and Harold Pierce were the judges. No casualties were suffered but Warren Hicks met with an accident when he fell from the large mule on which he was performing.

Three Deer Brought In

The boys returned home Monday forenoon Friday, John Stanton and Jens Jensen drove out west of Ukiah and returned Monday with two bucks, each hunter killing one out of a band of five, driven past them by shots of other hunters.

An interesting and attractive program is being arranged for a praise service to occur at the Christian church Sunday evening. Solos, duets and quartettes will be featured, a short devotional exercise and congregational singing are also planned for the occasion. An urgent invitation is extended to all to attend.
