Athena, Oregon, November 22, 1929

Three young robbers caught wrecking a safe in Seattle, proved to be Portland boys, ranging in age from 17 to 19. Two were brothers and in attempting to escape had their legs perforated with buckshot. The youngest of the trio was captured without being wounded. Police in the metropolitan cities are beginning to realize that it is the kids in greater numbers, and not so much the work of hardened crooks, who are doing most of the petty larceny and "stick-up" jobs encountered so frequently. Gun in hand, a kid bandit shot it out with an officer in Spokane the other day, and only a bullet from another officer's gun and a battered head subdued him. The boy now faces a murder charge, will be convicted and hanged for being a killer. Records disclose that he is a three-time repeater in the state of Minnesota, and in his desperation to keep from being sent back there, he willfully became a murderer.

Senator McNary appears to have everything set, so far as the proceeds from federal lands which may revert to the state is concerned. He has allocated the prospective funds to the construction of a flock of new state buildings at Salem. If these lands do revert to the state, what's the matter with using the funds accruing to patch up the state school fund which long ago was eeked out of the cream of its school land resources. Millions of dollars annually flow into the Washington state school fund from school land resources, and we would like some smart guy to rise up and tell us how much Oregon schools are receiving from school lands—investment or otherwise—if any.

Concerning the feed problem which sheepmen are facing for the winter, the Salem Capital Journal has this to say: "Unless the unexpected comes in the shape of an open winter there threatens to be large losses in sheep this year, report some sheep men. For some time now heavy feeding has been done with sheep because of the dry pastures and inability of the sheep to keep going on their own. It is expected there will be big demand for feed for this purpose before winter is over."

After enduring hardship in attempting to rescue passengers and valuable furs from the trading ship Nanuk, icebound in the Arctic off the coast of Siberia, pilots of two Alaska planes have been forced to give up the attempt after making one round trip. The planes were wrecked, one in an attempt to take off under a heavy load of gasoline. Maybe the mode of dog team transportation in the far north is destined to remain a while longer.

Paschal Ortiz Rubio, national revolution party candidate, is the new president of Mexico. Paschal was elected to office last Sunday with all the gala day trimmings so dear to the Mexican heart. Soldiers patrolled the streets, all cities and towns being like armed camps. The victory was seasoned with twelve slayings in battles for possession of polling places.

A University of Illinois student has been found guilty of bootlegging liquor in a fraternity house. He was fined $500 at last accounts several had been suspended from the University. Charges against two other students were dismissed. Let's see, this institution is the home of the famous Illini football warriors, is it not?

With the statement to his physician, "I have never lost a fight in my life and I am not going to lose this one," James W. Good, secretary of war died in a Washington hospital, Monday of this week, after a brilliant career of service in the house of representatives, before his selection as a member of the Hoover cabinet.

With his engine frozen, a Seattle aviator was forced to choose and choose quickly. He did, and landed on the roof of a department store building. The plane was demolished but aviator and two boy scout passengers escaped with minor injuries.

Japan will be satisfied with a 10-10-7 ratio to replace the ratio of 5-5-3 as established for capital ships at the Washington conference. Let her have it; as a matter of fact it would be 20-7 if it ever comes to a show-down, anyway.

Messrs. "Y" of New York have been invited to take a hunk of shares in the World Bank, an international clearing house. They have accepted the invitation.

A "young guard has sprung up in the United States Senate, members composed of the younger republican regulars. They appear to be cocked and primed to put over a Hoover tariff—if you know what we mean.

Senator Heflin, Alabama democrat, considers Mussolini to be the most dangerous man in the world. And it would be interesting to know what Mussolini thinks of Senator Heflin.

We read in the dispatches that farmers of the Northwest have been "protected"—bulbs, nuts and cherries are included in the new tariff schedule.

A "young guard" has sprung up in sentence a Chinaman charged with conducting a lottery. Well, they do things different in Seattle, anyhow

Life, believe, is not a dream,
So dark as some say;
Oft a little morning rain
Foretells a pleasant day.
Sometimes there are clouds of gloom
But these are transient all;
If showers will make the roses bloom
Oh, why lament its fall.
—Charlotte Bronte.

VARIOUS SUMMER DISHES

The following dressing is excellent with all fruit salads, but try it with two cupfuls of chopped new cabbage, three tablespoonfuls of minced watercress, two-thirds of a cupful of dried chicken breast, two tablespoonfuls of cooked peas and the grated yolks of two hard-cooked eggs.

For dinner on a hot day have a cold meat platter. Arrange thinly sliced chicken left from the previous day, thinly sliced ham and a few slices of cheese. Garnish with eighths of hard-cooked eggs, small yellow tomatoes, peeled, hollowed out and filled with mayonnaise, placing each on a heart leaf of lettuce.

The jellies, jams, marmalades, conserves and preserves as well as pickles of various kinds will convert the most modest meal into a tempting repast. All housewives like to have a supply for their tables. Begin with currants, cherries and strawberries, and go on through the season with goose, black and raspberries, crab apples, peaches, pears, grapes and plums. Some fruits which we have with us all the year such as limes, lemons, oranges and grapefruit, add their zest to the other fruits as well as serving various marmalades.

Spiced Prunes.—Wash a pound of prunes and cover with three cupfuls of cold water. Let stand over night. In the morning simmer gently in the same water until tender. Remove the pits, add to the liquid the juice and rind of a lemon, one-half cupful of vinegar, a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves and allspice. Simmer for five minutes, drop in the prunes and cook five minutes. Remove the fruit to sterilized jars and boil down the syrup for five minutes. Pour over the fruit and seal while hot. This is an excellent stand by and can be made at any time.

SCHOOL TOPICS

(By E. E. Coad, Supt.)

An important function of government is the establishment of standards of value. Thus the gold dollar is the standard of our money value, while we have the English standards of weight, measure, distance, etc., rather than the French metric systems.

While such standards of value are vitally necessary for the orderly conduct of business, there are other standards of value of far more importance to the individual over which the government exercises but incidental, if any, control.

Each of us is motivated by individual ideas of value. Some are actuated in practically everything they do by some dominant motive. Others drift, eddied here and there by every vagary of the current about them, with not a single impulse of dominant inner control to guide or direct them.

It should be an important function of public education at least to make an effort to motivate individual action toward such channels of inner urge as will result in a decent, happy, contented and industrious citizenship.

Many so-called educated people are actuated solely by selfish motives and by the conditional emotional reflexes which they have never learned to control. On the other hand, there are some mighty fine citizens among those who have never had a chance to learn to read or write but who have learned a sane and rational control over their emotional impulses. Many people with collegiate honors attached to their names go through life dominated by the conditional emotional reflexes of an abnormal youth and its resultant jumble of emotional explosions.

Some people cry out against play, games and all athletic exercises in the face of the fact that millions of dollars are being spent every year for golf courses—adult playgrounds. When the home was a factory center and youth had home duties and responsibilities, when human contacts were limited to the immediate family and a rigidly circumscribed neighborhood, the emotional life of the child was adjusted to the environment in which he lived by the duties which his environment forced upon him from an early age. But the standards of the past cannot be used in the solution of the utterly changed games, in athletic and other contests we have the chief influence in school life for the proper conditioning of the emotional reactions of the child which will affect his social and business life with its multiplied and varied contacts.

I have a great deal of confidence in the reactions of youth to the problems of life as he meets them. In fact, youth, generally, is meeting his problems today far better than are the adults of this generation meeting theirs. Even in quarters where youth is "flaming" there are plenty of adults leading the way and still others of the older generation providing the crimson path with all the accessories for a price.

If the adult generation would clean up its own mess of licentious, law-breaking and flaming parasites it would find little left in which to criticize that section of youth that emulates the bizarre adult examples flaunted before its eyes. Such an example would be a salutary one and productive of far more value than the smug observations of the hypercritical observer.
