ARREST THREATENS FOR 2000 TRAPPERS

Failure to Make Report As Oregon Law Requires Each Year.

Portland.—Almost 2000 Oregon trappers, who failed to make the legally required report on their fur for the 1928-29 trapping season, will be arrested and subjected to a court trial as a result of a 40 per cent "fur report deficiency" discovered on the state game commission books.
Orders to ascertain the location of each trapper implicated in the drive were issued to every deputy game warden in the state by Harold Clifford, state game warden.
Each deputy warden will make a careful survey of his own district, locating every man within the area who has not made his report. As soon as each warden completes this task, Mr. Clifford said, complaints will be filed in the district court of the county and immediate legal proceeding will be instituted.
As nearly as present statistics indicate, the number of delinquent trappers can be estimated between 1500 and 2000, it was stated.
Oregon state law requires each holder of a trapper's license to make a complete report of the number and species of animals taken by him during the season. The report is required immediately upon the conclusion of the season.
The shortage is confined to the season beginning November 1, 1928, and ending February 28, 1929.
An opinion received from the attorney-general of the state February 21, 1930, relative to the legality of the requirement of a complete report, indicated that the requirement was in perfect accord with Oregon law, and that such a report was of immense value to the state records.
"The almost incalculable value of these reports may be observed," said Mr. Clifford, "when it is considered that they offer the only conclusive statistical value of Oregon's fur industry."
"Without them, we are unable to calculate the amount of fur taken by traps or to ascertain the approximate abundance of fur-bearing animals within the state boundaries."
"The law is specific in the matter of these reports, and such negligence is inexcusable. We have been planning this drive for two weeks and we intend to carry it through to completion."
The campaign will be carried into virtually every county in Oregon. Mr. Clifford indicated, and the work of locating the individual trappers will represent an immense undertaking on the part of the deputy wardens. The penalty is a fine of $25 to $500.

Representative J. N. Scott Refused Extra Money

Oregonian: Joseph N. Scott, representative of Umatilla and Morrow counties in the 1927 and 1929 legislative session, calls attention to the fact that he was one of the four legislators of the 1927 session who did not accept the $235 extra expense money voted by that session. The others who declined the money were Henry L. Corbett, then, a senator from Multnomah, and Representatives F. E. Settlemeier of Marion and S. A. Miller of Umatilla.
Mr. Scott, who is in Portland on business from Pendleton, says that he also opposed the legislature passing a similar expense money appropriation in 1929. This last appropriation was challenged in the courts and the appropriation has been declared unconstitutional by the Oregon supreme court.

Gamble in Future Pork

The first organized future trading in livestock history began Monday on the Chicago livestock exchange with considerable ceremony and active dealings. The flurry of the grain pits and the roar of the stock exchange were missing, but carloads of hogs for delivery later this year changed hands at prices considerably higher than the day's cash quotations.

Wa-Hi a Contender

By winning the district championship in defeating Garfield 48-24, and Steptoe 36-15 at Pullman, Wa-Hi will be a contender for the state championship at the state tournament at Seattle, March 13, 14 and 15.

DAIRYMEN APPROVE STATEWIDE POLICY

Consumption Drive Decided as Farmers Vote Plan of Added Efficiency.

Oregon State College.—Reaffirming the conclusion reached by the dairy convention of last year regarding expansion, the Oregon Dairymen's association in its annual convention just completed at Marshfield and Coquille, urged gradual expansion only by means of increasing efficiency of herds.
Such efficiency, it was declared, should come through better feeds, elimination of cows under the 300 pound butterfat limit, better sires, and raising of heifer calves only from 300 pound cows and high record sires.
The present surplus of dairy products, it was held, is due to decreased consumption coupled with over expansion in some milk producing sections, particularly the milk sheds of large cities.
To aid in correction of under consumption in this state, the association laid comprehensive plans for a unified campaign of education designed to stimulate use of more dairy products of all kinds, rather than limiting the drive to merely butter, milk or both.
Particular emphasis is to be given to encouraging dairy manufacturers and retail dealers to give more attention to dairy products in paid display advertising in newspapers. A positive campaign in favor of dairy products rather than negative drive against substitutes was the plan of action decided upon.
The association also urged a "shakeup" in the present administration of the tuberculosis and abortion eradication work. A committee was named to confer with the Livestock Sanitary board in an effort to correct alleged serious conditions.
New officers of the association chosen are president, Sidney Miller, Woodburn; first vice president, Marvin Thomas, Redmond; second vice president, Thomas Acree, Hood River; secretary, P. M. Brandt, Oregon State college; assistant secretary, N. C. Jamison, Corvallis. The next convention will be held in Redmond.

Walla Walla Woman Is One Hundred Years Old, Believes People Kinder

Walla Walla.—Nancy Overtuff Patterson has reached the century mark and is being greeted by friends, who drop in to offer their congratulations. Despite her 100 years she is alert, keen of mind and has fair hearing and eyesight considering her years. A widow for 32 years and having buried all of her 11 children, she is philosophical.
"I have outlived my time," she stated, "but I have to stay until the time comes for me to go."
Having seen 100 years pass, she believes the world is not getting any worse.
"There are just more people, cities have grown up where plains used to be bringing more people together and we hear more about things. Further, people think more of others and are not as hard-hearted as they used to be."
Born in Ohio March 1, 1830, Mrs. Patterson moved to Missouri and was married when she was 17 to Andrew Jackson Patterson. Mr. Patterson went to Colorado and was there when the civil war broke out.
Mrs. Patterson wrote him to stay there and she took her five children and drove an ox-team to Illinois. Later she started with her family in a wagon and a supply of food and $5 in cash and drove to Colorado, starting in May and ending her journey in September. Her 5-year-old child died of croup on the way. Fifty years ago the Pattersons came to the Walla Walla valley.
Mrs. Patterson said she has never had an ache or a pain, eats anything she wants to and does not stop to worry about whether it is good for her.
Mrs. Patterson has worn bobbed hair for 50 years. She likes the radio and likes to ride in automobiles.
The Walla Walla Altrusa club presented her with a cake bearing 100 candles.

Has New Method of Issuing Telephone Bills

A new method of issuing telephone bills, known as "Rotation Billing," will be introduced to customers of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company during March and April, according to J. A. Murray, manager for the company.
Under the new plan telephone users in Oregon will be divided into six different groups, each to receive its telephone bills on a different date—the 1st, 6th, 11th, 16th 21st and 26th of the month—instead of the 1st of the month as is now the practice.
The new billing date in Athena, Mr. Murray said, will be the 11th of the month, starting in April. Customers will receive their bills about five days after that date.
The company is giving its customers full details of the plan in an announcement accompanying the regular March bills.

Hermiston After Cannery

A Hermiston correspondent says if growers of the project express their desire for a cannery, the ladies of the Farm Bureau Auxiliary have a plan under way to supply the necessary equipment for the canning, and it is said at a very nominal cost. The Auxiliary has figured that the canning cost per quart will not exceed 2 1/2 cents. The work of preparation in so far as possible would be done in the home and the processing at the cannery, plans would be under the direction of a competent woman. If enough people signify their desire to have canning work done, plans will be made to have the plant in operation in time to take care of the low priced asparagus.
