THURSDAY, OCT. 7, 1915

The Beaverton Chamber of Commerce is preparing for another of its rousing get-together meetings, to be held on Thursday evening, October 14. The chamber realizes that if its efforts are effective it must have the cooperation of all the people of Beaverton, and to unite and consolidate a sentiment favorable to the betterment and progress of our town, is the purpose it is endeavoring to accomplish. Sentiment is a disposition prompting action or expression, and the club wants action. Sentiment does more than that—it urges—it forces action. An appeal to it is a cry to the highest emotion. Through sentiment families are brought together, towns are builded up, nations welded in an indissoluble bond and entire strangers are knit into an endearing friendship. It is only when we depart from true sentiment into the realms of the sentimental that we go back. The Chamber of Commerce wants a bigger, better town—it wants progress, and it believes all Beaverton citizens want the same thing, then why not get together in common and work together? The results will be surprising. Come out and spend a pleasant evening.

It is proposed by the International Congress for Thrift that the president and governors of the states designate a day, the Sunday before Labor Day, as Thrift Day. The idea is a good one, and the labor organizations of the country are supporting it. The constant application of thrift will make the world a better place to live in. There will be fewer inmates of charitable institutions, fewer applications for alms, less poverty and more happiness. It is proposed to establish state as well as national headquarters for the association, and an active campaign undertaken for educating the easy going and thoughtless. The world belongs to the thrifty man. We all realize that no talent, no circumstance, no opportunity will make a man a success in life without the virtue of thrift, hence the movement for a national Thrift Day is receiving encouragement.
