Stand By Your Town.

No town can be permanently prosperous in which the citizens and tradesmen dependent on each other do not patronize each other The merchant wants a harness. for instance, and although his neighbor is a good harness maker and trades with him, he imagines he can save fifty cents by sending to another city or state for his harness. The haness maker in turn, sends away for his groceries and shoes. The shoemaker sends away for his coat and the tailor sends for his boots, and so it goes. As a result the farmer concludes that if others can save money by sending away for their goods, he can save some money in the same way; then everybody growls of hard times and no business. Is there any wonder? Ten dollars is lost where one is saved, because the entire business of the place is dwarfed and hampered GEO. F. A. WALKER, O. D.

The fact is, little is ever saved by going away to trade, and very much oftener, counting all expenses, there is a loss. The town in which the people make it a rule not to send away for anything they can buy at home, you will see business lively, and everybody busy. Have confidence in each other, patronize each other and keep all the business at home, and you will have the satisfaction of living in one of the busiest towns of the country.

Dairying The Remedy

The man with the small place is continually confronted with the question of soil efficiency, and there is no place in Oregon where the farms are, on an average, so small as they are in this especial part of Oregon. The land is higher in price, perhaps, in this locality and as a result taxes are slightly higher. This brings about a demand for increased production. By planting grain and potatoes year after year the land will gain little, generally deteriorating rapidly and this is by all means to be avoided. To avoid this we must find a proper industry and dairying is such an industry. In dairying there is a demand for a variety of crops which, with proper rotation, coupled with careful fertilzation, will soon bring about the desired result. - D.
