The railroad social given by the Sunday school classes of the Congregational church, in Cady hall last Friday evening was very largely attended and a very enjoyable social event for the young people.

J. R. Hicks, who will be remembered as being with the Times several months last fall and winter, visited several days the past week in Beaverton.

Mr. Flegel, a prominent attorney of Portland, delivered an excellent address to about one hundred ladies of Beaverton and vicinity on the work of the Oregon Social Hygiene society Saturday afternoon in the Grange hall.

The next regular meeting of the Beaverton Parent-Teacher association will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m., December 1, in the school building. It is hoped that every one interested in the schools will be present.

Social Hygiene Meeting

The social hygiene meeting at Grange hall last Thursday evening was a very interesting one. A splendid crowd was present, every seat in the hall being occupied. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Cady, who stated its purpose and introduced Dr. Carstens, the first speaker, who made an interesting talk.

He was followed by Mr. Woodward, whose talk and advice left a very favorable impression with his audience. Mr. Flegel spoke on remedies which was very instructive. Mr. Davis gave a very interesting talk on "What can be done for Beaverton."

The fact that this meeting was so largely attended illustrated the fact that Beaverton people are thoroughly aroused to the importance of the teachings of social hygiene. There is no doubt but what this friendly discussion will inspire a sentiment for a cleaner and better man-
