Resolutions of Safety

Whereas, at the last meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Beaverton, the subject of fire-escapes for the present wooden school building was brought up, and a committee appointed to draw up a resolution to be presented to the Board of School Directors of the Beaverton school, in which they should be asked to take immediate steps toward the installation of adequate fire-escapes for the building;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the committee, recognizing the importance of having fire-escapes, do hereby request and urge the Board, on behalf of the Parent-Teacher association to take immediate steps to procure and have installed at least two fire-escapes for the building.

It being intimated that the Board had no funds to carry out such an improvement, this committee would appreciate definite advice as to whether this is true, so that in case it is the necessary action may be taken to insure the installation, which would likely mean private subscription.

This committee hesitates to suggest the possibility of a private subscription for the above purpose, inasmuch as the Board is now spending something like $20,000 in the erection of a new building.

Place the bottomless barrel over the trench, chimney fashion, lay a stick across the top of the barrel to hang the meat off, put a cover of the barrel so as to keep the rain out without cutting off the draft, get a little piece of tin or sheet iron to serve as a door to the furnace, and the smokehouse is made.

Bill and Henry Tackle Wind Mill. Heroes, Almost

There are perhaps no braver men in the state of Oregon than two men of our acquaintance, who almost captured a midnight marauder, and perhaps more. The more as well as the marauder still remain an uncertain quantity, for there is no conclusive proof that would warrant such a belief. We must take off our hats to them when it comes to this hero stuff, however.

Said one to another, "Do you see that light in the road up ahead?"

"Yep," answered the other, sleepily, and moved on, engrossed in his own gloomy reflections, for he it known that it was the morning after the night before.

"Well," continued the first speaker, whose name happened in this specific instance to be Henry. "I saw the dinged thing move, and its standing right in front of my gate. What 'll you bet it's a real live chicken tie!"

"Uh uh," answered the other, in a very live and aggressive tone of voice.

"Gee Bill, let's investigate. Maybe we can raise our names from the ranks, and have them mounted in the hall of fame with them goddesses we saw in the city museum the other day." Bu. Bill remained unmoved, and continued to tread stoically his weary way.

Now Henry was as adventure-some as a hungry hobo with a "cop" on his heels; and he prepared to go alone and single-handed to meet the probable danger.

"My," said the sleepy one, "ain't you the bold lad to venture way out there into the terrible night alone. Better let me go, too, so that you won't get lost."

"Huh! You don't need to mind. I ain't afraid. But gosh that there light moved again. There, now, don't you see, the blamed thing is crossing the road. Let's hurry."

"Alright, I'm with you," was the reply, and the two near heroes dropped onto their knees, and began to crawl cautiously along through the mud toward the swaying light.

Hardly a sound broke the stillness. Far away over the beaver-dam, a Chinese bloodhound bayed at the moon, which would rise some time the next evening. Nearby, a dog howled pitifully, pouring out the pent-up sorrow of his preverse soul, and pouring it all out in one huge mouthful; then swish. A pair of cat-whizzed by in the gloom, the one overtaking the other and ardently embracing him.

"Henry, are you there?" came the trembling inquiry.

"Ye-ye-yes, Bill, what do you suppose that was? There ain't no wild cats round these parts any more, is there?"

"D-d-d-d-d-d-d-d-d-d, but I should hope not."

Then the cats parted with a wild yell of delight, and our heroes snooked on through the darkness.

"Now?" said Bill, in a stage whisper, "when I whistle you rush in from that side, and I'll come in from over there." And the man spoken to obediently did, as he was told cursing his companion as he did so.

On opposite sides of the light they paused a moment to consider. Then came the whistle, and the unlucky Henry, whose duty it was to do what Bill told him, closed with the foe. When the light of reason again filtering through on to his benighted brain, he was lying face upward, and the little stars were seemingly laughing. The desperado was a windmill tower, which some enterprising farmer was moving, and had left in the road over night, hanging a lantern up on it to warn off the traveling public.

Beaverton People Praise Simple Mixture

Many in Beaverton praise the simple mixture of Buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold being used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Adler-i-ka cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. City Pharmacy.

Catarra! Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists. P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Many Troublesome Coughs Cured

A large percent of the present day TUBERCULOSIS is due to the NEGLECT of a cough. It may seem a little thing, but if it stubborn it should be carefully looked after. The best cough medicine you can buy is WHITE PINE TAR EUCALYPTUS. One dose will give astonishing results immediately. No home should be without it. Most cough cures that you buy are loaded with opiate which only soothes and DOES NOT HEAL! White Pine Tar does more, for it SOOTHES and HEALS the inflamed mucous membranes of the throat and air passages. The chief ingredients of this powerful healer are EUCALYPTUS and MENTHOL. Try it. It is RECOMMENDED TO YOU BY THE CITY PHARMACY.
