PRaise FROM HIS ENEMIES

In some states the attempt to place Roosevelt's name upon the ticket for presidential nominee has been met by his refusal to run. His early position upon the foreign policy that should be adopted has no doubt crystallized a sentiment throughout the country in favor of protecting American lives abroad. He early condemned the idea, as un-American, that our citizens ought to stay at home, or take their own chances in traveling the seas. He vigorously denounced the Wilson Mexican policy, wherein an American must flee from that country, or take his own chances if he remained there. Some papers throughout the country that have ridiculed Mr. Roosevelt now praise him for the position he has taken in these matters. The Oregonian is one of these papers, and in giving voice to the following, it sweeps aside all its former utterances about Roosevelt and pays this tribute to him:

Roosevelt as president would have had a clear and known policy—an American policy—and he would have notified the world where America stands and what would be done to guarantee its rights as a neutral. He would have got the country ready for eventualities. That would have been his way of preventing war, and it doubtless would have been effective, without the loss of the Lusitania, or any other vessel, as the deliberate act of any power which chose to ignore the fact that the rights of non-combatants in certain situations are paramount to the rights of belligerents.

President Wilson waits for a Lusitania to be destroyed, and then takes the line of least resistance in adjusting the resultant complications."

All this goes to show that a man may, by his fearless position, gain many friends. How do the other likely candidates stand on the theory that a government should protect its citizens, no matter where that citizen might be? Perhaps we shall learn early enough to form an opinion upon the merits or demerits of their candidacy. Their popularity will no doubt depend largely upon their foreign policy.

LETTER WRITING WEEK

Letter Writing week ought to appeal to every citizen of Oregon. It is not as many suppose a scheme to get settlers to come to our state, but rather a scheme to encourage the pleasure seeker or persons of means to see Oregon's wonderful sights. Nature has done her work well in Oregon and the worst skeptic living ought to get his money's worth in viewing Nature's handiwork.

Sight-seers in Los Angeles the past season left upwards of fifty million dollars there, and about the same amount in San Francisco. There must have been large amounts left in other places by the traveling public. The idea of the letter writing proposition is to encourage travel to come this way and leave a trail of money behind them, thus enriching our circulation by several million dollars. This is an opportune time for this purpose from the fact that travel to and from Europe for pleasure has almost ceased. This class will travel; why not come this way. Then there is the other class who have not been in the habit of going to Europe, but who nevertheless go somewhere each summer. The object is to reach as many of these people as possible with vivid word pictures of our matchless scenery. The school children will be especially appealed to to write letters. There will be descriptions of various places sent out as guides for the letter writers, and it is hoped that this scheme will be taken hold of with a good will that will insure a success of it.

A list of parties written to will be kept, and the railroads will follow up the letters with further inducements.

MORE TAX

We understand that President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo have recommended a stamp tax on "bank checks" as a means of raising more revenue for the government. If this is liable to be taken seriously by Congress, and no doubt it will be, then there should be protests poured in from all sides in an endeavor to discourage the adoption of such a law.

Among the many industries that would be affected in this state would be the dairy industry, from the fact that the creameries pay their patrons with checks that range anywhere from one dollar on up into hundreds. These checks are issued mostly twice a month. The farmer who expresses his cream now pays revenue on each can.

It seems as though during the Wilson administration that the farmer had been the butt of all pernicious acts. Not only must he compete with foreign countries under free trade, but he must pay extra revenue to make up for the revenue lost because of it.

The revenue stamp upon a check would be only a small thing of itself, but in the course of a year it would amount to considerable and as usual in such cases the price of a revenue stamp would come out of the pay check,
