Bank of Beaverton Begins Series of Interesting Talks
With a view of acquainting the public with the many facilities and services afforded by the banking institution, and to set forth the most practical means of handling receipts and disbursements in connection with individual, household and business requirements. The Bank of Beaverton has inaugurated a series of articles in its advertising space in this paper. Each message will carry points of interest which will prove profitable as well as instructive. Particular attention will be given to familiarizing young men and women, housewives and business men and women with the various departments of the bank, and explanation of the adaptability of each branch. They will treat of the advantages to be gained through the banking connection, as well as the principles involved in the establishment of a bank account. Thrift, that much agitated question throughout the country, will also be discussed. This is a problem which every person, household and business in this locality should study from a community standpoint, as well as an individual. In developing one's private, family or business resources, it should be remembered that a community benefit is always an individual benefit, and as Beaverton is so close to the larger cities to often suffer from lack of forethought by its residents in this respect, it can not be too strongly called to attention that, trading at home is a good deal like living at home—more satisfactory in the long run. Undoubtedly The Bank of Beaverton will receive the support of everyone in the community in its campaign along these lines.

The first fine days of August has stimulated the hay baling considerably. There are at least three machines working around Beaverton. Many of the grain fields are turning yellow rapidly and a few more days will begin the harvest of one of Washington county's heaviest crops.

NEWS LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Arthur Fluke has taken a position in the S. P. car shops at this place.

After a month's vacation Rev. Upshaw will fill the pulpit at the Congregational church next Sunday.

Mr. C. E. Hedge left Wednesday morning for Tillamook in his new Ford.

John Frohnear has been busy for some time erecting a wind mill to take the place of the one which burned down over a year ago.

A good many tons of hay has been spoiled by the damp weather and it begins to look like the crop of early hay might be a little short as a consequence.

F. N. Hicks of Chicago, city passenger agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, was a visitor at the W. C. McKell residence for a few days this week.

We are informed that the surveyors are at work laying out the new road to Portland. This begins to look like business and we hope before long to see other signs of industry along the same line.

C. V. Copners, for some time past night operator at the S. P. station on the morning shift, has gone to Albany where he will occupy a position in the station at that place. His position here has been filled by C. F. Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hall and family and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Smith and family left Tuesday for a four days visit at the Tillamook beaches.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cady and family of Aberdeen, Washington, were in Beaverton the past week visiting with relatives and friends while they attend the Knights of Pythias convention being held in Portland.

It is rumored that the cattle of the North Plains country have been attacked by blackleg. So far there has been only one animal attacked by the disease, and precaution has been taken to check the further spread of it.

The big pine east of the mill was sacrificed the other day to the advance of civilization. At the rate things are going in Beaverton this will be a treeless town in a few short years unless everyone gets busy and plants more along the principle streets.

H. R. Nelson, Harrison Hughson, Earl Evans and Francis Allhands in his Ford accompanied by Warren and Archie Ferguson on the motorcycle, made a fishing excursion up above Timber in the Nehalem River country last Saturday evening. At least, so far as we can ascertain, the crowd in the Ford reached their destination safely; but there are sad rumors circulated of two chaps who spent the night communing with the owls and other horrors of a night where the touch of civilization ceases and mud oozes thick and slimy beneath the dank green of the wilderness.
