Prohis Meet.
Sunday evening in the Methodist church numerous people of this community gathered to listen to the arguments favoring complete prohibition and a discussion of the Brewers' Amendment to the state constitution allowing the manufacture of malt liquors within the state.

Two representatives of the Prohibition party were present and each gave a lengthy talk on the ins and outs of the coming fight. The representatives were Mrs. Hyde, secretary of the party and Henry Price, a former resident of this place but now a traveling worker for the Prohis. Mrs. Hyde limited her talk mostly to the presentation of facts and comments on them. She stated that Oregon was the first state to place a limit on the importation of booze, and has since been followed by two others, Idaho and Arizona. According to Mrs. Hyde there are many who are opposed to sending money out of the state for the booze used when it might be spent at home. This is counteracted by the statement that more money was sent outside to buy hops and barley than is now being sent out for liquor which statistics show to be the case.

Later in her address things switched from prohibition to politics and the congregation was given an insight into the aspirations of this particular party, namely to place men in the legislature from their party. Mr. Price was next on the program and he spoke very ably on the evils of the old saloon days. He also explained the comma in the Brewers Amendment which has been causing much stir among those who have studied it. He also explained that part of the document which will allow liquor to be sold over the counter of any place of business or be peddled over the country as the brewers see fit. In short it means the re-establishment of the saloon without the license.

Alright for The Big Ones
The wealthy city automobile owners will present a scheme to the coming legislature whereby if incorporated into law the state highway fund will be inflated nearly a million dollars. The scheme is to increase the license fee to twenty dollars and up. The amount collected would be placed in the state road fund for expenditure on state highways at points designated by the state highway commission. What a nice lot of wire pulling this would bring out and what a fine chance for politicians to demonstrate to the admiring ones his pull with the higher-ups.

The annual meeting of the state highway commission would be equal to a woman's bargain day in a department store. The commission would look wise, make the suppliant think for the time being that he was "it" and then in the end probably build a hard surface road to some summer resort. The farmer who has purchased a cheaper car for pleasure and business will wake up some fine morning after sending in his twenty dollar tax for owning a $400 piece of machinery to learn that his $20 has been spent probably a hundred miles away and left him with a muddy stretch of road accessible only part of the year, and while his car lies idle in the garage he may read of the other fellows account of a pleasure trip over that new hard surface road in another part of the state.

Prof. C. E. Barker of Huber was transacting business in Beaverton Tuesday. Mr. Barker has given such satisfaction in the Aloha Huber public school that he has been retained for the coming year. He informs us that their only eighth grade graduate Harold Engleman will enter the Beaverton High this fall. They expect a much larger graduating class next year.
