Scientific Paralysis Makes Appearance

The appearance of a case of infantile paralysis in the family of Joe Rebero, an Austrian living on the W. O. Hocken tract west of Beaverton, has closed the public school for a period of two weeks. The victim of the disease is a little boy of four years. Two other children from the same family were attending the school before the presence of the disease was known. They were immediately sent home and later the school was ordered closed, and the family put under strict quarantine.

This disease makes its appearance generally where the living conditions of a family are incorrect, as in this case. Here a large family was crowded into a small room under very unsanitary conditions. There is little danger of contagion and this is doubtless the last case to appear. The little boy is reported as doing nicely.

The following couples were issued marriage licenses the past week: Thorngy Holmes and Alchey B. Carr; James A. Jennings and Jennie I. Mitchell; Orville T. Mann and Martha H. Keis; William H. Wienecke and Bertha Grabbie.

The county clerk's office reported fees collected during the month of September as $782.95, and the fees from the office of the recorder were reported as being $361.10.

Good Grange Meeting

Beaverton Grange No. 234 in regular session October 14, 1916, transacted such business as ordinarily comes before the Grange at their meetings, parties waiting for initiation could not be present on account of mournful unavoidable circumstances, so that the forenoon session was very short giving all parties more time for the noon recess and dinner as usual very delicious. We very much enjoyed a visit from members of the Scholla and Tigardville Granges—come again.

The open lecture hour was certainly a new stunt that everyone present enjoyed immensely, because it was well planned and well carried out. That the Beaverton Grange is growing stronger not so very much in numbers as it is in interest is no question, all a person needs to do to be convinced is to observe the eagerness of every member to do their duty and to do it well.

I wish to especially mention the papers so ably written and so nicely read by Mrs. Stipe and Mrs. Davis and select reading by Mrs. Lawrence. Never before has our Grange had a better Lecture hour.

Child Run Over

Little Francis Parker, son of Tom Parker of this place was run down by an automobile near Cedar Mills as he was playing in the road. The driver immediately stopped and picked the little fellow up, taking him to the home of his grand parents. Later he was brought to his home in Beaverton where he is recovering rapidly. At first it was thought that he was very seriously injured but a thorough examination disclosed the fact that he was only badly bruised and no bones were broken.

Pastor Tendered Reception

On Friday evening, October 13, the members and friends of the Cedar Mills Methodist church held a reception for their pastor, Rev. G. A. Gray and wife.

The church was prettily decorated, a good program was rendered, addresses of welcome given and delicious refreshments served.
