Entered in the Postoffice, at Beaverton, Oregon, as second class matter.

tion. Where such receipts have proven to be so far in excess that the purpose of levying the fees was obviously a tax to raise money for roads or other purposes aside from the cost of inspection, the courts have declared such fees unconstitutional.

The automobile itself is the principal instrumentality which wears and destroys the roads, and the automobile owner should pay a license fee that will compensate the state in part for the extra wear and tear imposed by his machine. This license fee can be very high without covering the extra road cost occasioned by the advent of motor vehicle traffic. In other states, the courts have sustained auto license fees three or four times as high as that imposed in Oregon today, because the proceeds were applied direct to road construction and repair, a cost made necessary by automobile operation.

There is no question about the constitutionality of a material increase of auto license fees to raise revenue for highways, and it should be enacted as a simple and just way to build up revenues for constructing the through state highways which autoists now use and will use much more if the highways are improved.—Oregon Voter.

To Move the Line.

The county boundary agitation is making no stir whatever around our county seat; or at least none of any consequence. In fact there is no cause for alarm, either on the part of those in favor of the move or those who are against it. The truth and absolute fact of the matter is that there can be no possible danger of Multnomah county ever adopting one square foot of this county unless it will be of the greatest possible benefit to them.

When you give the subject the once over carefully you cannot see wherein any one would be benefitted by our being on the other side of the line, and what is more to the point those people on the other side are of the firm opinion that we would only make trouble for them any way.

Yes, that's what they are saying on the other side of the hill, and if headquarters says thumbs down, then thumbs down it is.

Public School Notes.

Grades seventh and eighth began manual training and domestic art last Friday in the High School building.

Room 4 had their Xmas tree Friday on account of no school just prior to the holidays.

All the public school pupils are enthusiastic over the proposed erection of play sheds under the auspices of the Beaverton Parent-Teacher's Association.

Earl E. Fisher will run night school during the next two weeks for benefit of the Eighth Grade scholars preparing for the coming examination beginning at 7 and continuing until 8:30 p. m.

Floyd W. Allen formerly of this place is now residing in Portland and working at N. W. Steel Co. he says things have been very warm down there during the present strike.

Della C. Fisher and daughter Mae spent Sunday in Portland visiting with relatives.
