Mrs. Jacob Schmitt returned from Spokane yesterday, her daughter, Mrs. Emma Bell, having fully recovered from her illness and is now out of the hospital.

G. W. Hadlock has added his name to the list of Times subscribers. He was in town from his ranch at the foot of Cooper Mountain yesterday and says he knows of nothing new more than that they are trying to keep out of the mud. Beaverton is with you in that, Mr. Hadlock, and if we get the proper spirit of co-operation aroused, it won't be long before all the farmers will be able to reach Beaverton without pulling through the mud.

You can do a little bit every day, at every meal, to help win the war. Waste none, and remember to conserve the meat, wheat, fats and sugar.

A carload of cull potatoes from Scappoose came in yesterday on the Oregon Electric, consigned to the starch factory.

H. L. Flint and N. S. Richards from Kinton brought some fine oats into Beaverton Tuesday and sold them to C. B. Buchanan & Co. They state that they would like to come oftener but that the roads are in such bad shape that it is hard to come to town with a load.

ner in which the various movements were executed and informs us that for a company composed mainly of men with little or no military training, they did remarkably well.

The two meeting so far held have been in grange hall, but the company has secured permission to use the gymnasium at the highschool for a drill room, which is as it should be, for all patriotic movements should center around our public schools.

The officers and members of the company hope to increase the company to 100, the minimum for infantry.

The marriage of Mrs. Anna Fitzpatrick and Mr. Joseph Fitzpatrick was solemnized at St. Cecilia's church at 8:00 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, January 24, 1918. Sorrento is very fortunate to gain another citizen so worthy as Mr. Fitzpatrick and all join in wishing the happy pair long life and much happiness.

LET THE KAISER LIVE.

The following poem, a product of the wartime, was handed to us by C. W. Allen. It was published in the Sykeston (North Dakota) News, of which Mr. Allen's cousin is editor and it is from that paper the clipping is taken, although the poem has appeared in a number of other publications. The poem reflects a sentiment quite strong at present, an idea which gained wide currency regarding the death of Christ and the punishment meted out to those who would hurry him to his death and which was immortalized in General Lew Wallace's "The Prince of India."

As long as flowers their perfume give,
So long I'd let the Kaiser live—Live and live for a million years, With nothing to drink but Belgian tears, With nothing to quench his awful thirst But the salted brine of a Scotchman's curse.
I would let him live on a dinner each day, Served from silver on a golden tray—Served with things both dainty and sweet—Served with everything but things to eat.

And I'd make him a bed of silken sheen, With costly linens to lie between,
With covers of down and fillets of lace,
And downy pillows piled in place;
Yet when to its comforts he would yield,
It would stink with rot of the battlefield, And blood and bones and brains of men Should cover him, smother him—and then His pillow should cling with rotten cloy—Cloy from the grave of a soldier boy; And while God's stars their vigils keep,
And while the waves the white sands sweep, He should never, never, never sleep.

And through all the days, through all the years, There should be an anthem in his ears, Ringing and singing and never done From the edge of light to the set of sun, Moaning and moaning and moaning wild—A ravaged French girl's bastard child.

And I would build him a castle by the sea, As lovely a castle as ever could be;
And then I'd show him a ship from over the sea, As fine a ship as ever could be;
Laden with water cold and sweet, Laden with everything good to eat;
Yet scarce does she touch the silvered sands, Scarce may he reach his eager hands, Than a hot and hellish molten shell Should change his heaven into hell;
And though he'd watch by the wave-swept shore, Our Lusitania would rise no more.

In "No Man's Land," where the Irish fell, I'd start the Kaiser a private hell; I'd jab him, stab him, give him gas;
In every wound I'd pour ground glass; I'd march him out where the brave boys died—Out past the lads they crucified.
In the fearful gloom of his living tomb There is one thing I'd do before I was through:
I'd make him sing in a stirring manner The wonderful words, "The Star Spangled Banner." —The Silent.

Frank C. Miller of Gervais and his sister, Dr. Marie Goffin of Portland, spent Friday in Beaverton as the guests of their mother, Mrs. Hattie Bruce, and their grandfather, W. L. Pike, Sr.

Miss Bessie Kirkwood, superintendent of the Washington County Junior Christian Endeavor, was down from her home at Reedville Sunday on an official visit to the local Junior Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church.

Joseph Schmitt is expected to arrive Tuesday from Spokane for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schmitt before being called into the army.

Mrs. Cora Wetherell of Sumpter, Oregon, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. D. Newman, who is quite ill.

J. D. Newman made a business trip to Seaside Sunday and Monday.

Guy Glenn McCormick, of Garden Home and an employee of the mechanical department of the Portland Journal, was a Beaverton visitor yesterday and was in to congratulate us on the fine plant we have in Beaverton.

Jesse E. Davis and Doy Gray attended the ceremonial session of the Mystic Shrine in Portland Monday evening.

Entertainment Coming

On Friday evening, February 8, there will be an entertainment in the highschool auditorium in addition to the regular picture films. The Sorrento Club will sing several numbers consisting of choruses, duets and solos.
Remember the date and come.

Mrs. Frances Hobart was out at the meeting Wednesday and it was a good sight for her many friends to see her looking so well and moving about so sprily, as they had feared that the fall she suffered last month would prevent her attendance, but she has found the power to ward off the evil of bad humor and sickness
